Amarinder briefs AICC panel, underlines need for unity

Congress panel meets lawmakers, amid dissidence led by Navjot Singh Sidhu

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT NEW DELHI

Punjab Chief Minister Captain Amarinder Singh, in his three-hour meeting with the three-member panel of the All India Congress Committee (AICC) on Friday, put up a strong defence of his government to counter dissidence led by former Minister Navjot Singh Sidhu.

"It's an internal matter and there is no need for any public discussion.. Elections are due in six months and we have to work together and win the elections," Captain Amarinder told reporters after the meeting.

Multiple sources told The Hindu that ahead of next year's Assembly election, there would be significant changes in the Pradesh Congress Committee (PCC) as well as the Punjab Cabinet.

But the exact role for Mr. Sidhu and how the party wants to accommodate him will be left to party president Sonia Gandhi, said a source familiar with the deliberations. The panel, which has been meeting Punjab lawmakers, MPs and party leaders since Monday, is expected to submit its report to her in the next couple of days.

The Chief Minister is learnt to have made it clear to the three-member panel,

He is also believed to have

The Chief Minister's critics, including Mr. Sidhu and former PCC chiefs – Partap Singh Bajwa and Samsher Singh Dullo – have been very critical of the State government's handling of the 2015 sacrilege issue.

They alleged that the government could neither punish those involved in the desecration of the Holy Guru Granthsahib at Bargari nor indict the Parkash Singh Badal-led Akali government for the 2015 Kotkapura firing incident, following protests over the sacrilege.

RBI holds rates, cuts GDP forecast

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT MUMBAI

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Friday left benchmark interest rates unchanged and reiterated that it would retain its accommodative stance for "as long as necessary to revive and sustain growth on a durable basis", as it cut its GDP growth forecast for the fiscal year by 100 basis points to 9.5%.

The RBI's Monetary Policy Committee, after taking stock of the evolving macro-economic and financial conditions as well as the impact of the second wave of the COVID-19 pandemic, voted unanimously to keep the policy reporate unchanged at 4%, Governor Shaktikanta Das said.

Acknowledging that the sudden rise in COVID-19 infections and fatalities had impaired the nascent recovery that was underway, Mr. Das said the second wave had, however, "not snuffed it out".

"The impulses of growth are still alive," he asserted.

Ramping up the vaccination drive and bridging the gaps in healthcare infrastructure could mitigate the pandemic's devastation, he stressed.

The bank also marginally raised its projection for CPI inflation during 2021-22 to 5.1%.

Struggling to give 2nd dose: govt. to HC

The AAP government has informed the Delhi High Court on Friday that it made preparations for vaccinating people with Covaxin in the Capbased manufacturer Bharat Biotech's assurance that it will receive 5 lakh doses in May and four times that in June.

Delhi government said it received only 1.5 lakh doses of Covaxin in May and due to the Centre's instructions not to set aside any stock for the second jab, all of it was used to provide the first dose to as many people in the 18-44 age group.

Justice Rekha Palli said that it should have stopped providing people with the first dose of Covaxin when it realised by May 11-12 that it will not be getting any more supplies from Bharat Biotech to provide the second doses.

Overconfidence

The court said the Delhi government was "overconfident" that it will get the requisite supplies of the vaccine. It said that if there was no confirmation from Bharat Biotech with regard to additional supplies, then the present situation, where thousands of people may not get the second dose within the incubation period of six weeks from the first dose, was "your own doing". "After May 11-12, you [Delhi government] should have stopped. But you went on vaccinating till May 24," the court said.

Delhi government told the High Court that by June 9, Bharat Biotech would send around 15,000 doses of Covaxin and an additional 90,000 by July 2. The court said the first lot of supplies would help only 10% of the 1.5 lakh persons who were given the first dose and by the time the second lot arrives, it would not be of any help to

"People took the first shot of vaccine under the belief that you would provide them with the second one also," the court remarked while posting the case for further hearing on June 7.

RWAs join hands with hospitals to organise vaccination camps

As supplies dwindle, schools and NGOs too are collaborating in the endeavour

With a limited supply of vaccines at government facilities over the past week, several resident welfare associations, academic institutions and hospitals have come together to organise vaccination camps in a localised

A vaccination drive has been organised by Fortis Hospital, Shalimar Bagh at Mount Abu School from June 1 for the 18+ category. While prior registration is required on the government portal, each dose of Covishield was administered for ₹1,050.

Jyoti Arora, principal of Mount Abu School, said: "We were probably the first private school to have collaborated for such a drive. We prorequired the infrastructure, which included space for registration kiosk, waiting areas and observation areas. The campus is being sanitised daily. The vaccination drive continued in a full-fledged manner for three days and 250 people were vaccinated."

of Malviya Nagar, Safdarjung Development Area and Green Park. Around 1,000 people were vaccinated between May 29 and June 2, officials involved in the organisation of the camp said. "The camp was organised based on requests of the RWAs as there were several people who could not get the jabs

due to the paucity of vaccines," an official said.

Drive-through facilities Several drive-through vaccination camps were also organised across the city. Indraprastha Apollo Hospitals on Friday launched a twoday drive-through facility at the Ambience Mall in Vasant

"Apollo Hospitals is administering Covishield at the drive-through facility between 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and is open to everyone above 18 years. People need to be registered on the Cowin app. A total of 150 people were vaccinated on the first day," read an official statement from the hospital.

The drive-through vaccination drive at the Chhatrasal Stadium, organised by the North district administration, saw a steady stream of visitors in cars, two-wheelers and even e-rickshaws, visit the centre for vaccination.

Over 550 doses have already been administered at the centre, said Kusum Arora, who is in charge of the facility. While vaccines are being currently administered to only the 45-plus category, Dr. Arora said the facility will be open for those above 18 over the coming days.

Parallel sessions

Two parallel sessions are being run between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. at the stadium. This has been done to avoid overcrowding and reduce waiting time. While people with online registrations are welcome, there is a facility for spot registration as well. The staffers are fully trained and Covishield is being administered at the centre," said Dr. Arora.

Ajay Chauhan (51), who arrived at the centre to get vaccinated, said: "I am not too savvy with technology and hence had been struggling to register myself on the portal. However, the facility at the stadium came as a big relief. I could get myself registered at the first counter. Getting the iab was also a swift process, after which I had to wait in the observation area for half an hour. Overall, it was a relief to experience a smooth

Why are you unaware of drug manufacturing plants in India, asks HC

'It could be produced in every State'

SOIBAM ROCKY SINGH NEW DELHI

The Delhi High Court on Friday questioned how the Centre and various government departments were unaware of the "untapped potential" manufacturing plants in India, with capabilities to produce COVID-19 vaccines, when foreign firms have been able to locate them.

"That is what is troubling us," a Bench of Justice Manmohan and Justice Najmi Waziri remarked.

"You [Centre] were asking for waiver of patents all over the world. We have good products in India. These products could have been manufactured in each and every State," the High Court said, referring to Panacea Biotec's plant in Himachal Pradesh.

"In Himachal, if you have produced this, the entire State could have been vaccinated in three weeks. Even people from Russia are able to locate it, and we are unable to locate them. That is what is troubling us," the court remarked.

The court also queried why the Centre did not engage with local drug manufacturers to produce the vaccine deveturer. "There is an Indian company which has developed its own vaccine. If other manufacturers were told way back last year, there would be crores of vaccines all over the country by now," the court remarked, adding, "Why are you not thinking on those lines?"

Seeks arbitral award

The court's observations came while hearing a plea of Panacea Biotec, which has sought the release of an arbitral award, passed in its favour and against the Centre, saying it needs funds at the earliest in the larger interest of humanity as it has already manufactured trial batches of COVID vaccine Sputnik V in collaboration with Russian Direct Investment Fund and wanted to scale it up.

Gurugram gets four oxygen generator plants

These have been set up in 3 hospitals with combined capacity of over 3 tonnes/day

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Four oxygen Pressure Swing Adsorption (PSA) generator plants, including two at Sector 10 Civil Hospital, have been set up in three different hospitals in Gurugram with a combined capacity of more than three tonnes per day.

The hospital authorities claimed the plants would be enough to meet their daily pre-COVID days' requirement and do away with their daily dependence tankers.

The four plants were inaugurated by Haryana Chief Minister Manohar Lal a week

Deputy Civil Surgeon (Civil Hospital) Maneesh Rathee said the two plants with the capacity of one tonne and half tonne each were set up inside the hospital premises and both were functional.

'Self-sufficient'

"The two plants are enough to meet the daily requirement of oxygen for 70 beds in the hospitals in normal circumstances. Earlier, the oxygen was supplied daily by

"relax". Similarly, two plants with a capacity of one tonne each have been set up at ESIC Hospitals in Sector 9A Gurugram and Sector 3 in Manesar. Medical Superintendent at ESIC Hospitals, Subhra Gupta, said both the plants were functional and they expected to meet their daily pre-CO-VID days need of oxygen.

All four plants have been donated and installed by Maruti Suzuki under its Corporate Social Responsibility Initiative. The company plans to install 24 more such plants in different parts of the country by mid-June. A separate team has been deployed by the company with roundthe-clock monitoring to ensure that these generator plants are installed successfully in hospitals and are operational. The monitoring will continue for a few months to ensure that these generators keep operating satisfactorily well installation.

Gurugram Chief Medical Officer Virender Yadav said three more such plants would be set up at Sohna, Pataudi and Sector 31 Polyclinic in the city.

"The capacity of the Sohna and Pataudi plants will be 500 Litres Per Minute [LPM] each. We have procured equipment for both hospitals. The capacity for Sector 31 Polyclinic will be 100

Capital has run out of Covaxin, claims Atishi

AAP leader says centres administering vaccine for 45+ will shut down from today

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI Senior AAP leader Atishi on Friday said there were no more doses of Covaxin available for 45+ and 18-45 years age group. She requested the Central government to provide as much Covaxin as previous month to ensure everyone gets second dose on time.

"For Covaxin, there is a great concern amongst people as the shortage of vaccines continues to persist. This concern has been the minds of both – youth between 18-44 years and those above 45 years of age. For 18-44 years, there is no vaccine available for neither the first dose nor the second. For those above 45 years, Covishield is available for both the first and the second doses but the supply for Covaxin for them is almost over from today onwards," Ms. Atishi said.

She said, "So now the stock of Covaxin in Delhi needs to be supplied for both age categories and we would like to request the Central government to strengthen the chain..."

She added that the Capital has around 6 lakh doses of the vaccine available for those above 45 years, out of which the majority of doses 5,90,000 are that of Covishield. "Thus, from tomorrow [Saturday] onwards, the centers which were administering Covaxin will shut down for those above 45+ age group. Covaxin will not be available as second dose in these centers," she added.

BJP suspends Bihar MLC over remarks on Nitish

I will present my case on notice: Tunna Pandey

AMARNATH TEWARY

The BJP on Friday suspended MLC Tunna Pandey from the party with "immediate effect" for making "comments against the party

Mr. Pandey, who had recently called Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar a "chief minister of circumstances", had on Thursday, met Osama Sahab, son of former RJD MP and strongman Mohd. Shahabuddin in Siwan.

"The chairman of the BJP's disciplinary committee, Vinay Singh, had served a show-cause notice to you for making comments against party's discipline. In spite of this, you made another comment against party line... So, you're suspended from the party with immediate effect," said the letter of suspension issued by State BJP president Sanjay Jaiswal.

Earlier on Thursday, Mr. Singh had served a showcause notice to Mr. Pandey and asked him to reply in 10 days. Mr. Pandey's term in the Legislative Council is scheduled to end on July 16.

Mr. Pandey's brother Bacchha Pandey is Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD) MLA from Barharia, also in Siwan district. The suspension comes amid speculation that Mr. Tunna Pandey may join the RJD.

"I'll reply and present my case on whatever notice has come from BJP. Why I'm speaking against Nitish Kumar, I'll tell this in front of my party leaders," Mr. Pandey told journalists soon after meeting Mr. Sahab.

Mr. Pandey's criticism of Mr. Kumar had come in a series of tweets sparking sharp reactions from the NDA alliance partners. He had accused the Chief Minister of "being hand-in-glove with the liquor smugglers since 2009" and said he would "expose him (Mr. Kumar) that he would land in Responding to the remarks, JD(U) spokesperson Sanjay Singh, said, "Mr. Pandey himself was in liquor business and is peeved with government after prohibition "

Punjab govt. not to supply vaccines to pvt. hospitals

Govt. withdraws earlier decision after Opposition criticism

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Facing criticism from several quarters, the Punjab government on Friday decided to withdraw its decision of providing limited COVID-19 vaccine doses to 18-44 age group people through private hospitals.

Parties belonging to the Opposition, including the Shiromani Akali Dal (SAD), the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) and the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), accused the ruling Congress government in Punjab of selling government quota vaccines at hefty profit to private hospitals.

As the controversy raged, Punjab's Health and Family Welfare department issued an order on June 4 withdrawing its earlier decision.

"The order of providing one-time limited vaccine dose to 18-44 years age group population through private hospitals has not been taken in the right spirit and is hereby withdrawn," said the order.

"Further, it has been decided that the private hospitals should return forthwith all the vaccine doses available with them. The amount deposited by the private hospitals in the vaccine fund shall be refunded to them," it added.

Lok Sabha MP Preneet Kaur inaugurates a medical oxygen plant at a government hospital in Patiala on Friday. • PTI

Akali Dal seeks probe

Former Deputy Chief Minister and SAD president Sukhbir Singh Badal had alleged that while vaccine doses were available in the State, they were being sold to private institutions instead of being given free of cost to the common man. "A Covaxin dose costing the State ₹400 was being sold to private institutions at ₹1,060. The private hospitals were further selling the dose at ₹1,560," he alleged, demanding a High Court monitored probe into the matter.

Raghay Chadha, AAP Punjab affairs co-incharge, said that the State government had committed a 'vaccine scam'. He said that due to the government's apathy the people were being forced to get vaccinated from private hospitals at an overblown price.

Meghalaya mine owner sent to judicial custody

Five labourers are trapped since May 30

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT GUWAHATI

The owner of a coal mine in Meghalaya where five labourers are trapped since May 30 was sent in judicial custody on Thursday, a day after he surrendered, State Home Minister Lakhmen Rymbui has

The five miners, feared dead, were trapped following a dynamite blast in the 500 feet deep pit. The mine, one of a few thousand in the State's East Jaintia Hills district, was known to have been abandoned.

Four of the trapped miners are from Assam and one from Tripura.

A day after the mishap, the district police detained K. Chyrmang, former owner of the mine. But he tested positive for COVID-19 and was quarantined.

"The current owner of the mine, Shining Langstang, surrendered on Wednesday night. He is a resident of Sutnga Pohshnong village and was presented before a local court on Thursday for judicial remand," Mr. Rymbui said, adding that five people have so far been questioned and their statements

District Superintendent of Police Jagpal Singh Dhanoa said a look-out notice had been issued for the absconding sordar (contractor of labourers) of the mine, Nizamuddin Ali.

"A case has been registered against six people who had worked with the trapped miners and survived the accident for taking part in illegal mining activities. They have been escorted to their homes in Assam with instructions to appear as and when called," Mr. Dhanoa said.

'Rain hampers rescue'

District officials said continuous rain has hampered the rescue efforts and it would be "extremely difficult" to pull out the miners, dead or alive.

The authorities have requisitioned a few pumps to draw out the accumulated water in the pit and a crane for the rescue team to descend.

The State Disaster Response Force team on Thursday managed to go down the pit and measured the water level to be about 152 ft.

Prisoners go on rampage in U.P. jail

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

A jail head warder was iniured after inmates, angered by the death of a fellow prisoner, went on a rampage for over four hours inside the premises of a prison in Uttar Pradesh's Jaunpur district on Friday.

The inmates pelted stones and bricks, threatened arson with a gas cylinder and set a blanket on fire in the compound of the prison, said a spokesperson of the State prison department.

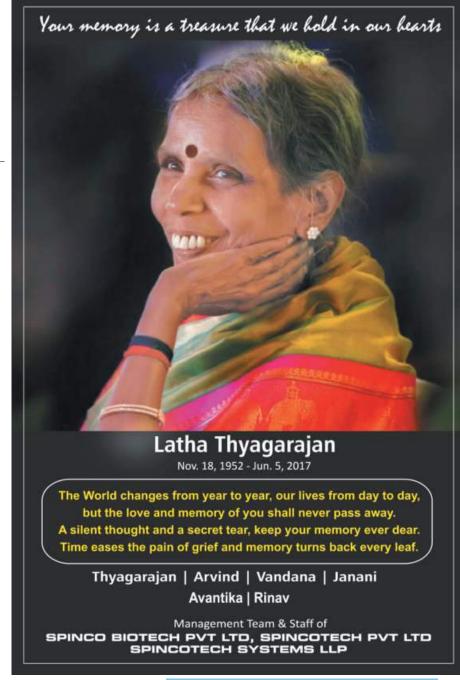

Death of convict

The incident took place after the death, allegedly due to illness, of convicted prisoner Nagesh Mishra, who was serving life imprisonment for murder.

Senior officers later reached the jail with heavy police force to bring the situation under control and managed to get the prisoners back into their barracks "without any use of force" through cordial talks, said the spokesperson. "The situation in the jail is fully under control now," he said.

Stop handover of Guwahati

GUWAHATI

The Assam Jatiya Parishad (AJP) has asked the Ministry of Civil Aviation and the Airports Authority of India to stop handing over the Lokapriya Gopinath Bardoloi International Airport in Guwahati to the Adani Group.

In a reminder to AAI Chairman Sanjeev Kumar and Civil Aviation Minister Hardeep Singh Puri on Friday, AJP general secretary Jagadish Bhuyan said the proposed privatisation of the airport would squeeze the already beleaguered travellers who are hit hard by the sharp drop in the economy and financial resources because of the pandemic.

"It has come to our attention that the airports given to Adani Group on lease for the next 50 years include Jaipur, Lucknow, Mumbai, Ahmedabad, Thiruvananthapuram, Bengaluru and Guwahati. Adani Group has already taken control of east," he said.

Petition in HC challenges MUHS exam on June 10

Nagpur Bench to pass order today

The Nagpur Bench of the Bombay High Court on Friday said it will pass an order on Saturday in a plea challenging the Maharashtra University of Health Sciences' (MUHS) decision to conduct physical exams for medical students on June 10.

said, "Two phases of Winter 2020 have been conducted and the third one will begin on June 10. All question papers have been dispatched." Advocate Rahul Bhangde, appearing for the petitioners, said that those who had appeared for exams in the first two phases were fully vaccinated, but the 45,000 students who will appear for the exam on June 10 must be vaccinated.

The court said, should everything in the country stop till everyone is vaccinated? Let the student get tested before he gets out of the house. Today, even those who are 45 years and above are not getting vaccines, how can students be bypassed? Getting infected is a risk all of us carry."

Two cheers

India betters score in the latest SDG Index. but methodological tinkering is cause for concern

ndia's push in the right direction in achieving Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) related to clean Lenergy, urban development and health has helped it improve its overall SDG score from 60 in 2019 to 66 in 2021, according to NITI Aayog's SDG India Index 2020-21. Besides SDGs on eradication of poverty and hunger, measures related to the availability of affordable, clean energy in particular, showed improvements across several States and Union Territories. The campaign to improve the access of households to electricity and clean cooking fuel has been shown to be an important factor. While this is cause for cheer, the Index reveals that there has been a major decline in the areas of industry, innovation and infrastructure besides decent work and economic growth, again made worse by the lockdowns imposed by the governments seeking to tackle the CO-VID-19 pandemic. But the stark differences between the southern and western States on the one hand and the north-central and eastern States on the other in their performance on the SDGs, point to persisting socioeconomic and governance disparities. These, if left unaddressed, will exacerbate federal challenges and outcomes, as seen in the public health challenges during the second wave across some of the worse-off States.

Notwithstanding the improvement in key indicators, the Index has curiously made some methodological changes that render comparisons on some SDGs over previous years moot. The SDG on inequality shows an improvement over 2019, but the indicators used to measure the score have changed. The 2020-21 Index drops several economic indicators and gives greater weightage to social equality indicators such as representation of women and people from marginalised communities in legislatures and local governance institutions, and crimes against SC/ST communities. By dropping the well-recognised Gini coefficient measure and the growth rate for household expenditure per capita among 40% of rural and urban populations (instead, only the percentage of population in the lowest two wealth quintiles is used), the SDG score on inequality seems to have missed out on capturing the impact of the pandemic on wealth inequality. This could be a significant miss as a UN assessment of the impact of CO-VID-19 had said that the South Asian region may see rising inequality. Methodological issues on measuring other SDGs have been flagged before, but the lack of adequate measurement of economic inequality seems to be a glaring miss. Like in the first wave, the second wave, with more fatalities, has had similar outcomes on livelihoods and jobs. While the better score for India in its endeavour to achieve SDGs will bring some cheer, governments must work on addressing pressing issues such as increased inequality and economic despair.

Winds of change

Israel gets new coalition, but it is unlikely to survive long with its ideological contradictions

👅 n Israel's fractious political landscape, Benjamin N tanyahu has been known as the master of survival. In power since 2009, he has seen allies come and go, protégés turning out to be rivals, and elections happening in the shortest intervals. But he hardly missed an opportunity to turn crisis into political gain, which allowed him to become the longest serving Prime Minister, overtaking David Ben-Gurion. However, this may be ending. A coalition of eight parties, under the leadership of Opposition politician Yair Lapid, could oust Mr. Netanyahu from power and form a 'change' government. In this, Mr. Lapid, who leads the centrist Yesh Atid party, has joined hands with the right-wing Yamina of Naftali Bennett, and other parties ranging from prosettlers to left-wing and Arab parties. According to the coalition agreements, Mr. Bennett, who was part of the far-right Jewish Home before founding Yamina, would be the PM for two years followed by Mr. Lapid. Mr. Lapid says his coalition has the support of 61 Members of the Knesset (MKs) – a razor-thin majority in the 120member Parliament. Messrs. Lapid and Bennet are now pushing for a quick vote in the Knesset, while Mr. Netanyahu is putting pressure on the right-wing MKs of the coalition to vote against the government.

Even if the coalition does sail through the Knesset vote, it might, with its conflicting ideological views, remain fractious and feeble. But that does not diminish the importance of the political changes that are under way. The country has seen four elections in the last two years, with no party winning a majority on its own in any. Last year, Mr. Netanyahu formed a short-lived unity government with the Opposition leader, Benny Gantz. Mr. Gantz, leader of the centrist Blue and White, is now with Mr. Lapid. It is Mr. Netanyahu's repeated and failed attempts to form a stable right-wing government that have led the anti-Netanyahu parties from across the spectrum to come together. Also, this is the first time in Israel's history that an Arab-majority party has signed a government coalition agreement. Till last year, Arab parties were considered untouchables by the mainstream Jewish parties. But now, the United Arab List (Ra'am), which has 4 MKs, has officially joined the coalition, breaking a political separation wall. If voted out of power, Mr. Netanyahu will have to fight a corruption trial and possible leadership challenges within the Likud without the shield of premiership. When the Gaza fighting broke out on May 10, coupled with riots in Israeli cities, many thought it would help him politically. But the Gaza fighting appears to have weakened his position among his right-wing allies, who alleged that his government surrendered to Hamas by agreeing to the ceasefire. Mr. Netanyahu is now caught between unhappy right-wing allies and a united opposition.

Saving biodiversity, securing earth's future

The National Biodiversity Mission can help mend the dysfunctional relationship between humanity and nature

n this World Environment Day (June 5), with the novel coronavirus pandemic raging across our vast country, we must reflect on the ways to rebuild our relationship with nature. India's vast and rich biodiversity gives the nation a unique identity, of which we can be proud. The varied ecosystems across land, rivers, and oceans, feed our people, enhance public health security, and shield us from environmental disasters. Our biodiversity also serves as a perpetual source of spiritual enrichment, intimately linked to our physical and mental well-being.

Staggering value of forests

And while the precise economic value of all ecosystem services provided by biodiversity may not be known, estimates suggest our forests alone may yield services worth more than a trillion rupees per year. Imagine how much greater this value will be with grasslands, wetlands, freshwater, and marine added.

Sadly, today, we face not only one of the worst public health crises but also worldwide declines in biodiversity. Globally, we have lost 7% intact forests since 2000, and recent assessments indicate that over a million species might be lost forever during the next several decades. Our country is not an ex-

Climate change and the ongoing pandemic will put additional stresses on our natural ecosystems even though it is becoming clear that repairing our dysfunctional relationship with nature is one of the ways to mitigate climate change and curtail future outbreaks of infectious diseases that can bring unimaginable misery. Thus, preserving biodiversity is directly relevant to the social, economic, and environmental wellbeing of our people. We must rethink and reimagine the concept of One Health for all living organisms, including the invisible biota in soils that sustain our agricultural systems.

Investments in the field

Fortunately, our government is considering major investments in biodiversity science to meet societal needs. In 2018, the Prime Minister's Science, Technology and Innovation Advisory Council (PM-STIAC) in consultation with the Ministry of Environment, Forest, and Climate Change and other Ministries approved an ambitious National Mission on Biodiversity and Human Well-Being (NMBHWB). A Bengaluru-based Biodiversity Collaborative is working with the National Biodiversity Authority to hold consultations and prepare road maps of the Mission that will be steered by a core of the country's leading biodiversity science and conservation organisations, from public, academic, and civil society sectors.

The Mission will strengthen the science of restoring, conserving, and sustainably utilising India's natural heritage; embed biodiversity as a key consideration in all ticularly in agriculture, ecosystem services, health, bio-economy, and climate change mitigation; establish a citizen and policy-oriented biodiversity information system; and enhance capacity across all sectors for the realisation of India's national biodiversity targets and United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (UN SDGs).

Furthermore, the Mission will allow India (home to nearly 8% of global biodiversity on just 2.3% of global land area, and containing sections of four of the 36 global biodiversity hotspots) to emerge as a leader in demonstrating linkage between conservation of natural assets and societal well-being.

An important framework

The ongoing spread of COVID-19 places this Mission among the most significant national initiatives. The pandemic has exposed the dysfunctional relationship between humanity and nature, and we must urgently address the issues it has laid bare: the emergence of infectious diseases; lack of food and nutritional security; rural unemployment; and climate change, with all its stresses on nature, rural landscapes, and public health. In response to these critical and interrelated issues, the Mission offers a holistic framework, integrated approaches, and

The Mission's comprehensive efforts will empower India to restore, and even increase, our natural assets by millions of crores of rupees. Mitigation programmes will lessen the impacts of climate change and other natural disasters, such as pandemics and floods. We can rejuvenate agricultural production systems and increase rural incomes from biodiversity-based agriculture while also creating millions of green jobs in restoration and nature tourism. Restoration activities across India's degraded lands, which amount to almost a third of our land area, alone could generate several million jobs The Mission will help India meet its commitments under the new framework for the Convention on Biological Diversity (CBD), and UN SDGs related to pressing social issues including poverty alleviation, justice and equity, and protection of life. It will generate a strong national community committed to sustaining biodiversity, promoting social cohesion and uniting the public behind an important goal.

Mission programmes will offer nature-based solutions to numerous environmental challenges, including degradation of rivers, forests, and soils, and ongoing threats from climate change, with the goal of creating climate-resilient communities. Scientific inputs, especially related to geospatial informatics and policy, can guide the development of strategies for conservation and ecosystem management.

Equally important, the Mission's "One Health" programme, integrating human health with anihealth, has both the preventive potential to curtail future pandemics along with the interventional capability for unexpected public health challenges. Additional programmes, directed at food and nutritional security, will in turn also influence public health outcomes.

Need for a cadre

The planned Mission recognises that we need a strong and extensive cadre of human resources required to meet the enormous and complex environmental challenges of the 21st century. This will require training professionals of the highest calibre in sustainability and biodiversity science, along with an investment in civil society outreach. The gains of environmental change will be upheld and carried forward by the cultural change from environmental education for millions of students, from kindergarten to postgraduate

Finally, biodiversity is everywhere, and we interact with biodiversity all the time in our daily lives. Public engagement, whether it is in the policymaking arena, or in exploration, restoration and conservation of biodiversity, is a critical component of the planned Mission.

Today, on the heels of the International Day for Biological Diversity celebrated last month, nothing could be more important than to renew our pledge to nurture all life on earth.

The time to limit global warming is melting away

There are no second chances and nations must use COP26 to address the enormous threat of climate change

This is an incredibly difficult time for the world. The world is facing two momentous challenges: COVID-19 and climate change. Both need us to come together globally to find a way forward. World Environment Day (June 5) is an important moment to take stock on climate

When I was in India earlier this year – my first visit to Asia in my new role - I saw first-hand India's ambitious work on renewable energy, and held vital discussions with government leaders, including Prime Minister Narendra Modi. businesses and civil society. I was inspired by the resolve I saw.

India's response

India has a strong record on tackling climate change, including impressive domestic targets to have 450GW of renewable energy by 2030, and establishing the International Solar Alliance and the Coalition for Disaster Resilient Infrastructure (CDRI). India played a critical role in delivering the landmark Paris Agreement and we are working just as closely with India in the run-up to COP26, the 26th UN Climate Change Conference of the Parties, to be hosted by the United Kingdom in Glasgow from November 1-12, 2021. Last month, Mr. Modi and the U.K.'s Prime Minister Boris Johnson committed through the 2030 UK-India Roadmap to work closely together on the best ways to drive the green growth agenda. They reaffirmed their personal commitment to work together for an ambitious outcome in November and sustained action countries of the world to Glasgow moment to get the world on track to address the enormous threat of climate change and build a cleaner, brighter future for everyone.

In 2015, the world signed the Paris Agreement, to limit global temperature rises to well below 2°C, aiming for 1.5°C, because the science tells us that would avoid the worst effects of climate change.

Emissions have to be cut

In terms of limiting warming, every fraction of a degree makes a difference. An average global temperature rise of 2°C, compared to 1.5°C, would see hundreds of millions more people affected. The Climate Action Tracker estimates that countries' current emissions reduction targets have us on course for average temperature rises of 2.4°C. To limit warming to When the U.K. welcomes the 1.5°C, we must halve global emissions by 2030. So this is the deci-

> This is what makes this year's COP so critical, and as hosts of COP26, the U.K. is pressing for urgent action around four key goals.

> First, to keep 1.5°C within reach, globally, we need to reach net zero by the middle of this century. To achieve this we will need to take strong action over the next decade. In the U.K. we have found that setting ambitious short-term targets backed up by a net zero target has given a clear signal that the future is low carbon. India will reach its own decisions, but I firmly believe India has an opportunity to show that a different development path is possible. An opportunity to be at the forefront of a new global green transition with all the benefits of jobs and cleaner air that brings. India has already proved it has the innovation and political will to do this. India has auadrupled wind and solar capacity in the last decade.

Our second goal is to protect people and nature from the worst effects of climate change. Even as the world has been dealing with the novel coronavirus pandemic. the dangers of global warming have continued to become more

Having been born in India and having spent time as the U.K.'s Secretary of State for International Development, I am committed that this COP will deliver for the climate change. The two cyclones, Tauktae and Yaas, that hit India last month, show that we must act on the very real need for flood defences, warning systems and other vital efforts to minimise, avert and address the loss and damage caused by climate change. India's CDRI, which the U.K. is proud to partner on, is already a great initiative towards this.

Funding promise

Our third goal is for developed countries to deliver the $100 billion they promised annually to support developing countries. The U.K. is pushing for all developed countries to increase their climate finance commitments ahead of finance and technology to meet the needs of countries such as India in their transition. This is a personal priority for me, one that I am committing to work tirelessly to deliver – we need all developed countries to step up, as it is a matter of trust.

Working as a team

Fourth, we must work together to deliver on these goals. That includes building consensus among governments for an ambitious, balanced and inclusive outcome - so that the negotiations in Glasgow are a success. As well as bringing businesses and civil society on and building up international collaboration in critical sectors.

We must act now, to launch a concerted effort to reduce emissions throughout the next decade. And use the COVID-19 recovery to reimagine our economies, building a better future.

I call on all countries to step up efforts on these goals, because COP26 is our last chance for keeping hopes of limiting global warming to 1.5°C alive, and our best chance of building a brighter future; a future of green jobs and cleaner air

This is our moment. There are no second chances. Let us seize it together.

Court on sedition In recent years, mere criticism against the government of the day has been found sufficient to initiate sedition charges. Against this background, the Supreme Court of India's quashing a sedition case registered against a senior journalist sends a clear message (Page 1, "'Journalists need protection against sedition charges'," June 4). The actions of the government spring from laws enacted by the British in the pre-Independence era. While quashing the sedition charges, the top court has not laid down any new rules. Given that the ruling dispensation is using this existing law liberally to act against those who criticise it, it is time the law is amended to define clearly what is sedition and what is

D. SETHURAMAN, ■ The judiciary has ensured that Indian democracy

remains alive and kicking. Except for a short period during the Emergency, the freedom to question and criticise leaders including the Prime Minister was a given with none of the prickliness displayed by this government. It is unfortunate that the mainstream media often baulks at giving space to critics of the government. Though social media channels have given many a platform to voice their opinions, it remains to be seen how long this space too remains free. ANTHONY HENRIQUES,

■ The original wording of the sedition law is the cause for its continuous misuse and there is enough equivocation in its range to be able to suppress a great deal of activities. Even if there is a decline in the rate of conviction in such cases, and the person is acquitted, there is every likelihood that he may be targeted by applying the law again. This aspect of the law adversely affects a person's freedom of speech and expression. It is ironic that conviction is not required to stifle dissidence. The Supreme Court's intervention is important to ensure that citizens are not robbed of their right of freedom of speech and expression. VENU G.S.. Kalluvathukkal, Kollam, Kerala

On the trail The modus operandi of all Indian white collar criminals is well known. Yet, when it comes to action, success seems to elude us, with none of those who feature at the top of the list brought back to India. The perception this creates is that the law seems to be on their side. Perhaps there needs to be global action taken at, say the level of the United Nations to ensure that laws governing matters concerned with economic offenders are amended. Meanwhile, there are no signs that white collar crimes are decreasing. India's banks on the other hand seem to be the main losers. GOVARDHANA MYNEEDU,

Doctors in peril

The profession which imparts life to the masses is now seen to be begging for life. What a shame. The recent incidents of violence against doctors in Assam and Karnataka are outright barbaric. Surprisingly enough, we, as doctors, have no support of the masses, no media channel to highlight our plight and no human rights activists to protest against these acts. We spend endless hours of service trapped in a PPE suit and with utmost dedication in handling this pandemic. There has to be legislation or an amendment of existing laws to deal with and reduce DR. HRIDDHI BHATTACHARYA.

■ The prevailing violence against doctors, especially during the COVID-19 pandemic, is jeopardising not only the lives of doctors but also the lives of those patients dependent on the doctors. The Government of India should amend the Epidemic Diseases Act, 1897, and add a clause for severe punishment against those who perpetrate atrocities against doctors. SANDEEP GOYAL, Uncharitable comment It is unfortunate that Justice Vipin Sanghi of the Delhi High Court, while commenting on the Centre's vaccination policy, has questioned it for prioritising older people over the younger population. He has tried to justify his statement with his most uncharitable remarks, that the '80 year olds are not going to carry this country forward. They have lived their lives....' He has conveniently forgotten that it is only the hard work and sacrifices of many elders that have made India into the good state it is today. Extending or otherwise the complete lockdown, especially in Tamil Nadu, lies in the hands of the people. In Gujarat, a crisis of epidemic proportions

While the ferocious second wave of COVID-19 is slowly on the wane, Gujarat has recorded the highest number of mucormycosis cases in the country. Mahesh Langa reports on how a State with poor public health infrastructure and manipulated data was unprepared to tackle the surge in cases

In April, Bhavesh Desai (name changed), 56, was happily dreaming of a peaceful retired life in two years when he was suddenly assailed by two infections, one after the other. First, all food became insipid and Desai lost his sense of smell – both symptoms of CO-VID-19. By the time the RT-PCR test result came bearing bad news, the Class 2 government employee in Ahmedabad with two children had developed a fever and cough. With his condition worsening, Desai began searching for a hospital bed. Two days later, he found one in a private hospital where he was treated for two weeks. By the time he recovered, Desai was fatigued but relieved.

However, within a few days, Desai's cheeks began to swell like small melons and his muscles became numb. He was referred to the Civil Hospital, where he was diagnosed with mucormycosis, commonly called the 'black fungus'. Desai had never heard of it. He was shocked to learn that this aggressive infection could affect his eyes, nose and even brain. Desai found himself back in hospital. This time, the doctors had to remove his left eye to save his life. "I don't know if I should feel happy that I have survived two deadly infections or sad about losing an eye. The other eye has just 70% vision," he says.

Desai is among the 5,000 cases of mucormycosis that have been reported as of June 3 in Gujarat. Official records state that more than 250 people have died from the invasive fungal infection. With the State already grappling with a deadly COVID-19 wave, the rise in cases of 'black fungus' is a new cause of concern.

A surge in mucormycosis cases

Over the past few weeks, mucormycosis cases have increased across Gujarat, with Ahmedabad, Surat and Rajkot reporting very high numbers, particularly among those patients who, during prolonged hospitalisation, were administered high doses of steroids and antibiotics. Patients suffering from the fungal infection usually have a stuffy and bleeding nose, swelling of the eyes, blurred vision, and droopy eyelids.

"In Ahmedabad Civil Hospital, we have had 850 patients with mucormycosis. The ENT division has conducted 498 surgeries on patients who had the fungal infection," says J.V. Modi, Medical Superintendent of Civil Hospital. At the time of going to print, more than 100 patients with mucormycosis were waiting in hospitals for their operations. "In Surat alone, around 100 people must have lost their eye or even their jaw bone due to the infection. It is more dangerous than COVID-19," says a doctor from Surat's Civil Hospital.

According to doctors, mucormycosis normally progresses slowly from the nose to the eyes and brain, but the real enemy this time is COVID-19. A host of factors can trigger mucormycosis. First is a weak immune system. The heavy use of steroids during COVID-19 treatment among diabetic patients can increase their sugar levels and create a conducive environment for the fungus to grow and thrive in the body, they say. So, a rational use of steroids and constant monitoring of sugar levels are important.

Though the State Health Department declared the fungal infection as an epidemic and created separate wards in Civil Hospitals in Ahmedabad, Surat and Rajkot, it has not made public the details of the number of cases, deaths, surgeries conducted, or people who have lost their vital organs as a consequence of the infection.

"As soon as the second wave of CO-VID-19 started declining in Surat, the city witnessed a sudden surge in mucormycosis cases," says Manoj Mistry, a newspaper editor from the Diamond City, which saw thousands of COVID-19 deaths from early March to mid-May.

The government has also not fixed the treatment costs for patients of mucormycosis who are being attended to in private hospitals even though Gujarat had emerged as the State with the highest number of mucormycosis cases in India by the second week of May.

Luckily for Desai, treatment for the infection in Civil Hospital, a government hospital, did not cost him much. However, his stay at a private hospital for two weeks for COVID-19 treatment depleted his savings by half. "Despite the charges capped by the government for COVID-19 treatment in private hospitals, it's still very high and beyond the means of any middle-class family," he

Those who been treated in private hospitals for both the infections have paid huge sums for treatment. "More than COVID-19, treatment for mucormycosis is expensive because it also involves delicate surgery by specialist doctors," a medical practitioner says. "Normal surgery will cost not less than ₹1 lakh in addition to expenses on medicines, hospitalisation and so on."

To tackle the epidemic, the Gujarat government notified a State-controlled distribution policy of the anti-fungal drug Amphotericin-B, used to treat mucormycosis, for private hospitals after the issue of shortage of the drug was taken up by the Gujarat High Court that sought a response from the State government. And on May 27, an 11-member State-level task force comprising experts and doctors was formed and will play a key role in framing Gujarat's policy on mucormycosis treatment.

Throwing caution to the winds

Meanwhile, the government is also busy trying to get the pandemic under control. Gujarat has seen an avalanche of COVID-19 cases during the second wave. On March 1, 427 daily cases and one death were reported. This shot up to 2,410 daily cases and three deaths on April 1 and then 13,847 daily cases and 172 deaths on May 1. On June 1, there were 1,561 daily cases and 22 deaths.

The virus has officially killed about 6,000 people since mid-March. However, data from hospitals, crematoria and burial grounds suggest that the number of deaths is as high as 15 times the official number. According to doctors, the official data on deaths capture only those who did not have co-morbidities and died of COVID-19. "For those who had COVID-19 but also suffered from diabetes or hypertension, the cause of death is attributed to the co-morbidity," a medical practitioner says. Leading regional language newspapers such as Gujarat Samachar and Sandesh have raised questions on the government's data by devoting increasing numbers of pages to obituaries. The State government has also not been forthcoming about casualties in homes. However, the Chief Minister has maintained that the State follows the guidelines of the Indian Council of Medical Research. During the second wave, the virus also spread to remote villages, where public health infrastructure is especially rickety in such demanding times, making the government's work even more challeng-

The Gujarat government seemed illprepared for the brutality of the second wave. From December 2020, the State began to shut some of its COVID-19 care centres unlike neighbouring Maharashtra which kept them open and even began to build more such centres. Gujarat also dereserved COVID-19 beds in private and government hospitals since the pandemic appeared to be on the decline. In February, Gujarat turned its focus to elections for municipal corporations like Ahmedabad, Surat, Rajkot, Vadodara, Jamnagar and Bhavnagar, 31 district panchayats, 231 taluk panchayats, and 81 municipalities. Voting was held in two phases on February 21 and 27. In the first phase, all six municipal corporations went to vote and the results were declared on February 23. The results for the second phase of polling for panchayats and municipalities were declared on March 2.

In the run-up to the election, there was aggressive campaigning across the State. Much like in other parts of the country, caution was thrown to the winds at these gatherings. Neither the leaders nor the public observed physical distancing or wore masks despite the fact that the Chief Minister himself contracted the virus during campaigning.

"In Gujarat, the second wave was invited by the authorities and political parties which were more interested in local elections than in following CO-VID-19 norms. As soon as the elections ended in the State, COVID-19 cases began to surge," says a prominent doctor and member of the State government's COVID-19 task force. He adds that the cases had in fact started rising from the second week of February, but the authorities suppressed the data as holding elections was given more importance than public health.

"As a member of the medical fraternity, I am also partially responsible for not going public and warning government authorities as well as the public at large. As part of the IMA [Indian Medical Association], we should have expressed and communicated our apprehension about the second wave to the government," says another leading doctor.

By the first week of March, the pandemic curve began going north in the State and by mid-March, there was an alarming rise in cases and deaths in all the major cities. By the end of the third week, COVID-19 cases began to be reported from semi-urban places and by March end, from the villages. It was when cases began rising rapidly that the government began to prepare at a feverish pace, adding beds and ramping up facilities

"Undoubtedly, the local elections brought the virus to the villages, which had escaped its clutches during the first wave. Every village had an election meeting or a rally without any COVID-19 norms," says the District Collector of one of the worst-affected districts.

From mid-March onwards, the State administration shut down public transport services in the cities, banned mass gatherings, restricted movements in markets and religious places, and limited participation in social events and family events. However, those measures came too late. Many say these were attempts to close the stable door after the horse had bolted.

A summer of horror

April 2021 was arguably the most cruel month in the history of contemporary Gujarat. The healthcare sector was bursting at its seams and thousands of deaths were being reported every day. The administration appeared to be struggling in dealing with the crisis.

"It's not that the administration was not working but our all efforts were falling short because of the sheer number of cases and deaths that were taking place. We were overwhelmed. There was a shortage of hospital beds, essential medical supplies, ambulances, and even mortuary vans to take the dead to their final destination," a senior official says. The State and its people never anticipated a second wave, he says.

According to another bureaucrat, more people may have died for want of oxygen, hospital beds or essential medicines rather than COVID-19 in April. "We could have saved thousands of lives if there was an adequate number of beds, supply of oxygen and perhaps proper pandemic management," he

A senior staff member at Civil Hospital describes the situation as being "completely chaotic". "There were long queues of patients waiting to be admitted, there were 80-90 ambulances carrying patients for admission outside hospitals... At least 100 people must have died just waiting to be admitted,"

The administration was forced by the Gujarat High Court, which took suo moto cognisance of the situation, to swing into action. It was only after the High Court's intervention that the Health Department started conducting RT-PCR tests at all the district headquarters. Before that, there were no laboratory facilities to even conduct tests in half of the 33 districts of the State.

There also appeared to be no mechanism in place for oxygen procurement and supply in the initial stages of the second wave. After the situation became dire in April, the government appointed two bureaucrats as nodal officers for oxygen supply.

Though the State government has denied that deaths were caused due to the lack of oxygen, Mistry says patients have died without oxygen in several hospitals. Local media reported dozens of deaths in the north Gujarat and Saurashtra regions due to shortage of oxygen in hospitals in remote districts.

"The Centre had allotted 1,000 tonnes of oxygen to the State based on the number of cases and patients, while our requirement was around 1,350 tonnes. Why was Gujarat given less oxygen than required, you may ask. That is because it fudged cases and projected low figures," says a top bureaucrat and core group member who was involved in pandemic management.

The IMA in Ahmedabad and Surat even warned that there would be a law and order situation in the cities if oxygen supply was not ramped up in hospitals.

The neglect of public health

Gujarat's health infrastructure struggled to cope during the health emergency despite the fact that the State saw a lower number of daily cases compared to neighbouring Maharashtra or even southern States like Karnataka and Tamil Nadu. The official number of daily cases never crossed 20,000 in Gujarat compared to Maharashtra where daily cases touched 70,000 and Karnataka where they touched 50,000.

"Yet the situation seemed worse in Gujarat. All the figures from daily case numbers to daily tests to cases of hospitalisation and deaths were lower than the actual count. That made our job more difficult because the numbers were kept artificially low, but in reality, there were no beds available anywhere in the city," says the CEO of a top hospital in Ahmedabad.

There are huge numbers of vacancies in healthcare centres. There are almost 8,000 vacancies of medical and paramedical staff in the panchayat-run primary and community health centres in districts and municipal-run health centres in the cities, for instance.

"When the High Court asked the State government whether all the districts have HRCT (High Resolution Computed Tomography) machines to conduct CT scans since in certain cases the virus is not detected in RT-PCR tests, 15 out of 33 districts had no CT scan machines in government-run hospitals and health centres," wrote Congress spokesperson Manish Doshi to the Chief

In the last two decades, while the private health sector has grown visibly in cities like Ahmedabad, Rajkot, Surat and Vadodara, public healthcare has not seen concomitant growth. "The State will have to now promote public health infrastructure and manpower. The pandemic has shown that it cannot rely on the private sector to compensate for public health," a senior bureaucrat says. He says the State should follow the examples of Kerala or Tamil Nadu while investing in public health.

In 2017, the Comptroller and Auditor General of India pointed out in its audit report the poor healthcare conditions in districts and rural areas. It said that in some hospitals, patients were being forced to sleep on the floor in rural health centres as there were no beds available. The condition of rural and district hospitals and health centres does not seem to have improved since. Total spending on health remains below 4% of the Budget.

"In my district, in the main Civil Hospital, there were almost 700 patients with only a dozen medical staff including two doctors, a few nurses and paramedics to attend to them. This was the situation in April when the pandemic was at its peak," says a District Collector from the Saurashtra region. "If we don't draw proper lessons now and improve our healthcare, the next wave could be even more fatal," he says.

RBI holds rates, cuts GDP forecast

Explaining the rationale behind the MPC's decision, the RBI Governor said the forecast of a normal monsoon, the resilience of agriculture and the farm economy, the adoption of COVID compatible operational models by businesses and the gathering momentum of global recovery could all provide tailwinds to revival of domestic economic activity when the second wave abated.

"On the other hand, the spread of COVID-19 infections in rural areas and the dent on urban demand pose downside risks," he observed. Noting that the retail inflation reading for April at 4.3% had brought some relief and policy elbow room, Mr. Das said a normal southwest monsoon along with comfortable buffer stocks should help to keep cereal price pressures in check.

On the other hand, the rising trajectory of international crude prices within a broad-based surge in international commodity prices and logistics costs was worsening cost conditions. These developments could keep core price pressures elevated, although weak demand conditions may temper the pass-through to consumer inflation, he said.

Emphasising that upside risks to inflation emanate from persistence of the second wave and consequent restrictions on activity on a virtually pan-India basis, he said insulating prices of essential food items from supply side disruptions would necessitate active monitoring and preparedness for coordinated, calibrated and timely measures by both the Centre and Sates to prevent emergence of supply chain bottlenecks and increase in retail margins.

Delta variant led to most post-vaccine cases in Delhi

However international variant Alpha, that in previous studies has been associated with a spike in cases in Delhi in February and March was absent in vaccination breakthrough-cases analysed.

The study also reports a new mutation in Delta called T478K that the scientists believe has a role to play in allowing the coronavirus to better infiltrate huindicates "Our data B.1.617.2 shows high transmissibility and surges without any increase in the Case Fatality Ratio (CFR). We estimate the transmissibility to be as much as 50% greater than B.1.1.7. Viral load of B.1.617.2 appears to be higher than B.1.1.7 and based on data from India and UK, so does vaccination breakthrough rate. B.1.617.2 is capable of creating very fast rising outbreaks with vaccination breakthroughs," they note in their study. Anurag Agrawal, Director, CSIR-IGIB and among the authors of the paper said that while the variant was extremely transmissible, there was no single super spreader event that contributed to the rise of the Delta variant in Delhi. Previous studies had shown that the farmer protests and religious gatherings had contributed to amplifying the Alpha variant in North India. The latter variant has now been outcompeted by

"We should be doing more studies on the vaccine against various strains. We must also assess the risk to various populations, by age, to decide on the dosage of vaccine." Dr Agrawal said.

We are pursuing it." Dr. Paul cautioned that while India had been able to suppress the second wave, the virus could come back in case people don't act responsibly. "When the peak is declining, we should not suddenly get back to the same behaviour as before the second wave. We have to buy time to ensure we achieve a high coverage of vaccination," he pointed Lav Aggarwal, joint secretary, Health Ministry, providing details of the CO-VID-19 graph in the country, said there had been a continuous decrease in cases and recoveries were far exceeding the new cases. "Recoveries are exceeding the daily cases reported. There has been a steady decline in case positivity across the country. India has registered a continuous decrease in cases since its peak on May 7. If we analyse data in comparison to May 7, the highest reported peak, we are recording a 68% decline in daily cases," he said.

DAC nod for building 6 conventional submarines

It also approved procurement of air defence guns at a cost of ₹6,000 crore

DINAKAR PERI

The Defence Acquisition Council (DAC), headed by Defence Minister Rajnath Singh, on Friday approved the issuance of a Request For Proposal (RFP) for the construction of six conventional submarines under Project-75I at an estimated cost of ₹43,000 crore.

At a meeting, it also approved the procurement of air defence guns and ammunition for the Army at an approximate cost of ₹6,000

"This is a landmark approval, being the first case processed under the Strategic Partnership (SP) model. This would be one of the largest 'Make in India' projects and it will create a tiered industrial ecosystem for submarine construction in India," Mr. Singh said on Twitter on the submarine deal.

With this approval, India would be enabled to achieve its 30-year submarine construction programme envisioned by the government to acquire national competence in their building and for Indian industry to independently design and construct them, he noted.

The SP model of the Defence Procurement Procedure (DPP) aims to promote the role of Indian industry in manufacturing and build a domestic defence industrial ecosystem.

The delay in the deal was the extra caution at each step of the process as this was being done for the first time, officials had said. The modernisation of the Army's air defence guns has been a long pending proposal and the DAC accorded approval for the procurement of the guns and ammunition under the Buy & Make (Indian) category of the procurement procedure.

The Defence Ministry said that responses from about a dozen Indian companies had been received and "all of them have expressed their willingness and commitment to manufacture this complex gun system and associated equipment by ensuring technology assimilation in India."

BJP general secretaries' meet to be held

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

In what will be the BJP's first big in person interaction after the second wave of COVID-19 began, party president J.P. Nadda has called a meeting of national general secretaries on June 5 and 6.

The meeting's agenda includes preparations for 2022 Assembly elections, the situation arising out of COVID-19 and the party's own work in the interregnum. Punjab, Uttar Pradesh, Uttarakhand, Goa and Manipur are to go to the polls in early 2022 and Himachal Pradesh and Gujarat later the same year.

Thus, it will be a heavy calendar, and the BJP will be fighting the Congress in all these States, barring U.P. In all the States, except Punjab, the BIP will try to defend its governments.

BJP national general secretary (organisation), B.L. Santhosh, recently toured Uttarakhand and Uttar Pradesh and tried to calm embattled State units, reeling both under factionalism and the erosion of popular support because of the handling of the pandemic.

The Hindustan Institute of Technology and Science, along with The Hindu Group, is hosting a five-part webinar series on career guidance for students of Classes 10, 11 and 12 this month. The first session was held on 'Engineering Innovation, Product Development and Start-ups'. Yajulu Medury, Vice-

"We need an ecosystem where students can engage with corporates, start-ups, industry experts, partners, investors, accelerators, etc. Without this, the incubation and entrepreneurship innovation model will collapse," he said, drawing on the examples of Stanford University and IIT-Maentrepreneurship and tech-

Pension norms eased for families of deceased staff

Several govt. employees have died of COVID-19, says Centre

S. VIJAY KUMAR

The Union government has written to all Ministries relaxing the norms for disbursing pension to families of deceased employees considering their urgent need of funds for their livelihood.

The authorities have been told to disburse the provisional family pension immediately after receiving the claim with a certificate.

According to sources in the Railways, the Ministry of Personnel, Public Grievances and Pensions wrote to the Railway Board and Secretaries of all Ministries on Thursday on simplified payment of family pension, death gratuity and other dues to the family on death of a government servant during service saying that the COVID-19 pandemic had claimed the lives of several government employees during the recent surge.

Sole bread-winners

"In many cases, the deceased employees were the sole bread-winners of their families and the casualties have left families devastated and in an urgent need for funds for livelihood. It is, therefore, incumbent on the government to ensure that the family pension and other entitlements in respect of the deceased employees are released to their families expeditiously," the advisory

Family pension

Stating that the completion of the process for sanction of family pension and its disbursement through the bank could take some time, the department cited provisions under Rule 80-A of the Central Civil Service (Pension) Rules, 1972, that provided for payment of provisional family pension and also provisional death gratuity, pending issue of the Pension Payment Order (PPO).

The advisory urged all Ministries to strictly comply with an earlier order calling for sanction of provisional family pension by the Head of Office immediately on receipt of a claim for family pension and death certificate from the eligible family member, without waiting for forwarding of the family pension case to Pay & Accounts Office (PAO).

"Simultaneously, action may be taken on priority basis for disbursement of regular family pension through the bank and for payment of other entitlements of the family on death of the government servant. Push for citizenship to minority migrants

They can apply online; the awareness drive is not related to CAA, says official

VIJAITA SINGH

Migrants belonging to six non-Muslim minority communities from Pakistan, Afghanistan and Bangladesh who came to India on valid documents before 2014 are eligible to apply online for citizenship from any part of the country, a senior government official said.

In March, the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) wrote to all States, including Assam, sensitising them of the relevant provisions under the Citizenship Act, 1955 that could help the six communities-Hindus, Christians, Sikhs, Jains, Buddhists and Parsis, who entered India before 2014 and are here on long term visa (LTV), expedite their citizenship application.

The official asserted that this particular awareness drive was not related to the Citizenship (Amendment) Act, 2019 (CAA) that is intended to benefit undocumented (illegal migrants) from the six persecuted communities who entered India before December 31, 2014.

The CAA is yet to come into force as the rules that govern the law have not been notified by the Ministry yet.

Assam is the only State where a National Register of Citizens (NRC) has been compiled. More than 19 lakh of the 3.29 crore applicants in the State have been excluded from the final register. The State government has demanded reverification of the process as a large number of Hindus were left out. The excluded persons from the six communities, who are yet to be declared illegal migrants, will benefit from the CAA as and when it is implemented as legislation benefits such migrants from the three neighbouring countries who entered India illegally before A day ago, leader of the

'It is questionable in its intent'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

The Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA) is a universalised programme for any adult living in rural areas who is willing to do manual work, and law can't be reinterpreted to introduce a policy of divisible allocations by social categories, CPI(M) Polit Bureau member Brinda Karat has said in a letter to Union Rural Development Minister

Narendra Singh Tomar. The Rural Development Ministry has issued an advisory to the States asking them to ensure social categorisation in every aspect of the implementation of the law- from the projected expenditure for anticipated demand among SC/ST households in the Labour budget, to separate State level accounting for wage payments to SC and ST categories, to utilisation certificates and so on. The advisory is questionable in its intent and highly bureaucratic in its conception, Ms. Karat wrote. "The MNREGA is a universalized programme for any adult living in rural India who is willing to do manual work. The budgetary provisions are made for the implementation of the law as a whole. Thus, this cannot be determined by any new interpretations of the law to introduce a policy of divisible allocations by social categories, which is what the advisory appears to be," she stated. The Ministry had indicated that the categorisation could be linked to budget allocation. And the changes have been made without holding any consultations, she pointed out.

The main issue at present was the lack of work available under MGNREGA. "The average days of work in April-May this year of just 20 days per household is less than last year," she said.

2-3 million doses expected; Centre welcomes lifting of restrictions on vaccine ingredient exports

SUHASINI HAIDAR

The government on Friday welcomed the U.S. decision to lift restrictions under its Defence Production Act on the export of vaccine ingredients to AstraZeneca vaccine manufacturers worldwide, which would help the Serum Institute of India produce more doses.

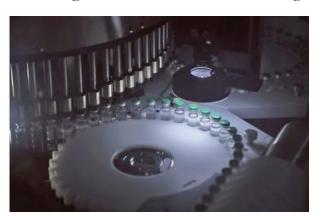

However, Washington's announcement of gifting India and dozens of other countries with a first tranche of 25 million doses of assorted American vaccines could run into regulatory delays, as issues of indemnity and authorisation have not been resolved at present.

"Indian diplomacy is focussed on securing the vaccine supply chain," said External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar, who had raised the issue of easing U.S. exports of vaccine ingredients and components to India during his visit to Washington last week. On Thursday, the U.S. White House announced that it was relaxing export restrictions for U.S. companies to supply manufacturers of AstraZeneca, Novavax, and Sanofi vaccines.

"This policy change will hopefully increase the supply of raw materials globally and to India; boosting our vaccine production capacity and strengthening our united fight against this pandemic," tweeted SII CEO Adar Poonawalla, thanking Mr. Jaishankar and U.S. President Joseph Biden for the Supply of doses

"As a result, India's dose will not be more than about two to three million doses in total," estimated one government official, pointing out that India is vaccinating about 2.8 million people a day at present.

It is also unclear how quickly these vaccines could be distributed in India, given procedures and approvals required. Meanwhile, the issues over granting indemnities or a waiver of liabilities in case of adverse effects of the vaccines have not yet been resolved between the government and manufacturers. According to MEA sources, the government expects that Washington will help in ensuring that the vaccines being gifted will adhere to local regulations on indemnity. The government also hopes that the U.S. will redouble efforts to disburse the bigger tranche of 60 million AstraZeneca vaccines at the earliest, as these have the approvals needed.

Serum Institute gets DCGI's nod to produce Sputnik V

The output will be analysed at the Hadapsar facility in Pune

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

The DCGI has granted permission to the Serum Institute of India (SII) to manufacture the Sputnik COVID-19 vaccine in India for examination, test and analysis with certain conditions, official sources said on Friday.

The Pune-based firm has collaborated with Gamaleya Research Institute of Epidemiology and Microbiology, Moscow in Russia for developing Sputnik V at its licensed Hadapsar facility. "The DCGI has granted permission to the Serum Institute to manufacture the Sputnik COVID-19 vaccine in India for examination, test and analysis at its licensed Hadapsar facility with certain conditions," an official source said.

Further, the SII has to submit a copy of the RCGM permission to import cell bank and virus stock and a copy of the RCGM permission to initiate research and development of viral vector vaccine Sputnik V, the sources said. This licence, unless suspended or revoked, will be enforced for a period of three years from the date of its issuance on June 4.

The SII on May 18 had also applied to the Review Committee on Genetic Manipulation (RCGM), Department of Biotechnology seeking clearance for import of strains/ seed lots and cell banks, and for carrying out research and development, the official sources said.

The RCGM has raised some queries over SII's application and has sought a copy of material transfer agreement between the Pune-based firm and the Gamaleya Research Institute of Epidemiology and Microbiology.

CBSE introduces coding, data sciences as modules

They are offered for skill development

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

The Central Board of Secondary Education (CBSE) has introduced coding and data sciences as skill modules in its curriculum this year, in collaboration with software giant Microsoft.

This is in accordance with last year's National Education Policy, which recommended the introduction of coding-related activities from the middle school level, and also called for increased integration of a variety of skills into the school syllabus.

Simple tools

The CBSE currently offers nine such skill modules in middle school, and up to 38 skill subjects for older classes. Coding is now being introduced as a skill module with a duration of 12 hours for Classes 6-8. "The idea is to simplify the coding learning experience by nurturing design thinking, logical flow of ideas and apply this across the disciplines. The foundations laid in the early years will help the students to build the competencies in the area of AI, Data Sciences and other disciplines," said the notification sent to all CBSE schools on June 3.

Noting the importance of giving students a solid foundation on data science and technology, a skill module of 12 hours' duration has been introduced for Class 8 students, along with a more in-depth skill subject in Classes 9 -12.

The CBSE announced that it would waive the application fee for schools which wish to introduce these subjects from Class 11 onwards.

AAI proposes salary deferral, revocation of perks

JAGRITI CHANDRA NEW DELHI

Steeped in losses due to the impact of COVID-19, the Airports Authority of India (AAI) has proposed a slew of measures, including salary and allowances' deferral, and revocation of certain perks, besides seeking financial support from the government. Due to the fall in traffic at various airports, the AAI has incurred losses for the first time since its inception. It registered a 65% decline in its revenue in financial year 2021, from ₹12,837 crore in FY 2020 to ₹4,482 crore, resulting in a loss of ₹2,814 crore as compared to a profit of ₹1,985 crore.

At a meeting with the employees union and eight other staff associations on Thursday, the management proposed salary deferral, according to those who were part of the discussion. It suggested delaying payment of allowances comprising 35% of the salary till next year, discontinuation of payment for overtime and a review of the leave encashment policy.

Opposition leaders question Jagan, Patnaik's letters to CMs

Jairam Ramesh says they should instead ask the PM

SOBHANA K. NAIR NEW DELHI

Opposition leaders remain sceptical about the recent letters written by Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister Iaganmohan Reddy and Odisha Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik to other Chief Ministers criticising the Centre's vaccination policy.

Unlike Kerala Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan and his Iharkhand counterpart Hemant Soren's letters, where they demanded universally free vaccines, both Mr. Reddy and Mr. Patnaik have limited themselves to supply side problems and demanded that the Centre should handle the procurement. Mr Patnaik said the global manufacturers were looking at the Union government for clearances and assurances. Mr. Reddy was more upfront in conceding that the global tender floated by the Andhra government did not receive any bidders because the situation had been reduced to "centre vs state". "The decision of giving the States a larger say in the vaccination procurement was something that was unwarranted," Mr. Reddy wrote. Mr. Patnaik talked about arriving at a "consensus", while Mr. Reddy wrote about the necessity to speak in "one voice". Senior Congress leader Jairam Ramesh has questioned both the Chief Ministers asking them to question Prime Minister Narendra Modi instead of writing to fellow Chief Ministers.

To Mr. Reddy, he said, "All I ask Jagan is: who made the vaccine issue Union vs States? Who unilaterally decided the Union govt will abdicate vaccinating 18-44 year olds? Why weren't states consulted before this policy was rolled out? Why don't you ask the PM these questions?"

For Mr. Patnaik also, Mr. Ramesh had a similar response. "It's all very well for Odisha CM to write to all CMs, but why can't he write to PM & persuade him? After all, BJD has always supported BJP in Parliament for past 7 years. Several like-minded parties have already written to PM earlier asking for procurement of vaccines by Union Govt," he tweeted.

> The Opposition scepticism also stems from the fact that both the BID and the Congress have often found themselves on the BJP side on critical issues in Parliament.

CPI(M) general secretary Sitaram Yechury said that both Mr. Patnaik and Mr. Reddy, along with other Chief Ministers, should ensure that the Centre is not allowed to abdicate its elementary responsibility. "So far the BJD and the YSR Congress have supported the BJP government in Parliament. Now it is up to them to put pressure on the Centre to conduct free and universal vaccination."

CPI general secretary D Raja said, "I believe both the Chief Ministers should take an unambiguous position and question the failure of the Union government."

Expedite process of filling up iudicial vacancies, CJI tells CJs

He moots virtual hearing facility in every courtroom

KRISHNADAS RAJAGOPAL NEW DELHI

The Chief Justice of India, N.V. Ramana, asked the Chief Justices of High Courts to ensure that recommendations for judicial appointments to the High Courts reflect the social diversity of the country.

Chief Justice Ramana said this during his first-ever live and direct interaction with High Court Chief Justices. The discussion spanned two days and four sessions. The CJI also placed before the Chief Justices of High Courts the representations made by various Bar bodies to include lawyers primarily practising in the Supreme Court in the zone of consideration while recommending the names of judges for their High Courts.

The CJI also reminded the Chief Justices to expedite the process of filling up vacancies, particularly in the High Courts. This was a follow up to the letter the CJI had written to the CJs of High Courts in the first week of May.

During the interaction, the Chief Justice of Madras HC told the CJI about the vaccine hesitancy seen in some areas of the State. The Chief Justice of the Madras High Court, however, conveyed his satisfaction with the vaccination drive. The session also saw the CJI convey to the Chief Justices his vision to draw from the experience of the pandemic and build modern, self-contained courts with a permanent facility to hold virtual hearings in every courtroom. He reiterated his wish to create a National Judicial Infrastructure Corporation and take forward a "nation plan" for judicial infrastructure. The High Court Chief Justices also flagged the apparent "digital divide" seen in rural and tribal areas. They said the lack of digital connectivity had impacted judicial functioning. A proposal for mobile video conferencing vans was discussed. Chief Justice Ramana assured the High Courts that the Supreme Court would take up with the Centre the highlighted issues regarding sufficient vaccine supply, connectivity and court infrastructure.

cooperation given by the Ta-

Twitter storm seeks chapter on the northeast in NCERT books

YouTuber's remark triggers online stir

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

A Punjab-based YouTuber's racial slur against an Arunachal Pradesh MLA fuelled a "know northeast" campaign via a two-hour Twitter storm on Friday.

Students, academics, pro fessionals, politicians and activists across the eight northeastern States - Arunachal Pradesh, Assam, Manipur, Meghalaya, Mizoram, Nagaland, Sikkim and Tripura - bombarded the microblogging site with #AchapterforNE #NortheastMatters campaigns from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The campaign tagging was aimed at pushing the National Council of Educational Research and Training

Paras Singh

(NCERT) to include a comprehensive chapter on the northeast. More than 25 students' organisations across the region lent their support to the campaign.

Assam-based student Mayur Jyoti Kaushik, who is behind the campaign, said the region deserved a chapter in NCERT textbooks as a primer for students elsewhere in the country to know basic geography, history, ethnicity, culture and the lifestyle of the people of the northeastern States.

"If all in the region unite for this, we can ask the Union Ministry of Education to include a chapter so that our counterparts beyond the region do not grow up ignorant about the Northeast and make comments like the YouTuber," he said.

YouTuber Paras Singh was arrested and brought to Arunachal Pradesh capital Itanagar on May 27 for calling Congress MLA and former MP Ninong Ering and the people of the State "Chinese". The YouTuber had ridiculed the MLA for appealing to Prime Minister Narendra Modi to ban Battlegrounds Mobile India, a variant of PUBG.

As punishment, the Arunachal Pradesh police have been teaching geography, history and other aspects of the State to the YouTuber.

HC imposes fine on Juhi Chawla in 5G case

Court says the plea was a 'publicity stunt'

STAFF REPORTER NEW DELHI

The Delhi High Court on Friday rejected Bollywood actor Juhi Chawla's suit against the rollout of 5G technology in India, terming it a "publicity stunt" done without any personal knowledge of the issue.

Justice J.R. Midha also imposed a cost of ₹20 lakh on the petitioners – Ms. Chawla, Veeresh Malik and Teena Vachani - for wasting the court's time.

The plaint is stuffed with unnecessary, scandalous, frivolous and vexatious to be struck down," the court said. The petitioners admitted to having knowledge with regard to only certain paragraphs of the petition, and a major portion of it was "based on information and legal advice".

It also issued a contempt notice to an unidentified person who disrupted the online hearing on Wednesday by singing hit songs from Ms. Chawla's movies.

INS Sandhayak decommissioned

The hydrographic survey ship was built indigenously

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Hydrographic survey ship INS Sandhayak, the first of its class indigenously designed and built, was decommissioned after 40 years of service, at the Naval Dockyard Visakhapatnam on Friday in a low-key event attended only by in-station officers and sailors, in line with COVID-19 protocols.

At sunset, the Naval Ensign and the Commissioning Pennant were brought down for the last time onboard INS Sandhayak in the presence of Vice Adm A.B. Singh, Flag Commanding-in-Chief (FOC-in-C), Eastern Naval Command (ENC), symbolising the decommissioning, a Navy statement said.

The ship was conceptualised by the then Chief Hydrographer to the Government of India, Rear Adm FL Fraser, who had a strong desire for indigenously designed and built hydrographic survey vessels in India, the Navy said. The design was finalised by Naval Headquarters and the construction began at Garden Reach Ship Builders Limited (GRSE) Kolkata (then Calcutta) by laying the keel in 1978. The ship was commissioned into the Navy on February 26, 1981, by Vice Adm M.K. Roy, then FOC-in-C, ENC.

"Since commissioning, the ship has been the alma mater, nurturing the hydrographers of the Navy and laying the foundation for a com-of the peninsular waters," the Navy said. Also, the success of her design paved the way for all the survey ships in various modifications till recently, it stated. It said the ship had undertaken approximately 200 major hydrographic surveys and numerous minor surveys in both the east and west coasts of the country, the Andaman seas and neighbouring coun-

SC seeks response on Asaram Bapu's plea

He sought treatment near Haridwar

LEGAL CORRESPONDENT

The Supreme Court on Friday asked the Rajasthan government to respond to a plea by Asaram Bapu, who is serving a life sentence in sexual assault cases, for permission to undergo treatment at an ayurvedic centre near Haridwar in Uttarakhand.

The top court, however, observed orally that it was not inclined to grant interim bail by suspending the selfstyled godman's sentence for two months to enable him to get "holistic" treatment at a medical centre of his choice. "Issue notice [to Rajasthan government]," a Bench led by Justice B.R. Gavai directed. The court listed the case for hearing on

In April 2018, the Jodhpur court had sentenced Asaram to life imprisonment after finding him guilty of raping a girl at his ashram in 2013. He was also convicted in a 2002 rape case and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Asaram is also facing a rape case in Surat in Gujarat. He was arrested in Indore and brought to Jodhpur on September 1, 2013. He was under judicial custody since September 2, 2013.

SC rejects plea against HC order on scribe

LEGAL CORRESPONDENT

The Supreme Court on Friday rejected an appeal filed by a 22-year-old woman against a Delhi High Court (HC) order granting anticipatory bail to a Mumbai journalist whom she had accused of rape.

The court said it found no reason to interfere with the HC's order of May 13 protecting journalist Varun Hiremath from arrest. "The question is of normal human conduct ... If a man and woman are in a room, the man makes a request and the woman complies with it, do we need to say anything more?" the court said at one point.

Brick kiln owners help Odisha workers return home Volunteers and administration facilitate travel

BHUBANESWAR

In his decade-long annual migration to outside States for working in brick-kilns, Haladhar Thapa, a worker from Odisha's Balangir district, has perhaps for the first time returned home with a sense of dignity.

Often packed like sardines in unreserved train compartments, Mr. Thapa's travel back home used to be as exploitative as were his working conditions in brick-kilns. This year, however, may be an exception.

With the second wave of the COVID-19 pandemic disrupting lives everywhere, brick kiln operators have funded train fares for migrant workers to travel back home. Masks, sanitisers and food packets have also been provided to them. Learning from the workers' traumatic experience during the first wave, some voluntary organisations, brick kiln owners and State government officials had planned for the return of workers. "A fortnight ago, I had booked tickets for 42 workers from Hyderabad to different districts of Odisha. They left for home on June 1. They should not contract the virus during their travel. We wanted these workers to come back and work with us again," said Kondappa Naidu, who operates a brick kiln in Telangana. Mr. Naidu admitted that this was the first time he had booked tickets for workers employed by him.

mind the vulnerability of workers, labour activists began consultations with brickkiln operators in Tamil Nadu and Telangana in advance. "By the first week of May, workers had become desperate to return home. However, Odisha's second wave of COVID-19 was peaking around that time," said Umi Daniel of Aide et Action. "We motivated them to stay back in brick kilns, which are a little safer as they are situated in isolated locations, for some more time," he said. After rounds of discussions with brick kiln owners, it was agreed that train fare would be funded. Districts administrations back in Odisha were informed in advance about the workers' return.

As of now, 300 workers This time, keeping in have returned by travelling in reserved compartments. They were tested at temporary medical centres. Around 3.000 workers are expected to come back home via similar arrangements by June 15. Volunteers are constantly keeping in touch with the workers. "A system has also been put in place to monitor their health status at their villages. Some alert workers have been given guidance over the phone to identify COVID-19 symptoms. They are expected to inform the nearest government authorities if anyone develops such symptoms," said Jyoti Prakash Brahma, another activist.

Nammazhvar's uniqueness

Nammazhvar is unique in many ways. He helped in the rediscovery of the Divya Prabandham. When Nathamuni heard pilgrims from Melkote sing Nammazhvar's verses, he set off to discover the Divya Prabandham. Secondly, other Azhvars did not mention their names in their verses. So if some other Azhvar's verses had been sung by the pilgrims, Nathamuni would not have had a clue about the authorship, said M.A. Venkatakrishnan in a discourse. Thirumangai Azhvar also mentioned his name at the end of each set of verses. But he did not say that that set was part of a thousand verses. Whereas, Nammazhvar concludes each decad by saying that these ten verses were composed by Kurugur Sadagopan (Nammazhvar), and that these were part of the thousand verses which he had composed. So at the end of every decad, we get to know that there were thousand verses in his Thiruvaimozhi. There are more causes to celebrate Nammazhvar. When Nathamuni went to Kurugur, he met one who had come in the tradition of Madurakavi Azhvar. Madurakavi was the only one whose verses in the Divya Prabandham are not about Lord Narayana, but are about his Acharya Nammazhvar. When Nathamuni recited the eleven verses of Madurakavi before the Nammazhvar shrine in Kurugur, Nammazhvar gave him knowledge of not only his own works, but of the entire divine output of the Azhvars.

Nammazhvar's works give us the essence of the Vedas. His verses are recited in temples during utsavas, and Kamban says that if not for such recitation, what is the charm in utsavas? Vedanta Desika says that with the help of Nammazhvar's works, we understand the esoteric meaning of the Vedas.

KRISHNA SHASTRI DEVULAPALLI

Dear Landomus Realty Ventures,

Let me tell you how delighted I am on seeing your heart-warming ad in a prominent newspaper addressing our leadership. Your desire to invest $500 billion in our country's National Infrastructure Pipeline (NIP) couldn't have come at a better time. Your dream of making India a global destination by supporting the completion of projects in energy, social infrastructure, manufacturing, etc, is indeed commendable.

While our indefatigable leaders may take some time to get back to you regarding your exciting offer, considering how busy they are now, as a dynamic, atmanirbhar citizen of New India, I have taken the liberty of responding to your letter with a small project that you could undertake in the interim. I assure you, it will enhance your reputation in no small way as a serious player in the infrastructure field. That your establishment is located in Secaucus, New Jersey, makes my proposal that much more poignant.

Getting right to it, if you have read my previous columns, you may be aware of Ambujam Mami. Now, serendipitously, her second daughter lives in New Jersey. This brings us to my proposal: lending your support to completing Mami's long-delayed arangetram project.

A little back story here. Mami's arangetram was originally scheduled to be held at NJ's own legendary State Theatre on September 12, 2001. Invites were sent out, videographers were ready, caterers had made rava kesari with extra cashew. It was, as they say, all systems go. The previous day's incident, unfortunately, put paid to Mami's dream. She recovered though, with intense coconut-oil-based ayurvedic therapy in Kerala, and with renewed vigour, set a date in August 2005. She chose Hallandale Beach, of the auditorium. Alas, Hurricane Katrina made landfall on that precise day. I prefer not to mention the Ambujam Mami's aborted arangetrams because they're bound to make us all revisit buried traumas. Suffice it to say, her arangetram saga is the tragic version of Forrest

Anyway, she is fighting fit now. Twenty years of non-stop practise have made her a Black Belt in Bharatanatyam (there is a school offering one here, BTW) and Sundaram Mama develop a permanent, if alarming, facial tic that makes him look like Lalita Pawar. All we are asking for is an outlay of a mere $100, 000, jujube for someone with $500 billion. Don't dismiss our proposal hastily, sirs, saying our ambitious yet low-cost project has nothing to do with any of the sectors you are interested in. It does. More than you can imagine. Your interests lie in the energy, social infrastructure, manufacturing, transport, food processing, water, and sanitisation sectors, don't they? Any good arangetram requires inputs from all these sectors. A lot of energy will be required to power the twinkling serial lights on Ambujam Mami's 40-foot cut-out. Social infrastructure, you say? What is an arangetram if not education, community, play, youth, recreation, sports, and faith, all combined? As for manufacturing, we will be making cut-outs, printing invites, tailoring dresses, won't we? Don't even make us explain transport, food processing, water, and sanitisation, okay? People will travel to the venue, eat processed food, drink water, and go to the loo. All covered. Looking forward to an early response from you, sirs. Let's make India great.

Yours in anticipation,

Big shorts

Make time this weekend for Pedro Almodovar's lockdown film. The Human Voice, before journeying to the past with Satyajit Ray and others

NAMAN RAMACHANDRAN

When you think of auteurs, it is usually in connection with a feature film or films of theirs, not shorts. Many of them do begin with shorts as calling cards, before going on to global fame with feature films. For example, you may know Martin Scorsese for several features, including Taxi Driver and Raging Bull, but one of the films he cut his cinematic teeth with was the short The Big Shave (1967). Similarly, while you may delight in Christopher Nolan's work, including Inception and Interstel*lar*, few remember him for the short Doodlebug (1997).

What I'm looking at this week is shorts that auteurs made after they'd already achieved international acclaim. Spanish filmmaker Pedro Almodovar was coming off the majestic Pain and Glory (2019) when he directed, in lockdown no less, the 30-minute short The Human Voice (2020). Almodovar had directed several shorts before his breakthrough Pepi, Luci, Bom (1980). But this film, now available in India via bookmyshow, showcases a master working at the height of his powers. A free adaptation of Jean Cocteau's monodrama of the same name, The Human Voice stars the ethereal Tilda Swinton as a woman who has broken up with someone but can't get over him or her. It is a solo performance, with Swinmonologue (we can't hear what her interlocutor is saying).

Swinton's co-star is the apartment set she is in. And what an apartment it is, production designed to within an inch of its life by frequent Almodovar collaborators Antxón Gómez and María Clara Notari. The last time you might have seen an apartment so striking was in Pain and Glory, where it was Almodovar's own living quarters that were gussied up. With The Human Voice, the director obviously rediscovered his appetite for shorts as he has two more in the works.

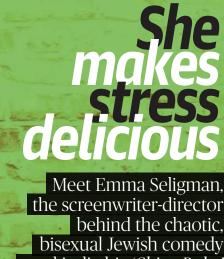

Another filmmaker who frequently returns to shorts amidst his feature film work is Hong Kong master Wong Kar Wai. After the film In The Mood For ton at one end of a phone in a Love (2000), arguably the pinnacle of his career so far, he made several shorts, notable amongst which are the DJ Shadow music video Six Davs (2002); The Follow (2001), his segment of a series of BMW motors' shorts collectively known as The Hire; and The Hand (2004), his exquisite segment of portmanteau film Eros, an extended version of which is available in the tremendous Criterion blu-ray box set, The World of Wong

Swedish auteur Ingmar Bergman also dipped into the form occasionally. In 1976, where his other credit included Face to Face, he directed the short The Condemned Women Dance. Humid. Anxiety-inducing. Intense. In the last two months, film reviewers around the world have been explicit about the discomfort that creeps in while watching Shiva Baby, Emma Seligman's feature film debut. Yet not one of them wanted to cut short the experience. In fact, 'claustrophobia' joins sharp comedy and a breakout performance as some of the winning features of this tightly choreographed film about a floundering college student at a funeral service.

"Danielle [Rachel Sennott] was taken from my time in university in New York. I was very stressed about what I wanted to do. And a lot of my friends were seeking an arrangement where they had sugar daddies," says Canadian director and screenwriter, Seligman, over Zoom with The Hindu Weekend. Based on Seligman's short of the same name, her thesis project at NYU, the film has Danielle attending a shiva, which is a Jewish mourning ritual, with her parents. She runs into her sugar daddy there and her ex-girlfriend. It is stressful and chaotic.

Seligman, 26, shares that the film's themes of identity and empowerment are what she too struggled with in college. "What I wanted to be the backbone [of the film] was reckoning with your self worth as a young woman, realising that it has been based on sexual validation and that it needs to go beyond that," she says, adding that she also "sprinkled" other parts of her life "like my family, my sexuality". On June 11, MUBI will be launching Shiva Baby as their LGBTQI+ focus for Pride Month. Seligman remarks that she is lucky it is reaching people beyond the Jewish or bisexual audience. "The short film had a lot of success among my Indian friends too. They loved it and kept telling me they were into it," she recalls. As for the future of queer cinema, the challenges are many. Noting the lack of portrayal of bisexuality or pansexuality or gender fluidity on screen, she says, "We've made progress with telling gay stories and lesbian stories and trans stories, which is wonderful, I think people sometimes worry that audiences may not be able to wrap their head around someone who is in between or fluid with their sexuality or gender. I hope more and more people at the top who make the decisions begin to understand > that and not be confused." While Seligman has often talked about her "very insular Jewish upbringing" she hands it to TV shows like the teen drama series, The OC, and the medical drama, Grey's Anatomy, for introducing bisexual characters on screen. "Eventually we got stuff like The Bisexual and Transparent, where there are tonnes of bisexual and pansexual characters. But as a kid, those were two shows that stuck out for me."

Meanwhile, the young filmmaker who managed to create her indie darling with a $225,000 budget is on to the big league. Coming up next: a queer high school comedy, Bottoms, with her lead actor and collaborator, Sennott, and Elizabeth Banks' Brownstone production company. Seligman tackles questions on authenticity, queer representation and her final van scene

Entrapment, escape, and a startling breakthrough with a widowed professor from Bengal in a therapist's room in Brooklyn

SHEFALEE VASUDEV

It is Irrfan. Irrfan Khan. Is it, yes, oh, I mutter. The TV remote stays mute. Addicted to the might and madness of the human mind for years through books, films, talks, I let the jazz of adrenaline play my veins in prep for the fourth season of the HBO series, In Treatment, that debuted recently. I am surfing through previous seasons (which aired between 2008 and 2010) on Disney + Hotstar.

Having compulsively watched 50-something therapist Dr Paul Weston (actor Gabriel Byrne) over 70-plus episodes, I am in love with his nonverbals as with his spoken word. Shrink in shining armour. In dark jackets and polished shoes, he navigates his clients through abusive relationships, teenage rebellions, erotic transference, or difficult divorces. I have been in his clinic for many weeks, and Americans in therapy exhaling with cuss words amuses me. I was unprepared though to find Irrfan unpacking his life in Season 3.

In Treatment is intense. Often, a lifetime tides up between two people talking to each other. Reminiscent of intimate, theatre work. A viewer can pan Weston's book-lined, wood-panelled office with the camera or invisibly take a seat. Produced and developed by Rodrigo Garcia – based on the Israeli series Be Tipul – the programme shows four patients each week in sessions with Weston, followed by one with his own therapist to dust his mental cobwebs.

Flashback to Sunil

In Treatment won many honours at The Emmys and Golden Globes after its 2008 launch. Several episodes for Season 3 were written by playwright Adam Rapp, with author Jhumpa Lahiri consulting on the Irrfan story. I had no idea though, until a day after the actor's first death anniversary on April 29 this year that "one of the greatest actors alive", as Rapp described Irrfan to The New York Times over a decade ago, was grieving all those years back on a Brooklyn couch.

Sunil Sanyal, 2010. His psychic pain is as palpable as a limp, when herded by his son Arun and daughterin-law Julia, he enters Weston's office.

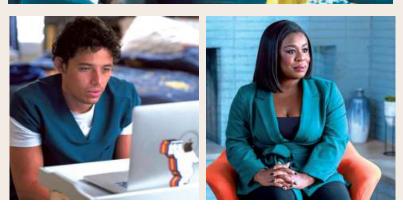

Irrfan plays a greying widower in his 50s. His anguish, as the recently-bereaved husband of Kamala, struggling with his bristling present, a Bengali maths professor from Kolkata who loves recreational cricket, is a fascinating part of his acting oeuvre. Barely written about in India. Who else could have played a man so deeply thorned by conflict, shadowed by demons from a tumultuous past, and express it through the borderless language of his eyes.

Confused by his unnerving dreams and insomniac neurosis, Sanyal longs law, a modern American woman, unabashed in her mannerisms as a wife, whose perfume reminds him of "black pepper and jasmine", a mother unfettered by ideas of sacrifice unlike Sanyal's dead wife, arouses a storm of resentment in him. The to return to Kolkata. His daughter-in-storm of resentment in him. The arousal is the presenting problem.

"Can I smoke in your office... err Paul?" "Can I offer you some tea, Paul? In my country having tea with friends is how people grieve instead of paid therapy..." says Sanyal. Weston opens a window to prevent the smoke from Sanyal's life lighting a fire, and brews tea for him. Sanyal mourns his wife but also his Brahmin Bengali-ness. And Kolkata, where caste decides emotional fates.

A sudden déjà vu now circles me. I have met Sunil Sanyal before. It is not so much his sloppy, half-sleeved sweaters and closed toe, tan sandals, but the Kolkata-dusted bewilderment of a Bengali in New York that triggers the memory of Ashoke Ganguly from the 2006 film, The Namesake. Prof Ganguly was not as troubled in Mira Nair's adaptation of Lahiri's novel, but he is ponderous as only Irrfan can be.

Waiting for the connect

Now with the Covid-19 elephant in the room, the therapeutic space is crowded. As mental health dilemmas intensify globally, spiked peculiarly in the US by racial divisiveness, HBO has revived In Treatment. The fourth season opened on May 23 with African-American actor, Emmy awardee Uzo Aduba as the shrink. Dr Brooke Taylor sits on a Herman Miller chair in a Los Angeles home that looks like a gallery of modern art with sorbet sofas and tech tools. A male home health aide, an immigrant, is on a virtual session. Others meet Taylor at her house, including a Black teenage sex addict identifying as lesbian female. Taylor represents change but in the episodes so far, the "connect" is just about warming up.

Like life clutched by the past, I rewind to Sunil Sanyal and Paul Weston, and find them seated on opposite sides of a glass in a detention centre. The boundaries are back. They speak through a visitor's telephone. Sanyal is being deported to India for the "criminal threat" he poses to his daughter-in-law's life while Weston struggles with a Parkinson's diagnosis.

"Will you be okay? Sometimes I worry about you..." a wry Sanyal quips to a grimacing Weston. "I know what it is like to feel such loneliness and I hope someday you will free yourself from it."

This last episode concludes with Sunil humming a Bengali song, of a moonlit night and a goodbye. Vidhaye bandhu vidhaye (farewell, friend, farewell)

It is a breakthrough moment.

Kiran's Cookhouse brings in the nostalgia of homemade food

FOOD SPOT

Home-cooked meal from the chef

RAHUL VERMA

One of the nice parts of our annual trip to the Himachal hills was a stopover in Chandigarh. We would, usually on our way back to Delhi, stop at our friend's parents' place. Her mother is an awesome cook and would give us a delicious meal. That was where I first had - and instantly fell in love with - baked aloo chips. The dish consisted of round pieces of thinly sliced potatoes, mixed with some chillies and other masalas and then put in the oven.

The dish popped up and hit my eyes last week when I was looking at the menu of a small home chef outlet called Kiran's Cookhouse. That was the decider for me, and I placed an order for a vegetarian meal even though the kitchen offers dishes such as fried fish, kali mirch chicken and handi gosht. Apart from the chips walley aloo (as the dish is called), I asked for mixed pakoras, bharwa tindey-aloo, bharwa karela, masala bhindi, bedmi aloo, channey dal with lauki and, for dessert, paratha with gur. The rates are all very reasonable - between ₹100 and ₹200. For this feast, I paid a little less than ₹1,000.

Kiran's Cookhouse is in Noida, Sector 61, and I ordered through Swiggy. The food was still hot when it reached my doorstep. I started with the potato curry that came with the bedmi, and enjoyed the rush of asoefetida that it triggered. I liked the lauki dal, too - bits of bottle gourd in a thick channa dal. I had thought I'd had enough of tinda (which I had to eat almost every day after a health issue three years ago). But despite the bad press the poor tinda generally gets, I quite like this watery vegetable. And stuffed tinda where the vegetable is filled with sundry masalas - is a particular favourite of mine. This was rather tasty - the usual masalas (coriander powder et al) had given it a punch.

What gladdened my heart was the chips walley aloo -- potatoes sliced into thin discs, coated with dry spices, shallow fried and topped with chaat masala. Kiran Cookhouse's okra was good, too; it had been prepared with a fair amount of onions and chillies. The food, I thought, was like home cooked fare, even though the chilli quotient was rather high.

What didn't impress me was the dish I was most looking forward to - stuffed karela. I love this dish, and it is cooked rather well at home these days. Sometimes we stuff the whole gourd with pickle masala (fenugreek, fennel seeds etc) and occasionally grated raw mango. This one looked appetising, but didn't have the zing of a well stuffed karela. Still, it was good to know that a kitchen was delivering the much loved dish home. The paratha with gur didn't work for us either, but that was possibly because this is a dish that has to be eaten iust off the tawa. I remember how I loved it when it was prepared in our village home on winter evenings - the paratha holding the melting gur which would burst into the mouth when I bit into it. Here, the paratha was a bit too rubbery, and the gur had already melted and become sticky.

But I am always happy when small entrepreneurs start their little businesses, focusing on old recipes that you don't get in restaurants. Next on my agenda is khatti dal, which I thought I'd had enough of during my Himachal sojourns back in the late 70s and early 80s. But it's nostalgia time - and this Himachali dish is cheerfully waving out to me.

Hong Kong seals off Tiananmen vigil site

Police arrest vigil organiser; hundreds gather to commemorate the victims of China's 1989 crackdown

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hundreds of people gathered near a Hong Kong park on Friday despite a ban on an annual candlelight vigil remembering China's deadly crackdown in Beijing's Tiananmen Square, and the arrest earlier in the day of an organiser of previous vigils.

Hong Kong police banned the vigil for a second straight year, citing COVID-19 social distancing restrictions, although there have been no local cases in the city for more than six weeks.

Police closed off large parts of Victoria Park - the venue of past vigils - and warned people not to participate in unauthorised assemblies, which carry a penalty of up to five years in jail.

Despite the ban and a heavy police presence, hundreds of people still turned up on Friday night to walk along the perimeter of the park. At 8 p.m., many turned on the flashlights on their smartphones while others lit candles in remembrance of those who lost their lives when China's military put down student-led pro-democracy protests at Tiananmen Square on June 4, 1989. Hundreds, if not thousands, were killed in the crackdown.

Fear of reprisals

In past years, tens of thousands of people have gathered in Victoria Park to honour the dead. Last year, thousands attended despite the ban to light candles and sing songs. Police later arrested over 20 activists.

Wong, who joined the hundreds near the park on Friday said the Tiananmen Square crackdown is a memory shared by Hong Kongers, and he wanted to commemorate the students and citizens who were killed by the People's Liberation Army.

China's ruling Communist Party has never allowed public events on the mainland to mark the anniversary and security was increased at the Beijing square, with police checking pedestrians' IDs as tour buses shuttled Chinese tourists in and out.

Plea in Sri Lanka SC on cargo ship fire impact

Petitioners seek a probe into incident

MEERA SRINIVASAN

Environmentalists and fisher groups in Sri Lanka on Friday petitioned the Supreme Court seeking a probe into how a container ship bearing dangerous chemicals and plastic material - that burned off the coast releasing massive debris – was allowed into the island nation's territorial waters Fundamental Their Rights petition follows a nearly two week-long battle by the Sri Lankan Navy, with Dutch salvage experts and the Indian Coast Guard, to douse the flames onboard the Singapore-registered vessel, MV X-Press Pearl, that was anchored about 9.5 nautical miles off the Colombo port.

After the fire was extinguished on Tuesday, the vessel has been slowly sinking into the Indian Ocean. off the Sri Lankan coast, heightening fears of a possible oil spill that authorities said they were preparing to handle. Meanwhile, the prolonged fire on the vessel led to large deposits of plastic pellets along the island nation's coastline, where several marine organisms were also found dead. Experts have termed the development the country's "worst ecological disaster".

Over the next two weeks, authorities will study the impact of the incident on Sri Lanka's coastline, biodiversity and marine organisms, an official said. "We will be assessing the damage alone 125 km of our coastline that appears to be impacted by this incident," A.H. Gamini, a director with the Coast Conservation and Coastal Resource Management Department told The Hindu.

According to the petitioners, including the Colombobased non-profit Centre for Environmental Justice, and activists and trade union leaders from the fisheries sector, apart from the 325 tonnes of bunker oil, the vessel was loaded with 1,486 containers carrying chemicals, including 25 tonnes of hazardous nitric acid, caustic soda, sodium methylate, bright yellow sulphur, urea, and cosmetics.

'Acid leak'

Citing media statements made by the shipping company, the petitioners said "poor packaging" likely led to an "acid leak", and on detecting the leak, the ship's captain had contacted two ports - Hazira [Gujarat] on the west coast of India and Hamad in Qatar - requesting to offload the leaking containers. The requests were denied, and the ship made its way to Sri Lanka, they said, asking who cleared the vessel's entry into Sri Lankan waters, and if permission was given despite knowledge of the "gravity of the risk".

The Singapore-registered MV X-Press Pearl is almost brand new, made in China, and commissioned in February, AFP reported. It was en route to Singapore from Hazira Port in Gujarat, officials said. Shipping company X-Press Feeders's CEO Shmuel Yoskovitz has apologised to Sri Lanka.

"I would like to express my deep regrets and apologies to the Sri Lankan people for the harm this incident has caused to the livelihood and to the environment of Sri Lanka," he said in a media interview.

Earlier on Friday, police arrested Chow Hang Tung, a vice chair of the Hong Kong Alliance which organised Hong Kong's annual candlelight vigil, the group said.

After the ban was issued, Ms. Chow urged people to commemorate the event privately by lighting a candle wherever they are.

"I'm already being persecuted for participating and inciting last year's candlelight vigil," she said. "If I continue my activism in pushing come after me at some point, so it's sort of expected." At the University of Hong

U.K. regulator approves Pfizer vaccine for 12- to 15-year-olds

'Pfizer jab produces less anti-bodies against Delta'

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

People fully vaccinated with the Pfizer-BioNTech vaccine are likely to have more than five times lower levels of neutralising anti-bodies against the Delta variant, first identified in India, compared to the original strain, according to research published in The Lancet

The study also shows that levels of these anti-bodies that are able to recognise and fight the virus are lower with increasing age, and that levels decline over time, providing additional evidence in support of plans to deliver a booster dose to vulnerable people.

The study analysed antibodies in the blood of 250 healthy people.

It will now be for the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (ICVI) to advise on whether this age group will be vaccinated as part of the deployment programme, the MHRA said.

The regulator said no new side effects were identified and the safety data in children was comparable with that seen in young adults. As in young adults, the majority of "adverse events" were mild to moderate and relating to "reactogenicity", such as a sore arm or tiredness.

A Department of Health and Social Care spokesperson said the next step was for the JCVI to advise whether routine vaccination should be offered to those aged 12 to 17. The vaccine was approved for use for 16-and 17-year-olds in December 2020.

RBI adds hospitality sector aid with ₹15,000 cr. credit window

Hotels, restaurants, travel agents may benefit; trade says 3-year tenor 'too short'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has opened a separate On-tap Liquidity Window to help mitigate the adverse impact of the second wave of the pandemic on certain contact-intensive sectors. The move would provide liquidity of ₹15,000 crore till March 31, 2022, with tenors of up to three years.

Under the scheme, banks can provide fresh lending support to hotels and restaurants; entities related to tourism - travel agents, tour operators and adventure or heritage facilities; aviation ancillary services - ground handling and supply chain; and others including private bus operators, car repair services, rent-a-car service providers, event/conference organisers, spa clinics, and beauty parlours/salons.

Banks will be permitted to park their surplus liquidity up to the size of the loan book created under this scheme with the RBI at a rate which is 40 basis points (bps) higher than the reverse repo rate.

The hospitality sector welcomed the decision. "This is the first significant sign indi-has taken note of the severe effect that the pandemic has had on the hospitality industry and the huge economic impact it will have on the sector as well as the nation," Federation of Hotel & Restaurant Associations of India (FHRAI) vice-president Gurbaxish Singh Kohli said.

Infusing liquidity would provide support to cashstrapped businesses without which the industry couldn't have survived, he added. However, the tenure should be for at least five years as a duration of three years would not be sufficient to recover from the turbulence the industry faces, he stressed. (With PTI inputs)

U.S. job growth picks up pace

May unemployment rate falls to 5.8% as pandemic eases

WASHINGTON

U.S. employers boosted hiring in May as the easing pandemic, helped by vaccinations, pulled more people back into the labour force, offering assurance that the economy's recovery from the COVID-19 recession remained on track.

Non-farm payrolls increased by 5.59 lakh jobs last month, the Labor Department said in its closely watched employment report on Friday. Data for April was revised slightly higher to show payrolls rising by 2.78 lakh jobs instead of 2.66 lakh as previously reported. The unemployment rate fell to 5.8%, from 6.1% in April's initial employment count, which delivered roughly a quarter of the new iobs economists had forecast, led to hand-wringing among some economists and investors that growth was stagnating at a time when inflation was rising.

The improving public health situation and massive fiscal stimulus are supporting the economy.

At least half of the American population has been fully vaccinated against CO-VID-19, according to data from the U.S. Centers for tion. That has allowed authorities across the country to lift virus-related restrictions on businesses. But the reopening of the economy is straining the supply chain.

A worker shortage blamed on childcare complications, generous unemployment checks and lingering fears over COVID-19 sharply restrained hiring.

There are a record 8.1 million job openings.

Millions of workers, mostly women, remain at home as most school districts have not moved to full-time inperson learning.

The expanded benefits will end in early September across the country. That, together with more people vaccinated and schools fully reopening in the fall, is expected to ease the worker scarcity by September.

Sensex slips as RBI trims GDP growth forecast

Banking, FMCG stocks weigh on index

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Equity indices treaded lower, weighed by banking, energy and FMCG stocks, after the RBI left interest rates unchanged but slashed the GDP growth estimate for this fiscal following the second wave of COVID-19.

Lacklustre global cues and a weak rupee also soured risk appetite, traders said. The 30-share BSE Sensex ended 132.38 points, or 0.25%, lower at 52,100, a day after closing at its lifetime peak. The broader NSE Nifty slipped 0.13% to close at 15,670.25.

Nestle India was the top laggard in the Sensex pack, declining 1.97%, followed by SBI, HDFC Bank, ICICI Bank, Axis Bank, Titan, HUL and Reliance Industries.

Bajaj Finserv, ONGC, L&T, Bajaj Finance and HDFC were among the gainers.

"A moderate increase in inflation forecast by the RBI led G-Sec yields increasing by 3 basis points, which resulted in profit-booking in banks," said Binod Modi, Head - Strategy, Reliance

RBI to purchase G-Secs worth ₹1.2 lakh cr. in second quarter

Central bank aims to aid 'smooth evolution of vield curve'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) will purchase G-Secs worth ₹1.2 lakh crore in Q2 of FY22 under G-SAP 2.0 (Government Securities Acquisition Programme) to facilitate the smooth evolution of the yield curve.

"The specific dates and securities under G-SAP 2.0 operations will be indicated separately," said Shaktikanta Das, Governor, RBI.

"We do expect the market to respond appropriately to this announcement of G-SAP," he added. The RBI would also purchase G-Secs worth ₹40,000 crore, including ₹10,000 crore of State Development Loans, under G-SAP 1.0 on June 17.

Previously, the Governor had indicated that in addition to G-SAP, the Reserve Bank would continue to deploy regular operations under the liquidity adjustment facility, longer-term repo/reverse-repo, forex and open market operations (OMOs), including special open market operations, to ensure liquidity conditions evolved in consonance with the stance of monetary policy and financial conditions remained supportive for all stakeholders.

In the current year, the RBI had undertaken regular OMOs and injected additional liquidity to the tune of ₹36,545 crore (up to May 31) in addition to ₹60,000 crore under G-SAP 1.0. A purchase and sale auction under Operation Twist was also conducted on May 6. The RBI will continue to conduct regular operations for liquidity management, he added.

'Governments' borrowing handled well'

LALATENDU MISHRA MUMBAI

Reserve Bank of India (RBI) Governor Shaktikanta Das on Friday asserted that there was no plan to print more money.

The Governor's state ment comes amid suggestions from some quarters that the RBI print more money to support the economy ravaged by the spread of CO-VID-19 and to protect jobs.

"Central banks, with regard to printing of notes, have their own models and have their own assessment," said Mr. Das. "I have seen many remarks [on printing money] that have come," he said while answering a question from The Hindu.

"The central banks, with ments of both States and the Centre had been handled very successfully last year," the RBI Governor added.

Mr. Das said a revised notification to financial institutions on Monday was necessitated because some banks were still referring to the old circular set aside by the Apex court and this was an attempt to set the record straight. The RBI had on Monday asked banks, NBFCs and payment system providers not to refer to its earlier 2018 circular in their communications to customers.

"With regard to RBI's position (on cryptocurrencies), I had said earlier, we have major concerns around cryptocurrency which we have conveyed to the government," Mr. Das said.

Some of the cryptocurrencies have seen a massive dip in their per unit trading prices lately, leading to erosion of investor wealth.

Mr. Das said the central bank is not into investment advice, but added that one should make one's own appraisal and do due diligence before taking a call on investing in cryptocurrencies.

Serena, at eight, is now the highest seed left in her half of the draw, with all of the world's top four absent from the second week.

10-man India goes down to Qatar

Goalkeeper Gurpreet Sandhu's saves keep it from being a rout

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

A 10-man India defended creditably but still suffered a 1-0 defeat to Asian champion Qatar in their World Cup qualifying round match here on Thursday.

Abdel Aziz scored in the 33rd minute in a match completely dominated by the Qataris. The two sides had played out a goal-less draw in their first leg match here in September 2019.

Group topper which is yet to lose a match, had waves of attacks with eight to nine players in the Indian half for most of the time. Goalkeeper Gurpreet Singh Sandhu had to pull off a series of saves to keep the margin of loss small.

India played with 10 men from the 17th minute onwards after defender Rahul Bheke was red carded after a second booking; the first yellow card came in the ninth

Singh in the thick of things on both occasions. India captain Sunil Chhetri, who returned to the team after recovering from COVID-19, was replaced by Udanta Singh at the start of the second half.

A win-less India remains in fourth spot in Group E with three points from six matches. India next plays Bangladesh on June 7.

Speaking after the match, Gurpreet said India must learn to capitalise on its chances.

"I think we were very unfortunate with the result. Everybody in the pitch gave their everything and that's what we need. Very very unfortunate not to get something out of this game," he said in a video shared by All India Football Federation (AIFF) on its Twitter handle.

"I think everyone is gutted because the way we played, we deserved something out of it. But things happen in football and we now move on to the next game."

India may have suffered a bigger defeat had it not been for Sandhu, who pulled off as many as nine saves in the group E match.

Asked about his saves, Sandhu said: "I honestly didn't (count the number of saves), but I think it was more than last time."

His progress in the quartermile this year has been amazing, and now Amoj Jacob believes that India has the men's relay team to finish among the top five in next month's Tokyo Olympics. "For the first time, we have four runners who have gone below 46s. If we make it to Tokyo, we can finish among the top five in the 4x400m," said the 23-yearold, the country's fastest quartermiler this season, in a chat with The Hindu from the Patiala National camp.

"If you look at the personal bests of Muhammed Anas, Arokia Rajiv, Noah Nirmal Tom and me, all of us have gone below 46s."

Jacob has improved his 400m personal best with every meet this year, opening with 46s in the Indian Grand Prix-2 in late February and then improving it to 45.70 (GP-3) and 45.68s while taking the Federation Cup gold in March.

Was he surprised by his stunning run?

"No, I was not surprised, I was prepared for the timing. I thought I could run around 45.5s, but in the Federation Cup, my judgement was quite wrong. I ran the first 300 very fast, then I got tired," he explained. Jacob has a fantastic target now, a time that will topple the national record (45.21s) that belongs to Muhammed Anas, the 2018 Jakarta Asian Games silver medallist.

"Basically I want to run below 45s. To go below 45, I'll have to work on my start, the finish also. And also focus on the floating part, from 80 to 250m.'

With such heavy thoughts running in his head, how does Anas look at him?

"I'm the youngest of the lot and Anas is like my elder brother, he guides me with technique and everything. The rivalry is only on the track."

If Jacob clocks 44.90s before June 29, it will bring him a Tokyo ticket in the 400m.

"But we are mainly focusing on the relays. The qualification time in the individual 400m is quite tough."

In the relays, India has a confirmed spot only in the mixed 4x400m and the next few weeks will be very anxious ones as the men's team is in the 14th spot in the Road to Tokyo rankings.
