Mr. Chandra clarified that 24 seats reserved for Pakistan-occupied Jammu and Kashmir (PoJK) would not be delimited in this process.

"The Commission will also specify the number of seats to be reserved for the SCs and the STs in the Legislative Assembly of the U.T. It will be for the first time that seats will be reserved for the STs in I&K," he noted.

J&K has already seven seats reserved for SC people, mainly in the Kathua-Samba belt in the Jammu region. It will be for the first time that STs, including Bakerwals and Gujjars, will get reservation in this delimitation exercise. The maximum population of Gujjars and Bakwerwals are from the Pir Panjal Valley, comprising Poonch and Rajouri districts, in the Jammu region. Mr. Chandra said the Commission had taken into account the representations made by 290 groups, comprising 800 people.

A transparent exercise, says panel chief

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

The delimitation exercise will be transparent and there should be no fears and doubts over it, Justice Ranjana Prakash Desai (retd.) said on Friday, seeking to dispel apprehensions among a section of political leaders and people that it is a pre-planned exercise guided by the agenda of a political party.

Justice Desai, who heads the Delimitation Commission, was replying to a question about apprehensions expressed by a section of political parties and people in Kashmir.

"The exercise will be transparent in nature and there should be no fears and doubts. We can only talk to those who want to participate in the process. Thos," she said.

Cooperation Ministry will usurp States' rights: Oppn.

Parties likely to raise the issue in the monsoon session

NISTULA HEBBAR SANDEEP PHUKAN NEW DELHI

A row is about to erupt between the Treasury and Opposition benches in the monsoon session of Parliament, set to start on July 19, over the formation of the Ministry of Cooperation, which was announced on July 5. The portfolio has been given to Home Minister Amit Shah after last Wednesday's Cabinet expansion.

The government said the Ministry "will provide a separate administrative, legal and policy framework for strengthening the cooperative movement in the country" and do much to streamline the processes for "ease of doing business" and enable development of Multi-State Co-operative Banks" (MSCBs). Significantly, the MSCBs have now been solely taken under the Reserve Bank of India for regulatory purposes.

Opposition leaders, however, said the move was to "hijack the cooperative movement" that currently falls under the State governments.

They [BJP] want total control of the cooperative movement and that's why they have made Amit Shah in charge of the Ministry. How can they form a Ministry without an Act of Parliament?

Ramesh Chennithala, who was the former Leader of the Opposition in Kerala - a State with a strong cooperative movement - told The Hindu that "the move is planned to hijack the cooperative movement".

"They [the BJP] want total control of the cooperative movement across the country and that's why they have made Amit Shah in charge of the Ministry. Cooperatives is a State subject under entry 32 of the State list under the Schedule 7 of the Constitution. How can they create a Ministry without an Act of Parliament?" Mr. Chennithala, a sitting lawmaker from Kerala, said.

The cooperative model has been a source of political power in States such as Maharashtra, Kerala, Gujarat, parts of Karnataka, Tamil Nadu, Madhya Pradesh and West Bengal. Many of these cash-rich cooperatives are controlled by Opposition parties, such as the Nationalist Congress Party, the CPI (M) and the Congress in some of these States.

"The government is yet to explain the purpose and objective of this Ministry. And the appointment of Mr. Shah raises several questions as it encroaches on a State's power. Our party will raise this in Parliament," CPI general secretary D. Raja said.

West Bengal Speaker names Roy PAC chief

BJP MLAs stage walkout from House

Senior Trinamool Congress leader Mukul Roy was on Friday appointed Chairperson of the Public Accounts Committee (PAC) in the West Bengal Assembly by Speaker Biman Banerjee.

Mr. Roy, who had bagged the Krishnanagar Uttar constituency on a BJP ticket, joined the TMC almost a month ago on June 11.

The Speaker made the announcement in the House on the last day of the Budget session of the State Assembly. BJP legislators led by Leader of the Opposition Suvendu Adhikari erupted in protest at the announcement and walked out.

Mr. Adhikari said that as per norms, an MLA from the Opposition is appointed as the Chairperson of the PAC. "This government does not conduct an audit by the Comptroller and Auditor General. It wants to spend and does not want anyone to know where it is spending the money," he alleged.

Senior Minister and TMC leader Subrata Mukherjee said that officially Mr. Roy is a BJP MLA and there is nothing wrong in his appointment as PAC Chairperson.

In another development, the West Bengal police registered an FIR against Mr. Adhikari in connection with the death of his security guard Shubhabrata Chakraborty in 2018.

Monsoon may advance over Delhi today

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

The heatwave that had gripped the city abated on Friday with the maximum temperature settling at 38.2 degrees Celsius, which was two degree above normal.

The minimum fell to 24.1 degrees Celsius, which was four degrees below normal as showers lashed parts of the city late on Thursday. Till 8.30 a.m. on Friday morning, the city had received 8.8 mm of rainfall.

The IMD has forecast a cloudy sky with the possibility of light rain and thundershowers on July 10. The maximum and minimum temperatures would be around 38 and 24 degrees Celsius respectively.

It added that the monsoon is also likely to land in the Capital. "Conditions are favourable for further advance of South-West Monsoon over Delhi, remaining parts of West U.P., some more parts of Punjab, Haryana and Rajasthan during the next 24 hours,' said the weather bulletin.

Cabinet okays real-time source study to combat air pollution

It will suggest actions to systematically assess, reduce air quality deterioration

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

The Delhi Cabinet on Friday approved a real-time source apportionment study with an aim to curb air pollution in the city. The project aims to identify sources of pollution on a real-time basis to initiate mitigation measures on a near real-time basis.

Delhi Environment Minister Gopal Rai said the project would go a long way in identifying the various factors contributing to Delhi's pollution and mitigating

Identifying factors

"The real-time source apportionment project will help identify the factors responsible for the spike in air pollution at any particular spot in Delhi. It will help understand the real-time impact of various pollution sources like vehicles, dust, biomass burning, stubble burning, and emissions from industries. Based on the results, the Delhi government will take necessary actions to curb the sources of pollution," Mr. Rai said.

The study will be conducted by a team from IIT-Kanpur, IIT-Delhi, The Energy and Resources Institute (TERI) and IISER-Mohali. The government said that the technology to carry out real-time source apportionment of pollution has not been implemented in any other city in the country.

Mukesh Sharma, Scientist at IIT-Kanpur, leading the study said that the project will provide daily and weekly forecasting of air quality, real-time diurnal source apportionment and suggest short-term daily and weekly actions to systematically as-hi for many years to come. "The developed mobile laboratory will provide apportionment of the sources at multiple locations and this laboratory will be perhaps the first of its kind in the world," Dr. Sharma said.

'NGT bench in Delhi is no way superior to other zonal benches'

Madras HC stays transfer of a case from south zone to north zone

LEGAL CORRESPONDENT

CHENNA

Observing that all five zonal Benches of the National Green Tribunal (NGT) are equally powerful and that their orders would be applicable pan India, the Madras High Court has disapproved of a 2017 Central notification which terms the north zone Bench in Delhi as the principal Bench.

Passing interm orders in a case, Justices N. Kirubakaran and T.V. Thamilselvi wrote: "Though in the notification dated August 10, 2017 the north zone Bench in Delhi is called principal Bench, it is prima facie contrary to the NGT Act of 2010 as the latter does not speak about any principal Bench."

Authoring the order, Justice Kirubakaran observed: "Vesting of power only with the Bench in Delhi is not contemplated anywhere in the statute even though power is actually concentrated Delhi."

The orders were passed on a writ petition filed by an envanan of Chennai against a decision taken by the south zone Bench of NGT on June 15 to transfer his case to the "principal" Bench in Delhi since the orders to be passed in it would have pan India

Pan India effect

Not in agreement with such a decision taken by the south zone Bench, the judges stayed the operation of the transfer order. "The decision taken by any Bench of NGT will have pan India effect and it cannot be said that only if the issue is decided by Delhi, it will have pan India effect," the judges observed.

They pointed out that the country had been divided into five zones - North, West Central, South and East - and one Bench of the NGT had been established for each of them, with territorial jurisdiction over specified States, only for the convenience of the litigants residing in those zones.

"The jurisdiction of every Bench has been distinctly given and it is only to enable the citizens to approach the forum constituted in their zone and not to make the citizens travel to Delhi spending huge amount of money which is not possible for every citizen on each and every issue," the judges said.

They went on to add: "If such a procedure (of transferring cases to Delhi) is adopted, it would amount to denying access to justice as is being done in other matters." Easy access to justice was the primary reason for establishing courts at Taluk level and that was the reason why even High Court Benches were being created in different parts of a State, the judges pointed out.

Thankfully, we got

Two passers-by were killed when assailants shot multiple rounds at a nursing home owner in North Delhi's Bara Hindu Rao area on Thursday night.

Deputy Commissioner of Police (North) Anto Alphonse said that one of the deceased has been identified as Sanjay Rajput (30), a resident of Teliwada, and another is yet to be identified. Raids are being conducted since Thursday night to nab the accused. Complainant

Ahmed, who runs Sanjeeda Nursing Home near the hospital, said that on Thursday night around 8.30 p.m., a man in black t-shirt entered the clinic and asked him if COVID-19 vaccination was administered there. "I told him we are not doing it and he can get vaccinated at a dispensary nearby or at BHR Hospital. The man left," he said.

My nephew then told me that it was the same man who had earlier visited the nursing home asking for vaccination. In no time, three more men came. They were all caught by the public," the complainant said.

Fled for cover

Mr. Naeem said that he dropped the accused a few meters ahead. Suddenly, the men started firing, the complainant said, adding that he and his nephew then fled for cover in different directions. "I fled to a godown and my nephew to the other side.

Thankfully, we got saved but two others got shot. They both died," Mr. Naeem said. According to Mr. Naeem, at least three-four rounds were fired by the accused. The complainant claimed that he had no idea who the accused were but can identify them. Police said that a case under Section 302 (punishment for murder) of the IPC has been registered and three teams are working to nab the accused.

for cheating banks of ₹7 cr.

STAFF REPORTER NEW DELHI

Delhi Police's Economic Offences Wing has arrested a 51-year-old man for allegedly mortgaging the same property with six nationalised banks and usurping public money to the tune of ₹7 crore, officials said on Friday.

The accused, Rajiv Rathee, was nabbed from Gurugram after complaints were received against him from two banks in March last year, they said. Additional Commissioner of Police (Economic Offences Wing) R.K. Singh said that Ratnakar Bank Ltd. (RBL) and Bank of Maharashtra, in their complaints, alleged that Rajiv Rathee of Shagun Enterprises approached them for availing home loan and mortgaged a property based in Gurugram. After verification, banks sanctioned the loan on the same property at different intervals of time.

The officer said RBL bank had sanctioned ₹2.50 crore while Bank of Maharashtra sanctioned ₹1.30 crore to the applicant. Later on, when Rathee failed to maintain financial discipline, banks began the process of possession and also gave advertisement in newspapers. Later on, both the banks got to know from Allahabad bank that the same property was mortgaged with them.

4 of Mewat-based gang held, 70 phones seized

34 cases solved with their arrest: police

STAFF REPORTER

Four members of a Mewatbased gang have been arrested for allegedly receiving thousands of stolen mobile phones from snatchers and burglars in Delhi and Uttar Pradesh, police said on Friday.

With the arrest of Jiyauddin (24), Mohd Aalim (25), Ajay (23) and Shiv Kumar (27), police claimed to have recovered 70 mobile phones along with a car and have worked out 34 cases of snatching, burglary and theft reported in various parts of the national capital.

Police said that on May 17, an incident of theft in a mobile showroom was reported in Delhi Cantonment and 54 mobile phones were reported to be stolen.

During investigation, an accused named Tarif was arrested from whom 10 sealed packed mobile phones, which were stolen from the showroom was recovered. Based on his disclosure, the other members of the gang were arrested, police said.

Nabbed during deal

Deputy Commissioner of Police (South-West) Ingit Pratap Singh said: "On July 8, our team got a tip-off that the gang members were finalising a deal of snatched mobile phones with two other men in Dhaula Kuan in a car. On seeing police, the four men tried to escape but was overpowered and nabbed from the spot."

During interrogation, they disclosed that Jiyauddin received stolen mobile phones in a sealed pack from Mewatbased criminals, who had stolen mobile phone mobile from showrooms in Delhi and NCR. He purchased these mobile phones at 35% of their MRP and further sold them to Mohd Aalim at 40% of their MRP. Aalim then transferred the relevant amount to Jiyauddin's bank account, the officer said.

"Aalim further sold these mobile phones to one Hasam, a resident of Mumbai, who further disposed these to Jammu and Kashmir and also to countries like Bangladesh. In return, Hasam deposited cash in his bank account in Mumbai and Kolkata. Aalim sent all stolen mobile phones to Hasam through courier for which he had received around ₹30 lakh since March this year," Mr. Singh said.

Delhi riots: HC dismisses student's plea

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA NEW DELHI

The Delhi High Court on Friday dismissed a plea on behalf of student-activist Gulfisha Fatima, claiming her detention in a Delhi riots case to be illegal, saying it was "completely misplaced" and maintainable".

A Bench of Justices Vipin Sanghi and Jasmeet Singh said the writ of habeas corpus would not lie in respect of a person who is in judicial custody. A habeas corpus petition is filed seeking direction to produce a person who is missing or illegally detained.

"The facts will show that the petitioner is in judicial custody and detention, cannot termed as illegal," the Bench said.

Graded response plan approved

Activities to be allowed or restricted based on positivity rate, among other factors

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT NEW DELHI

A Graded Response Action Plan (GRAP) was passed at a Delhi Disaster Management Authority (DDMA) meeting chaired by Lieutenant Governor Anil Baijal to discuss the COVID situation in the Capital with Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal on Friday.

After detailed deliberations and presentations made by Health Department and ICMR, it was decided to notify the GRAP that will "objectively and transparently" ensure an "institutional and automatic" response with regards to enforcement measures, lockdowns and unlock activities, an expert present at the meeting said.

The government said the plan was prepared in comparison with ascent data of the four waves at specific positivity rates of 0.5%, 1%, 2% and 5% and also considered on the basis of the earlier four waves.

Activities under various categories will now be allowed or restricted based on the cumulative positivity rate, the number of cases and the occupancy of oxygenated beds in the city either being breached or receding from a defined threshold.

"This GRAP is of extreme importance. There will be a sense of certainty and accountability on our part towards the people of Delhi. The plan descriptively elaborates upon when the lockdown will be imposed and when it will be lifted," Mr. Kejriwal said at the meeting.

Markets in Karol Bagh, Rohini shut owing to violation of COVID rules

Capital records 81 fresh virus infections and three deaths

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT NEW DELHI

The Delhi government on Friday ordered the closure of Gaffar market and Naiwala market in Karol Bagh as well as the DDA market in Rohini's Sector owing to COVID violation protocols.

"Market shopkeepers, thiyawallahs/vendors, and general public in Gaffar market and Naiwala, Karol Bagh are not following CO-VID-appropriate behaviour. Due to large footfall, market association and shopkeepers are not able to ensure COVID protocols in the aforesaid markets for the past three days," a DDMA order far Market and Naiwala have failed to ensure the strict compliance of the guidelines of COVID-19 and that if any shopkeeper is found violating the order, necessary action will be taken according to the DDMA Act.

It stated that the Market Welfare Association of Gaf-

Earlier, Lajpat Nagar, Laxmi Nagar market, Kamla Nagar, Sarojini Nagar and parts of Sadar Bazar were among those shut for violation of COVID-19 norms.

On Friday, a health bulletin released by the government said 81 new COVID-19 cases had been reported in the Capital along with three

It added that 73,192 CO-VID tests have been conducted with a positivity rate of 0.11%.

The Delhi BIP on Friday asked the Delhi government to resolve the "severe water crisis" in the city within the next 48 hours. It also issued a warning that if the government fails in the matter, the party would not only intensify the agitation, but also cut off the water connection of Delhi Jal Board (DJB) Chairman Satyendar Jain.

'Tanker mafia'

BJP Delhi president Adesh Gupta said AAP had promised to eliminate the tanker mafia allegedly active during the then Congress government's tenure but now the same mafia was ruling the roost under the Delhi government.

"People are longing for every drop of water; the Kejriwal government and his Ministers will realise how it feels to be without water only when a Minister's water supply is cut off," he added.

'99% urban bodies have ODF status'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT CHANDIGARH

Punjab Local Government Minister Brahm Mohindra on Friday said that Punjab has bagged the top position in urban sanitation among all the States as 99.38% of its Urban Local Bodies (ULB) sustaining Open Defecation Free (ODF) status and attaining ODF+, ODF++ status against 88.18% ULBs in the country.

He said out of 163 ULBs of Punjab, 162 ULBs have got ODF+ or ODF++ certifications.

"The process of certification involves third party filed assessment for checking of open defecation, functionality of individual, public and community toilets and their status of maintenance. All the toilets should be on google map and there should be no open defecation," he said.

Mr Mohindra said that urban Punjab was declared ODF on October 2, 2018, when all the ULBs had achieved third party certi-

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Leader of Opposition in Haryana Assembly Bhupinder Singh Hooda on Friday said that the sluggish pace of corona vaccination in the State was a matter of serious concern and the ruling BJP-JJP government should take steps to boost the inoculation drive.

"Reports of corona vaccine being either over or stocks being low from different districts across the State are pouring in every other day. In many places, health officials had to call the police at the vaccination centres as large number of people were coming to get the vaccine, but they had to return home disappointed due to lack of vaccines," alleged Mr. Hooda.

He said the Opposition has been continuously warning the government about the vaccine shortage but the State government was not ple despite the challenges," Mr. Hooda said. The Leader of Opposition said the first and second waves of COVID-19 have caused a lot of damage to the country and the State and threat of the third wave looms large.

'Be ready for third wave'

"It is necessary that the government should strengthen its preparations in advance to neutralise the third wave. The safest shield to protect people from corona is vaccination. The State government should demand maximum quantity of vaccine supply from the Union government, so that every resident of the State can be vaccinated," he said.

Mr. Hooda said the government should work expeditiously towards strengthening the health infrastructure to beat all diseases, including COVID-19.

SAD-BSP promises govt. jobs

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Shiromani Akali Dal (SAD) president Sukhbir Singh Badal on Friday said that if the SAD-Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP) alliance comes to power in 2022, it would provide government jobs to the family members of those who had lost their lives in the ongoing farmers' protest against the Centre's farm laws.

Mr. Badal said more than 550 farmers had lost their lives in the ongoing agitation, which has been underway for seven months now. "The SAD-BSP alliance has decided that once the alliance comes to power in Punjab in 2022, it would look after the needs of the martyrs' families. We are committed to ensuring farmers get their just dues," he Reacting sharply, Punjab Chief Minister Captain (Retd.) Amarinder Singh said the Akali Dal was attempting to fool farmers by announcing poll promises that the State government had "already started executing long ago".

"While we support the movement against the three agricultural laws which seek to end assured government purchase of food grains as per the minimum support price, we also consider it our duty to ensure those who died while fighting for justice are given their due. Once we are voted to power, we will implement the promises made to martyrs' families in the very first meeting of the State cabinet," Mr Badal said. Mr. Badal said that apart from government jobs and free education, the SAD-BSP government would also ensure free medical insurance for such families. He said that all expenses in this regard would be borne by the Punjab government.

"Do you think Punjab's farmers are fools to be taken in by your desperate statements?" Capt. Singh asked, adding, "How do you propose to do something that has already been done?'

"We had made these announcements while you were still busy conspiring with your political masters, the BJP, to destroy our farmers," he added.

'Frivolous promises'

The Chief Minister said that with his frivolous promises, the SAD president had proved his total absence of any connect with people on the ground.

Pointing out that his government was already giving compensation of ₹5 lakh each to the families of such farmers, the Chief Minister said that of the 237 Punjab farmers who had died so far during the ongoing agitation, families of 191 had already received compensation.

Drinking water testing lab coming up in Rajasthan

It will ensure safe supply to households

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

The first State-level drinking water quality testing laboratory is coming up here amid the COVID-19 pandemic to ensure the supply of safe drinking water to all rural households with focus on the water quality monitoring and surveillance (WQMS) programme. A new building for the laboratory will be constructed in Jaipur at a cost of ₹.

The WQMS programme has been launched in Rajasthan as part of the Centre's flagship Jal Jeevan Mission, which envisages supply of safe and adequate drinking water through individual tap connections to all rural households by 2024. A target has been set for supplying 55 litres of water per person per day to every household in the rural areas, where the people have been facing scarcity of neering Department, Sudhansh Pant, said here on Friday that the accreditation for the district-level labs would be obtained from the National Accreditation Board for Testing and Calibration Laboratories (NABL) and new laboratories would also be established this year at 102 panchayat samiti headquarters in the State.

₹67 crore allocation

The State government has allocated ₹ 67 crore in the 2021-22 Annual Plan for the WOMS activities. Mr. Pant said the scope would be explored for establishing block-level drinking water quality testing laboratories on the premises of the primary health centres.

The Congress government in the State has sought changes in the norms for Central assistance for the Jal Jeevan Mission, which at present stipulates the shares of the Centre and the State in 50:50 ratio.

Tripura CPI(M) leader's premises searched

SYED SAJJAD ALI

Crime Branch of Tripura police on Friday conducted a 10-hour search on properties of senior CPI(M) leader and former minister Pabitra Kar. The raids were linked with ongoing investigation into corruption charges against the leader.

Mr Kar and the CPI(M) termed the raids politically motivated. They said party veteran leader and former Minister Badal Choudhury was earlier accused of 'corruption charges', but police had been unable to even submit a chargesheet. Crime Branch officers launched simultaneous raids in the residence of Pabitra Kar at Ramnagar locality here and his ancestral house at Khayerpur near here. The raids started at 8.30 a.m. and continued till 7.30 p.m. A police official said the searches were in connection with an FIR recently registered at Bodhjungnagar police station in west Tripura.

Kerala's Kitex Group to invest ₹1,000 crore in Telangana

It will set up a manufacturing unit at Kakatiya Mega Textile Park in Warangal

Kerala's loss seems to be Telangana's gain with the Kitex Group on Friday agreeing in principle to set up a ₹1,000crore apparel manufacturing facility at the Kakatiya Mega Textile Park in Warangal.

It will be the first phase of investment Kitex has agreed to make, which is expected to create 4,000 jobs over two years in the State. An official announcement in this regard capped the intense efforts by Telangana to woo the group, which recently threatened to drop a ₹3,500crore investment plan in Kerala alleging harassment by the administration there.

Sources said Telangana made a determined, strong pitch to Kitex, highlighting among other things how the State government respected

While the Industries Department is said to have initiated discussions a few days ago, the investment announcement followed a series of meetings Industries Minister K.T. Rama Rao and senior officials, including Secretary Jayesh Ranjan, had with a six-member delegation from Kitex that was flown in a chartered flight arranged by the Telangana government.

A release from the Minister's office said that during the meeting, Mr. Rao gave an overview of the progressive investment policies of the State government and also availability of various resources for textiles industry in Telangana. He explained about the TS-iPASS single and the other advantages that Telangana offered, including uninterrupted power supply. The Minister also said the cotton grown in the State was one of the finest in the world.

The Kitex delegation led by Managing Director Sabu M. Jacob made a presentation on the group's current activities and expansion plans. Later, they flew to the Kakatiya Mega Textile Park in a helicopter and inspected the premises.

The release said the Kitex team was impressed with the Kakatiya Textile Park infrastructure and on returning to Hyderabad met Mr. Rao and announced plans to invest ₹1,000 crore on apparel manufacturing facility in the park, a move that is expected

Krishna river board meet proposed next week

B. CHANDRASHEKHAR

The Krishna River Manage-Board (KRMB), caught in the crossfire between the two member-States - Andhra Pradesh and Telangana - is planning to hold a full-board meeting next week to discuss the water sharing arrangement at least for the current water year.

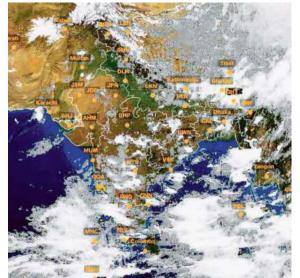

The postponement of the three-member committee meeting scheduled for July 9 had become inevitable on the day Telangana wrote to the board seeking its postponement and requesting for a full-board meeting anytime after July

"There's no point in having the meeting with one of the member-States making up its mind to stay away," an official of the river board said on Friday.

The board is likely to convene a meeting only after July 12, when the next hearing in the southern zone Bench of the National Green Tribunal (NGT) is scheduled on the alleged violation of the tribunal order in case of the Ravala-Lift Irrigation Scheme (RLIS) of Andhra Pradesh. The river board planned to visit the RLIS site for more than four months but could not do so due to Andhra Pradesh's refusal to allow the team.

At a time when the two States are engaged in a bitter row over sharing the river water, particularly in the backdrop of work taken up on the RLIS by Andhra Pradesh and hydel generation at the inter-State reservoirs of Srisailam, Nagarjunasagar and Pulichintala by Telangana, the board has been at the receiving end from two sides.

SC raps Pune civic body over road project

Apex court says HCMTR cannot be implemented without environmental clearance

SHOUMOJIT BANERJEE

In a setback to the Pune Municipal Corporation (PMC), the Supreme Court on Friday said that the civic body's ambitious High-Capacity Mass Transport Route (HCMTR) project, which has drawn flak from several environmental groups and activists, could not be implemented without prior environmental clearance (EC).

The apex court upheld the judgment of the National Green Tribunal (NGT) which had directed the PMC in November 2020 to get the EC for the HCMTR, given the mammoth scale of the project and the potential environmental damage embedded in its implementation.

In its affidavit, the technical committee of the Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change (MoEFCC) had made it clear that the HCMTR was an "area development project" and that a prior EC would have to be obtained.

Coastal road project

The PMC, on its part, had argued that the HCMTR was similar to Mumbai's coastal road project which did not require an EC. "However, the judges were not convinced by the PMC's arguments as they relied upon the opinion of the MoEFCC expert committee. The HCMTR as proposed by the corporation is to be a 36 km-long, 80 foot-wide sixlane fully elevated route passing through Pune's most developed areas. Four lanes are to be reserved for private vehicles and two for buses," said Sarang Yadwadkar, the original petitioner in the NGT against the project.

Welcoming the SC's decision, Mr. Yadwadkar said the project, if implemented, would have a severely detrimental impact on Pune's environment.

"The so-called rapid environmental impact assessment that had been carried out by the project's proponents was completely unscientific. The alignment of the route, which is proposed to pass through densely populated residential areas, hospitals, schools, water bodies, will have a tremendous impact on people and their health and on the city's green spaces," he said. Pune's environmental groups have been opposing the proposed HCMTR for years on grounds that the route alignment would not only destroy the hills and green heritage spots, but that the vehicular traffic on the HCMTR would raise pollution levels to unacceptable limits in the core city area.

Stating that the project was initially conceived to give a boost to public transport in Pune city, road activist Sujit Patwardhan, founder of NGO Parisar, said that the objective of the HCMTR project – as proposed in the draft Development Plan (DP) of 1982 and sanctioned in the final DP in 1987 - was to substantially enhance the level of public transport in the city and give public transport a dedicated route to connect with the congested parts of the city and its newly developing localities.

Mass transportation

Transport expert Pranjali Deshpande, on the other hand, said it was essential to revert to the HCMTR's mass transportation function given the general vision of the city's leaders to move towards sustainable modes of transport. "Running nonpolluting modes on the HCMTR such as an exclusive bus rapid transit system with electric buses can eliminate both air and noise pollution,"

State resumes immunisation against filariasis

Drug administration drive will be conducted in 6 districts till July 15

STAFF REPORTER

The Maharashtra government has flagged off its mass drug administration drive for the elimination of lymphatic filariasis and become the first State in the country to resume giving rounds of the drug after the second wave of COVID-19.

The drive will be conducted in six districts - Bhandara, Chandrapur, Gadchiroli, Gondia, Yavatmal and Nanded - till July 15. Maharashtra has 18 filariasis endemic districts. As of 2020-21, at least 31,258 lymphoedema and 11,929 hydrocele cases were reported from districts.

Of the six districts, Gadchiroli, Chandrapur and Bhandara will undertake the triple drug therapy. Everyone except pregnant women, children below five years and seriously ill people will be administered the drugs in the presence of health workers. State Health Minister Ra-jesh Tope said, "Despite the second wave, we are making steady progress towards the elimination of neglected tropical diseases. I urge the community to participate in these crucial rounds, while also following COVID-19 safety protocol, which includes participation in immunisation programmes.

Centre should frame policy

The Bombay High Court on Friday said the new Civil Aviation Minister Jyotiraditya Scindia must consider formulating a uniform policy for naming all airports across the country.

A Division Bench of Chief Justice Dipankar Datta and Justice G.S. Kulkarni was hearing a public interest litigation (PIL) petition filed by lawyer Filji Frederick seeking directions to the Centre to frame a uniform policy to name and rename airports. The PIL said that the Centre must not act upon proposals by States to name airports, including the upcoming airport at Navi Mumbai, until a policy was framed.

The court said the first task of the new Civil Aviation Minister must be to formulate such a policy. The court said it would not allow recent instances like the one at Navi Mumbai, where around 20,000 people from local communities have demanded that the new airport be named after late activist and parliamentarian

The court asked, "We would like to know the present position of the draft policy. Over this issue of naming [of airports], we took the State government to task last month"

Patole says no internal strife within Cong. SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Maharashtra Pradesh Congress Committee (MPCC) chief Nana Patole on Friday downplayed suggestions of rivalry between himself and Energy Minister Nitin Raut.

Speaking in Pune, he said the party was preparing to contest the crucial Pune civic body polls next year on its own. His remarks came as Mr. Raut and Revenue Minis-Balasaheb Thorat reached Delhi on Friday to reportedly seek an audience with party chief Sonia Gandhi to settle the 'problems' plaguing the State unit. "There is no internal strife within the Congress... questions are being raised just because some Congress leaders [Mr. Raut and Mr. Thorat] have gone to Delhi. But everyone has to go there when they are called for a meeting," he said.

Mr. Patole asked why only alleged disputes within his party were highlighted despite the BJP having some real ones. "Recently, BJP State president Chandrakant Patil had written to Union Home Minister Amit Shah about the MSCB scam and irregularities in sugar factories... that letter also mentions factories believed to be owned by senior BJP leader Nitin Gadkari," he said. Last week, Mr. Patole sparked a controversy after he wrote to Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray alleging irregularities in the tendering process in the selection of a coal supplying firm, which allegedly is 'linked' to Mr. Raut, by the Maharashtra State Mining Corporation. In his letter, Mr. Patole claimed that Rukhmai Infrastructures Private Limited had no past experience in supplying coal and did not fulfil the criteria to be a supplier to the 'Mahagenco'.

Undead section

The invalid Sec. 66A is often invoked out of ignorance, but serves as a tool of harassment

Tt is quite disconcerting that the Supreme Court has been informed for the second time in two years that Section 66A of the IT Act, which was struck down as unconstitutional six years ago, is still being invoked by the police and in some trial courts. One can see why the Court deemed it "a shocking state of affairs" when a petition by the People's Union for Civil Liberties (PUCL) came up for hearing. Section 66A made messages deemed by the police to be offensive or menacing to anyone, or those that caused "annoyance", a criminal offence if these were sent through a computer or computer resource. It prescribed a prison term of up to three years on conviction. In its landmark judgment in Shreya Singhal (2015), the Court ruled that the provision was vague and violated the freedom of free speech. It was so broadly defined that it took into its sweep protected speech also, and therefore upset the balance between the exercise of the free speech right and the imposition of reasonable restrictions on it. In January 2019, too, the Court's attention was drawn to the same problem of the invalidated provision being used by the police to register cases based on complaints. Not much seems to have changed since then, and it is quite surprising that the police headquarters and prosecutors in the various States had not disseminated the effect of the Court ruling among officers manning police stations.

There were also instances of courts framing charges under Section 66A even after lawyers had cited the 2015 judgment. The PUCL has said as many as 745 cases are still pending in district courts in 11 States. It is not difficult to surmise that police officers who receive complaints and register them as First Information Reports may not be aware of the judgment, though one cannot rule out instances of the section being invoked deliberately as a tool of harassment. Ignorance of the law is no excuse for the citizen, and it must equally be no excuse for police officers who include invalidated sections in FIRs. Recently, police in Uttar Pradesh booked a journalist for defamation under Section 500 of the IPC, even though the Supreme Court has ruled that defamation can be pursued only by way of private complaints and there can be no FIR. The current hearing may result in directions to States and the police, as well as the court registries, for appropriate advisories to both station-house officers and magistrates, but it is not necessary for those concerned to wait for such orders. Police chiefs and the directorates of prosecution must proactively begin a process of conveying to the lower courts and investigators all important judgments and their effect on the practices relating to investigation, prosecution and the framing of charges from time to time.

Murder of a President

Haiti needs to hold legislative and presidential elections soon for a legitimate government

The brazen assassination of Jovenel Moïse, the 53year-old President of Haiti, has pushed the impoand economic crises into more chaos. Haitian police say 28 foreign mercenaries, including retired Colombian soldiers, killed the President at his residence in Port-au-Prince early Wednesday. Most of them were arrested and some were killed in a gun battle. But key questions - who the mastermind was, what the motive was and how a group of armed foreigners could walk into a presidential residence, shoot him dead and exit are yet to be answered. Moïse was at the centre of a political crisis that had shaken the country in recent months. His opponents claimed that his five-year-term came to an end on February 7 and demanded his resignation. Moïse, who took over office in February 2017, months after his disputed election in 2016, claimed that his term would be over only in February 2022. When the Opposition formed a parallel government, Moïse alleged a coup and cracked down on them. Moïse came to power promising to strengthen Haiti's institutions, fix its economy, fight corruption and stabilise governance. But he himself faced serious corruption allegations, his government could not hold the 2019 parliamentary elections and the economy contracted under his watch. The outbreak of COVID-19 made matters worse.

Now, Haiti stares into an uncertain future. According to the Constitution, the President of the Supreme Court should take charge. But the Supreme Court chief died of COVID-19 last month. There is no legislature as the 2019 elections have been postponed. For now, interim Prime Minister Claude Joseph has taken charge. But Moïse had fired him two days before his death and nominated Ariel Henry, a neurosurgeon, for the post. Mr. Joseph is now consolidating the government, but Mr. Henry has asked him to step down, signalling that another political crisis is taking shape in the midst of security worries. This is not the time for another power struggle. Haiti's politicians and military should take a phased approach of uncovering the truth, stabilising the country and ensuring the formation of a legitimate administration. The government's immediate priority should be to get to the bottom of the assassination. If foreign nationals were involved in the attack, as the police have claimed, Haiti should get international help in the investigation. And Haitian leaders should not allow the vacuum left by Moïse's assassination to destabilise the country further. Part of the problems Haiti faces is its inability to hold free, fair and credible elections in time and ensure a peaceful transition of power. Interim Prime Minister Joseph, Mr. Henry and other leaders should come together and hold legislative and presidential elections at the opportune time to ensure that a stable government with popular legitimacy is in place to address the myriad problems the country is facing.

In defence of India's noisy democracy

In the current moment, it is important to be clear why comparisons with China are not only specious but also dangerous hina's developmental pathway over the last century has been spectacular. No country in history has ever grown faster and more dynamically. Not only have hundreds of millions been lifted out of poverty, but social indicators have improved dramatically. India's developmental record has been much more mixed. Since the 1990s, the Indian economy has grown impressively, but it remains far behind China in its global competitiveness. Poverty has come down, but employment prospects for the majority remain limited to low-wage informal sector jobs that are, by definition, precarious. Maybe, most startling of all, improvements in basic social development indicators have lagged, so much so that as Jean Drèze and Amartya Sen have pointed out, India has actually fallen behind Bangladesh and Pakis-

The 'too democratic' line

Comparing these track records, some commentators, including voices in the Government, have drawn a facile lesson. India's problem is that it is just too democratic. Unlike China, making and implementing key decisions about public investment and various reforms is impossible in the din of multiple and contradictory democratic voices. What is needed are firmer and more independent forms of decision-making that are insulated from this cacophony.

This line of thinking has at various times been embraced by sections of the Left (Leninism) and multi-lateral technocrats and bankers, but, increasingly, has become the animating fantasy of right-wing leaders and movements, ranging from elected autocrats such as Donald Trump, Brazil's Jair Bolsonaro and Narendra

Modi. The strangeness of these bedfellows alone should be cause for alarm. But in the current moment, it is especially important to be clear why comparisons with China are not only specious, but very dangerous.

The claim that less democracy is good for development does not stand up to comparative, theoretical and ethical scrutiny. Contrary to those who believe economic management cannot be left to the whims of democratic forces, the comparative evidence clearly shows that democratic regimes have on balance performed better than non-democratic regimes.

China, with a history of statebuilding going back two millennia, and an exceptionally well-organised, disciplined and brutal form of authoritarianism, has done especially well in transforming its economy. Africa and West Asia, where authoritarian governments of every stripe have dominated, remain world economic laggards. The Latin American military dictatorships of the 1960s and 1970s had a terrible economic and social record, and it was with the return of democracy and the "pink wave" of Left populist parties that prosperity and social progress were ushered in. Taiwan and South Korea are also instructive. Their economic take-offs happened under military regimes and relied on labour repression. Their transitions to democracy saw their economies move up to the next level and become much more inclusive.

Democracy and development Most pointedly though, one only has to look within India to understand how development and democracy can thrive together. By just about any measure, Kerala and Tamil Nadu have done more to improve the lives of all their citizens across castes and classes than any other States in India and it is no coincidence that both have also had the longest and most sustained popular democratic movements and intense party competition in the country. In contrast, in Gujarat, where single party Bhara-place for nearly a quarter century, growth has been solid but accompanied by increased social exclusion and stagnation in educational achievement and poverty reduction. The comparative record leaves little doubt that on balance, democracies are better at promoting inclusive growth. The theory behind the authoritarian fantasy also does not hold up. First, the assumption that authoritarianism supports forms of decision-making that can rise above the hubbub of democratic demand-making to get things done presumes that those in command will serve the general interest rather than catering to the powerful and that when they enjoy such autonomy, they actually know what to do with it. This is just hubris. On both these points, democracies are in fact more likely to meet the necessary conditions for successful decision making. Elected representatives, no matter how venal, have to win re-election, which means answering to a broad swath of the electorate.

It allows negotiation

The conflicts and noise that democracy generates may complicate things, but in the end, having to respond to a broad spectrum of interests and identities not only protects against catastrophic decisions, but actually allows for forms of negotiation and compromise that can bridge across interests and even balance otherwise conflicting imperatives for growth, justice, sustainability and social inclusion. The remarkable progress the United Progressive Alliance governments made in building a weltiya Janata Party rule has been in fare state (National Rural Employment Guarantee Act, the Right To Information, the right to food and other programmes) is a testament to how a democracy can master even the most complex policy goals. As democratic theorists have long argued, the common good cannot and should not be determined by science, profits, technocrats or autocratic fiat. What it is and how we get there can only emerge out of sustained societal

A look at China

India's tryst with democracy was born not only of its liberation movement but also of its affinity with what makes democracy ethically unique: it promotes equality by endowing all citizens with the same civic, political and social rights even as it protects and nurtures individuality and difference. And this is where the China-India comparison is so problematic, indeed unconscionable.

However one might like to measure or evaluate China's development successes, there is no way to discount the human cost of the party-made great famine that took some 35 million lives, a cultural revolution that made enemies out of neighbours, a one child policy that devastated families and erased a generation or the violent, systematic repression of the Uyghur Muslim and Tibetan minorities. These were not unfortunate excesses or the inevitable costs of development. These were and are the irredeemable instincts and predations of an authoritarian state, one which now denounces as "historical nihilism" any interpretations of the past that challenge the party's official history. Conversely, while India's democracy has been quarrelsome, cumbersome and often dominated by elites, it has also opened social and political spaces for subordinate groups and has built a sense of shared identity and belonging in the world's largest and most diverse society. It has preserved individual liberties, group identities and religious and thought freedoms, all the things that confer recognition on human beings. To off between these freedoms and the role they have played in building a pluralistic nation and some cold, utilitarian calculus of "development" not only does violence to the very idea of human agency and dignity but completely abstracts from the very different social and historical realities of India and China.

Beyond these comparative arguments for democracy, one need look no further than the object lesson the BJP government has provided to dismiss the authoritarian fantasy. The democratic backsliding has been clear. The Government has not only sought to centralise, insulate and personalise decision-making but has also aggressively undermined the independence of democratic institutions and silenced and imprisoned Opposition voices, all in the name of nationalism and promoting development. Yet, the development track is dismal at best. While corporate business interests and the the overall economy has sputtered and since COVID-19 has experienced the worst contraction of any sizeable economy in the world. Demonetisation and the disastrous response to the second COVID-19 wave were not just instances of utter policy incoherence fuelled by the sycophancy and myopia that comes with an inwardly focused government, but exposed a degree of callousness and arrogance rarely seen in a democracy. On the social front, the pursuit of Hindutya – a prototypical variant of authoritarian ethnic nationalism – has shaken India's democratic norms and institutional foundations and weaponised a politics of polarisation and demonisation that threaten to unravel the social fabric of the nation.

There is a backslide

The bar on criticism that muzzles the advocate

The new Bar Council of India rules fly in the face of constitutional guarantees of free speech and freedom of profession

n June 25,2021, amendments to the Bar Council of rules bit.ly/2SZLcah) which govern the professional conduct and etiquette of advocates were notified. They render advocates liable for disciplinary proceedings for making disparaging statements about a court, judge, the Bar Council of India (or State Bar Councils) or its members. The consequences include suspension and disbarment. The amendments clarify that "... healthy and bona-fide criticism made in good faith, shall not be treated as a 'misconduct'".

Challenges were mounted before various High Courts immediately after the amendments were notified. The Bar Council of India, in response, has kept the rules in abeyance, pending a review by a committee comprising senior advocates, members of bar associations and the Bar Council of India. The amendments also require the Chief Justice of India's approval before coming into effect, which has not yet been obtained.

The intent is clear

The intent behind these amendments is betrayed by events that preceded their introduction: On May 25, 2020, 22 senior advocates addressed an open letter (https:// bit.ly/36oLeLV) urging the Supreme Court of India to intervene in the migrant crisis. A retired judge of the Supreme Court also an article (https:// bit.ly/3qXRx2s) on May 28, condemning the Court's inaction in this regard. In response, the Bar Council of India issued a press release (https://bit.ly/2VetQqL) on May 30, characterising the criticism as a "sustained and synchronized attack on Supreme Court (sic)" by "disgruntled members of the bar and some unhappy and disappointed former judges".

This was followed by an attack on a legal news portal (Live Law) an article bit.ly/2VkCrbv) that was critical of the Bar Council of India Chairman, Manan Kumar Mishra. The article noted how the Chairman accused certain advocates of politicising the Bar, while himself openly professing his allegiance to the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP). In 2014, as Chairman of the Bar Council of India, he pledged his support for the party and Narendra Modi, holding himself out as the representative of India's nearly 1.7 million advo-

In 2016, he addressed a fawning missive to Prime Minister Modi (on the Bar Council of India letterhead), describing him as the "most efficient and able leader of the world". The article recounted how the Chairman championed a 'Men Too Movement' (https:// bit.ly/36tVORC) following the sexual harassment complaint against former Chief Justice of India Ranjan Gogoi, and also denounced anti-Citizenship (Amendment) Act protesters as "illiterate, ignorant mass". In each of these actions, Mr. Mishra claimed to speak on behalf of the Indian Bar, and the article deprecated this improper use of public office.

There was swift retaliation to the Live Law article. A Bar Council of India resolution (https:// bit.ly/2UBdUyq), condemned the author for "scandal mongering and vilification", and resolved to take action against the author and Live Law. The resolution extolled (without specifics) the "...laudable acts done and being done by the [Bar Council of India Chairman] for promotion of a strong, vibrant and independent Bar and Judiciary".

A chance for a review

It was in this backdrop that on June 3, 2020, while India was in the throes of an unprecedented novel coronavirus pandemic, and access to justice was severely impaired owing to the limited functioning of courts, the Bar Council of India convened a meeting and proposed amendments to the rules for professional conduct.

Contemporaneously, the Supreme Court made its views on censure of the judiciary clear: at a time where only matters of exceptional urgency were being entertained during the pandemic, the Court carved out an inordinate amount of time to charge individuals (including advocate Prashant Bhushan) with criminal contempt for critical remarks about the Supreme Court. Today, the Court under the Chief Justice of India, N.V. Ramana, along with the Committee reviewing the new rules, have an opportunity prevent a further assault on free speech by rejecting the amend-

Historically, our country's speech laws have served to fortify persons and institutions of power, while silencing those assailing their actions. Laws (such as sedition and criminal contempt) perpetuate the fiction that the authority of these institutions rests on the fragile foundation of 'public faith', and that dissent would impair the ability of powerful institutions such as courts and government bodies to carry out their duties. This notion is a bogeyman that has been used to silence critics, and is a colonial and feudal relic. State institutions derive their authority from the power vested in them by the law, and nothing else. Criticism (no matter how trenchant) is essential to hold these institutions accountable, and strengthen them.

A chilling effect

The new Bar Council of India rules fly in the face of basic constitutional guarantees of free speech and the freedom of profession. The events preceding the introduction of the amendments demonstrate how limited the scope for "healthy" criticism under the new rules would be. Further, even if disciplinary proceedings under the new rules (should they come into effect) do not result in serious consequences such as disbarment, the pain of the process and the possible consequences to the careers of advocates would have a chilling effect.

The Bar Council of India's statement (suspending the amendments pending review by the committee) notes that "no prudent and real Advocate would oppose [the new rules]" and that "Some people are in the habit to object to each and every reformative step, but [the Bar Council of India] is not going to succumb to any such undue pressure". Hopefully, the Bar Council of India's statement is not a chronicle of a charade foretold, and the amendments will be reviewed objectively.

'Professional conduct and etiquette' is an enigmatic phrase for the Indian Bar, as it is hard to fathom what the aspirational standard is. Recently, the Solicitor General, Tushar Mehta, was questioned in court about the Government's defaults on its oxygen supply commitments during the second wave of the pandemic. In response, he said that 'we have to act as responsible individuals' and not as 'unhappy girlfriends', and added, 'Let's try and not be a cry baby'. Mr. Mehta's response was not only unprofessional but was also unsuitable for the issue of citizens being starved of oxygen. But his words are perhaps a fitting response to the Bar Council of India and other institutions that are rankled by criticism from citizens who have every right to raise their voices against authority in a democracy.

Ending the shift between Jammu and Kashmir

The 149-year-old bi-annual tradition of shifting the capital of Jammu and Kashmir to Jammu during winters and Srinagar during summers is coming to an end. Peerzada Ashiq reports on a grand and expensive practice that led to the region becoming a melting pot of cultures and what its end portends for the people undreds of impassable snowcapped mountains are spread ⊥ over the 300-km stretch separating the Jammu region from the Kashmir Valley. A narrow highway which cuts through the Pir Panjal mountain range and snakes through the 2.85-km-long tunnel near Banihal connects the Dogrispeaking Hindu population with the Kashmiri-speaking Muslim population.

Given that the Kashmir Valley is prone to landslides, shooting stones and heavy snow, a tradition began, 149 years ago, of shifting the capital of Jammu and Kashmir (J&K) to Srinagar during summers and to Jammu during winters. The 'Darbar Move', which brought two linguistically and culturally different regions closer, was entirely dependent on the vagaries of weather.

Today, this tradition is likely to become history after the Lieutenant-Governor's administration decided to shift to e-offices this month. The administration says the epic bi-annual move is too costly and takes up precious time and resources. But the decision has left hundreds of families worried that their decades-old links with families across the mountains may fade away. Students are concerned about losing opportunities; traders about losing profits. Some suspect that the move has a larger motive.

Sharing of cultures

Notwithstanding the distance and the difference in culture and language, Chasfeeda Shah, 30, a media professional from Kashmir's Hyderpora, and Maanya Sethi, 26, a human resource manager from Jammu's Gandhi Nagar, grew up seeing the Shahs and the Sethis as one family since 1983. A chance meeting between Chasfeeda's father Bashir Ahmad Shah, a police officer, and Maanya's grandfather Surinder Sethi, a Section Officer in the Irrigation Department, in Jammu city transformed into a bond and the Sethis and Shahs became one extended family.

"I was posted in Jammu during the Darbar Move in 1983 and met Sethi sahib. Since then, we have stuck together through thick and thin. Sethi sahib met with an accident in the 1990s. I shifted him to hospital and stayed by his side till he recovered. Thereafter, we celebrated weddings, Eid and Diwali together.' Shah says.

Maanya is a fan of Kashmiri 'wazwan', an array of meat dishes served at Kashmiri weddings, and Chasfeeda developed a sweet tooth for the famous sweets of Jammu, also known as a city of temples. "I was introduced to 'wazwan' dishes when the Shahs invited our family on Eid many years ago. I got hooked to minced meat dishes like Rista and Gushtaba. I love spending summer vacations at the Shahs' house in Srinagar. Ours is a relationship that cannot be expressed in words. When my grandfather passed away, Bashir sahib booked a flight so he wouldn't miss the final rites," Maanya says.

For Chasfeeda, born in conflict-ridden Kashmir, shifting to Jammu meant six months of normal life, away from bomb blasts and frequent exchange of fire. She first entered a cinema hall in Jammu because all the cinemas were closed in Kashmir in the 1990s. "The first movie I watched was Hum Saath-Saath Hai in Apsara cinema hall in Jammu's Gandhi Nagar. In Jammu, I would attend coaching classes conducted by a Kashmiri Pandit teacher and eat without any fear on the roadside. I like Jammu weddings - they're loud and grand unlike those in Kashmir," Chasfeeda

In July, when the Lieutenant-Governor administration issued a directive asking all the employees associated with the Darbar Move to vacate their flats within three weeks, without citing any reason, Chasfeeda was upset. In Jammu, Maanya felt the same way. "I will miss the Shahs if the Darbar Move stops," she says. This is not the first time that the Darbar Move has come under a cloud. In January 1987, during his visit to J&K, Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi was stranded in Kashmir due to heavy snowfall while the capital was in Jammu. "Gandhi asked the Farooq Abdullah government to have a re-look at this practice because officials were unavailable when they were needed in Kashmir during winters. However, an agitation started by the Chamber of Commerce and Industries-Jammu and the Jammu Bar Association forced the government to keep the tradition," says former Director General of Tourism, Saleem Beg, who has continued to visit Jammu every winter since the 1970s, and even after his retirement.

A committee formed in 1987, headed by the then Chief Secretary, Shiekh Ghulam Rasool, submitted a report titled 'Darbar Move: The Reality' to the government, to place before it the pros and cons of the practice. But the report was put on the back burner after the Jammu agitation.

"The process of shifting hundreds of files and employees ran smoothly. It always connected people, regions and cultures," Beg says.

A week-long carnival

The Hindu Dogra rulers from Jammu expanded their boundaries up to Afghanistan in the 19th Century, but most of them preferred to stay in the Valley. It was in 1872 that Maharaja Ranbir Singh began the practice of shifting his government from Jammu to Srinagar in summers, taking the arduous journey along the Banihal Cart Road.

"Dogra rulers popularised the papier-mâché artwork of Kashmir in many Jammu structures and the architectural elements of the Dogra Raj are visible in monuments in Srinagar such as the Sher Garhi Palace. Dogra ruler Pratap Singh was so impressed by Kashmir's calligraphy that he started an annual award for calligraphy artists," says Beg.

The Dogra rulers set up key institutions like J&K's first museum and the Oriental Research Library in Srinagar. 'Even the Royal Samadhi is in Srinagar. The Dogra Maharajas preferred to be called as Kashmir's kings and contributed a lot to the Valley's socio-economic development," Beg says. Zafar Choudhary, a Jammu-based writer and author of the book, Kashmir Conflict and Muslims of Jammu, goes to the extent of saying that the Dogra rulers were biased towards Kashmir. "The first power project of J&K was set up in Uri in the Valley so that the King's palace could be well lit in Srinagar. No such project came up in Jammu despite the Chenab river flowing through it. When Maharaja Gulab Singh, the founder of the modern but difficult State of J&K, stepped down for his son, Ranbir Singh, he decided to live the last four years of his life in Kashmir as its Governor," Choudhary says.

The Dogra Maharaja used hundreds of carts driven by horses and elephants to move to Srinagar through the treacherous stretch connecting Jammu and Kashmir. Cut to 2019: files and records, many loaded in hard drives and computers, took about a week to move to the capital via trucks and buses. A total of 151 government departments used to shift capital twice a year in J&K.

"All the departments would first bundle their files and seal them and then stock them in tin trunks. A team of every department would head for the capital where everyone would be shifting. On arrival of the trucks, the teams would identify the trunks and unload them and place the files in the respective departments," Beg recalls.

According to the officials of the J&K Estates Department, it took 152 trucks and 56 buses in April 2019 to ferry files and employees from Srinagar to Jammu. The August 5, 2019 decision to end J&K's special status, along with the CO-VID-19 pandemic, disrupted the Darbar Move in 2020 and 2021.

According to official figures, 10,112 employees had moved to Jammu, including 1,179 gazetted officers, 7,110 non-gazetted employees and 1,823 Class IV employees, in April 2019. "While the loading and unloading of files cost 45.41 lakh, the carriage cost $116.55 lakh. The Darbar Move cost about ₹1,636.04 lakh, besides the additional expenditure of ₹1,213.44 lakh as special allowance to the employees," an official of the Estates Department says, on the condition of anonymity.

The Darbar Move, which took place twice a year – in October/November to Jammu and in April/May to Srinagar – would take two weeks of working days. From the Raj Bhavan to the Chief Minister's Secretariat to the Chief Justice's office, the shifting of the capital was like a week-long carnival. It cost around ₹198 crore in 2019 to keep the tradition alive,

According to the Estates Department, 151 private houses, 125 J&K Tourism Department Corporation structures and 1,457 hotels were booked for shifting employees to Kashmir, while 69 private houses, 253 J&K Tourism Department Corporation structures and 2,387 hotels were booked in Jammu. Arranging for accommodation cost the exchequer ₹4,161 lakh in Srinagar and ₹2,053.99 lakh in Jammu in 2019.

Under the scanner of the court

It was this "expenditure, wastage of time and the labour" that caught the attention of the J&K High Court in May 2020 while it was hearing a petition on the Darbar Move and the ongoing pandemic. A Division Bench of the court comprising then Chief Justice Gita Mittal and Justice Rajnesh Oswal directed the Secretary, Ministry of Home Affairs, Government of India, and the Chief Secretary of J&K "to examine the issues raised by the court".

Monika Kohli, amicus curiae, argued against the Darbar Move. "Jammu and Srinagar are well connected by air, road and rail service. The distance of about 300 km is covered in half an hour by flight. It is clearly logical that the consideration of extreme weather in support of the Darbar Move does not hold weight today," she said.

A battery of lawyers also questioned the security of records that were being ferried from one place to another. "Sensitive documents and old archives cannot tolerate exposure of any kind. Such documents may be on matters of security of the country as well as of the Union Territory. This security ought not be compromised for any reason whatsoever." Kohli said.

Chief Justice Mittal, who was impressed by the arguments, called for rationalisation of the tradition, "The amount of money, resources and time which could be saved could be utilised towards the welfare and development of the Union Territory, which has otherwise witnessed much turmoil. The financial savings and resources could be utilised for contributing towards the protection and propagation of its inherent culture and heritage of the communities," she observed.

Beyond an emotional bond

The Darbar Move is not just an emotional bond between Kashmir and Jammu. Hundreds of students leave turmoil-hit Kashmir Valley to go to Jammu to seek admission into educational institutes and coaching centres. Retailers in Jammu procure special stocks for the 10,000 employees and their families and friends who mill around Jammu for six months.

Naresh Katoch, sales manager of the famous sweet shop, Pahalwan Di Hatti, at Jammu's Wave Mall, says his shop has traditionally attracted buyers from Kashmir during winters. "Sales would see a jump when Kashmiris would stay in Jammu. Kashmiris have a special preference for Sund Panjeeri, Kala Kand, Chana Murgi and chocolate bars and would take huge stocks back to Srinagar, where we don't have an outlet," Katoch says.

Similarly, Jammu's Khati Ka Talab area has become a hub of pink tea sellers. "Kashmiris prefer pink tea or noon chai (salty tea) and special morning bread. From just two to three shops in the 1980s, there are over a dozen shops serving the tea," says Niyaz Ahmad, a shopkeeper who shifted from Ramban area to Khati Ka Talab in the 1980s and managed to set up a buzzing tea business

"The Darbar Move, if it was a practice in the West, would have been an annual festival and would probably have everyone participating, even outsiders; it would be used to showcase the uniqueness of the region. But here it's mired in politics and confusion. The fact remains that there is no viable alternative to the practice so far. Can J&K afford an administrative capital somewhere between Jammu and Srinagar," Choudhary asks.

He says many leading retail shops in Jammu have stopped buying fresh stocks now that the pandemic has disrupted the practice. "Shopkeepers would procure special stocks in September for the Kashmiris who would travel and stay here for six months," he says.

Arun Gupta, who heads the Chamber of Commerce-Jammu, says the government will soon provide a clarification about the move. "The tradition is not merely about shifting of files but a living example of brotherhood. We will oppose any move to end it. Shifting may cost the exchequer ₹200 crore but the fact remains that the people of Kashmir spend thousands of crores here and vice versa. It's the job of the government to maintain brotherhood in J&K," he says.

Politics over the Darbar Move

Three Jammu-based political parties the Bharatiya Janata Party, the J&K National Panthers Party, and Ikkjutt Jammu – have welcomed the move to abandon the practice. They see this as an end to Kashmir's domination over the Civil Secretariat, the seat of governance in J&K. Kashmir-based parties have opposed the move.

Choudhary says there were more Kashmiri employees than Jammu ones in the Secretariat in the 1950s and 1960s. "That gave birth to the notion that there was a bias against Jammu," he

The practice resulted in the region becoming a melting pot of cultures. Marriages took place between people from different regions: Muslims from the Kashmir Valley, the Chenab Valley and the Pir Panjal Valley, otherwise separated by mountains. It resulted in new cross-cultural Muslim colonies coming up in the surroundings of Jammu city.

"Jammu has seen a new cultural landscape with cross-cultural marriages. New colonies have come up. If the Darbar Move stops, people from the Chenab Valley and the Pir Panjal Valley will feel like a part of them is not there," Choudhary says.

However, senior BJP leaders like Kavinder Gupta termed the end of the Darbar Move akin to the August 5, 2019 move, which took away the special constitutional position of J&K.

"We welcome it. The first priority is governance. There are e-offices in place now. It will not impact cultural interaction. Who has time to interact in this era of Internet and social media? The only issue is that the Jammu Civil Secretariat requires equal recruitment: about 70% of the recruits in the Secretariat are from Kashmir. In fact, most of the higher posts are occupied by the people of Kashmir," Ikkjutt Jammu president Ankur Sharma said.

More than resolving the issue, the Lieutenant-Governor administration has ushered in new challenges for itself. Communist Party of India (Marxist) leader M.Y. Tarigami has asked the government to explain where the Chief Secretary, the Director General of Police, and the administrative secretaries will function from. "If people have to meet any officer, where will they meet him or her? Where will the Assembly function from? Where will the Raj Bhavan be? There is no clarity on this issue," Tariga-

Many political analysts fear that the move will drive the wedge between the Kashmir and Jammu regions deeper, which could eventually result in their separation, the way Ladakh was carved out as a separate Union Territory on August 5, 2019. Gul Wani, head of the Department of Political Science at Kashmir University, is wary of the move. "On the face of it, it seems like a step towards good governance. But the fact remains that people from Kashmir see Jammu as a safe location to settle down and buy property. Most prefer to spend their earnings there. The old and ailing population, who cannot live in severe winters in Kashmir, prefer the warm weather in Jammu. In contrast, the people from Jammu are not able to settle down in Kashmir. The whole move has a conspiracy angle to it. In Kashmir, conspiracies are proven true with time," he says.

Meanwhile, hundreds of files of the 97 departments, which include 47 Secretariat-based departments, have been digitised so far. The J&K e-office project has scanned and digitised around two crore pages from 3.50 lakh files, in a bid to end the practice of shifting the capital. "The e-office is one of the reformative steps taken to put an end to the Darbar Move in J&K, thus saving crores of rupees spent on transporting files in hundreds of trucks," Lieutenant-Governor Manoj Sinha said earlier this month.

In Srinagar's Hyderpora, Chasfeeda is singing a lullaby to her 18-month-old daughter, Madiha. "I am not sure now if the relationship between the Shahs and the Sethis will last through the next generation," she rues, pointing towards the baby.

Terrain, facilities in J&K to reflect in delimitation

"A draft report will be prepared, wherein the suggestions of the associate members will also be taken into account. Thereafter, it will be in the public domain for a consensus. Only after the fresh comments, the final draft will be prepared. Opportunity will be given to people at large to take into account all the views," he stated.

Referring to the Peoples Democratic Party's accusations that the panel's decisions were pre-planned, Mr. Chandra said, "If it was so, we would not have held such broad-based consultations. I would suggest that such apprehensions should be shunned now. The idea of coming to J&K and visiting Srinagar, Pahalgam, Kishtwar and Jammu was to get peoples perspectives. People from far-off areas were able to share their difficulties. All said they were happy with the process."

The delimitation of 1995 was based on the 1981 Census and took into account 14 districts only. "J&K has 20 districts now. There are overlapping of districts as well as tehsils. In 12 districts, constituency boundaries are extended beyond the districts' limits," he added.

Most of J&K's political parties, during the meetings with the panel, have stressed on immediate restoration of statehood after the new constituencies are delineated by the panel.

Cooperation Ministry will usurp States' rights: Oppn.

On Thursday, CPI(M) general secretary Sitaram Yechury alleged that the move was taken with an eye on the cash reserves of the cooperative banks.

Dhananjay Mahadik, a former member of the Lok Sabha who won on an NCP ticket and currently with the BIP, welcomed the move as an important part in rural development. Mr. Mahadik, who was associated with sugar and milk cooperatives in Maharashtra, said that "whatever development has taken place in rural areas in Maharashtra owes a lot to the rise of cooperatives in the State." He said, "There is a limit to what private enterprise can do when it comes to rural development and Prime Minister Modi understands that. Ministry of Cooperation will require an Act of Parliament to be notified, as cooperatives in Maharashtra are under a State Act of 1960, but it will be very beneficial if the cooperative movement spreads across the country."

Senior BJP leaders said that a growing grass roots cooperative sector, facilitated by the Central government, would uproot some "political monopolies and old shibboleths".

"And why shouldn't that be so?" asked one general secretary of the BJP.

'India concerned by events in Afghanistan'

Mr. Jaishankar's visit to Moscow coincided with an interaction between Zamir Kabulov, Special Envoy of the Russian President for Afghanistan, and a Taliban delegation, led by Sheikh Shahabuddhin Delawar.

The Taliban delegation promised not to allow "any one to use the soil of Afghanistan against any one country, nor will tolerate intervention of others," said Suhail Shaheen, Taliban's 'spokesman for international media (English)'. He also assured that the Taliban "are not going to target diplomats, embassies and consulates, NGOs and their staff".

The Afghan situation will also come up for further consultation at Dushanbe where the ministerial meeting of the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation (SCO) will take place next week. The issue will come up also at Tashkent which will host a conference of Central and Southern Asia. "We hope all the participants (at Dushanbe and Tashkent) will send a strong message to all the people of Afghanistan to start negotiating for real," said Mr. Lavrov.

In a symbolic move, Mr. Jaishankar left for Georgia after his interactions in Moscow. In Georgian capital Tbilisi, he is the first Indian External Affairs Minister to visit since the country attained freedom from Soviet control in 1991.

His interaction with Georgian Foreign Minister David Zalkaliani is likely to be watched by Moscow which continues to have tense bilateral ties with Tbilisi.

Violence erupts ahead of block-level polls in U.P. A BDC member's relative was killed and a woman SP candidate roughed up

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Twenty-four incidents of crime including violence, stone-pelting, rioting and scuffles were reported in 22 districts of Uttar Pradesh during the nomination for the block pramukh elections, said ADG Law and Order Prashant Kumar. Sixteen FIRs were lodged and 25 persons arrested.

While one person was killed in Bahraich as he resisted an alleged attempt to abduct his relative by a BJP canhusband and supporters, police arrested two men for manhandling a Samajwadi Party candidate in Lakhimpur Kheri. Six policemen were suspended with the administration ordering a magisterial probe.

The Bahraich attack took place on Thursday night at Dinapurwa village when BJP candidate Sarita Yagyasaini's husband Sudhir, along with her supporters and a gun man reached BDC member Yadurai Devi's house.

They tried to abduct her to get her vote in the polls scheduled for July 10, local residents alleged. When Yadurai Devi's brother-in-law Mayaram, 60, resisted, he was hit with the butt of a gun and died on the spot, police said.

FIR registered

Superintendent of Police Sujata Singh said an FIR has been registered against 10 people, including Sudhir Yagyasaini and the gunman deployed for the security of his wife Sarita. Police have arrested two of the accused -Ram Bhulawan Shukla and Jitendra Kumar – and teams have been formed to arrest the others involved in the act, she said. Meanwhile, in Kaushambi's Sirathu block, police raided the residence of an independent candidate, finding 18 BDC members present there.

They were taken to the Saini police station and later released after the intervention of BJP MLA Shitla Prasad Patel. Circle Officer Yogendra Krishan Narain said he had got information that independent candidate Dileep Patel had held 18 BDC members hostage in his house. The BDC members however.

claimed they had gone to Mr. Patel's house willingly.

In Lakhimpur Kheri, Samajwadi Party's district president Ram Pal Yadav and others alleged that their party nominee and her proposer were manhandled by the BJP man was not allowed to submit the nomination papers, they claimed. In a video of the incident, two men could be briefly seen pulling Anita Yadav by her saree in full view outside the Pasgawan block compound. Ms. Yadav was the proposer of the SP candidate Ritu Singh.

Samajwadi Party chief Akhilesh Yadav had tweeted a short clip of the incident with the caption: "Satta ke bhookhe, Yogi ke gunde (Hungry for power, Yogi's goons).'

Police later arrested two men - Yash Verma and Brij Kishore - based on Ms Singh's complaint.

Six policemen, including Mohammadi Circle Officer Abhay Pratap Malla, Pasagawan SHO Adarsh Kumar Singh, one inspector and three sub-inspectors posted were suspended for the dereliction of duty.

Journalist moves SC against sedition law

'It has a chilling effect on free speech'

LEGAL CORRESPONDENT

Senior journalist Sashi Kumar has moved the Supreme Court saying the sedition law is being applied by the government against journalists, activists, filmmakers and civil society in a "politicised fashion".

Mr. Kumar, represented by advocates Kaleeswaram Raj, Nishe Rajen Shonker and Thulasi K. Raj, cited the cases of climate activist Disha Ravi, filmmaker Aisha Sultana and journalists Vinod Dua and Siddique Kappan in this regard.

"There has been a dramatic jump in charging a sedition since 2016. In 2019, 93 cases were on the ground of sedition as compared to the 35 cases that were filed in 2016. The same constitutes a 165% increase. Of these 93 cases, charge sheets were filed in a mere 17% of cases and even worse, the conviction rate was an abysmally low 3.3%," the application said.

The top court has recently said it would examine the use of the sedition provision (Section 124A) of the Indian Penal Code. Mr. Kumar has sought permission to intervene in the case before the court. He said the provision has a chilling effect on the right to free speech.

Shatabdi rakes to be standby for Vande Bharat trains

They will be deployed in case of any exigency

The Railway Ministry has decided to deploy Shatabdi Express rakes to run as Vande Bharat Express in the event of the latter suffering a breakdown or unusual late running.

Two rakes of Train18 model, India's first semi-highspeed train, rolled out by the Integral Coach Factory here were later flagged off as Vande Bharat Express on the New Delhi-Varanasi and New Delhi-Katra sectors. After the self-propelled trains emerged a tremendous success in terms of safety, ride quality and operational efficiency, Prime Minister Na-

No flexi fare

With just two rakes operating on the two important routes, the Railway Board has approved a proposal to utilise Shatabdi Express rakes in case of any breakdown or unusual delay of Vande Bharat Expresses.

As a special case, the class-wise normal basic fare for Shatabdi Express would be charged and the difference in fare paid in excess by passengers would be refunded. Though the Shatabdi rake would run in the name of Vande Bharat Express the policy of flexi fare would not apply on such In January this year, the Indian Railways finalised train sets (44 rakes of 16 cars each) to be manufactured at three production units - Integral Coach Factory, Chennai, Modern Coach Factory, Rae Bareli and Rail Coach Factory, Kapurthala. It was announced that 75% of the components would be locally made, giving a boost to 'Make in India' campaign.

The ₹2,211 crore work for design, development, manufacture, supply, integration, testing and commissioning of the three-phase propulsion for trainsets was awarded to Medha Servo Drives Ltd along with a five-year comprehensive maintenance contract. While the ICF would roll out the maximum of 24 rakes. the MCF and the RCF would deliver 10 each.

The first two prototype tender for Vande Bharat rakes are expected by December 2022 and series production of about six rakes per quarter would commence in mid 2023.

"Tejas Express rakes were run to substitute Vande Bharat Express when situations arose. Now it has been decided to deploy Shatabdi Express rakes. Coaches of these rakes can't be attached to Vande Bharat trainset since they are mechanically and electrically incompatible," a senior railway official said. In a note on Environ-Conservation published early this week, the Railways described Vande Bharat as "environmentfriendly" as it produced less pollution.

Parliamentary panel for synergy between IMD and private players SOBHANA K. NAIR

There is a need for better synergy between the India Meteorological Department (IMD) and private forecasters to avoid confusion, especially during extreme climate events like cyclones or flash floods, the Standing Committee on Science said in a meeting on Friday.

Judges should not act like emperors, says SC

'Don't cross the line and summon officials unnecessarily'

KRISHNADAS RAIAGOPAL

The Supreme Court said on Friday that judges should not behave like "emperors" and summon government officials "at the drop of a

The apex court said there would be a "reaction" if judges cross the line of separation of powers between the judiciary and the executive to call officers to court "unnecessarily". The apex court prescribed modesty and humility.

'Drop of a hat'

"A practice has developed in certain High Courts to call officers at the drop of a hat and to exert direct or indirect pressure. The line of separation of powers between judiciary and executive is sought to be crossed by summoning the officers and, in a way, pressurising them to pass an order as per the whims and fancies of the court," a Bench of Justices S.K. Kaul and Hemant Gupta observed in a judgment pronounced on Friday.

Justice Gupta, who authored the judgment, said officials were also performing their duties as the third limb of governance.

"The actions or decisions by the officers are not to benefit them, but as a custodian of public funds and in the interest of administration, some decisions are bound to be taken. It is always open to the High Court to set aside the decision which does not meet the test of judicial review, but summoning of officers frequently is not appreciable at all. The same is liable to be condemned in the strongest words," the court observed.

Judges must know their limits. The dignity and majesty of the court was not enhanced when an officer was called to court. Respect to the court had to be commanded and not demanded and the same was not enhanced by calling public officers, Justice Gupta noted.

At times, officials had to travel great distances and wait for hours in court. His official work was delayed, creating an extra burden on the officer

'Power of the pen' "Summoning of the officer is against the public interest... Courts have the power of the pen, which is more effective than the presence of an officer in Court. If any particular issue arises for consideration before the Court, and the advocate representing the State is not able to answer, it is advised to write such doubt in the order and give time to the State or its officers to respond," Justice Gup-

'Deception a strategy of Chinese diplomacy'

Former ambassador to China speaks about the Communist country's strategic and political tactics

ANANTH KRISHNAN

China's strategies in past negotiations with India – from the Tibet trade agreement in 1954 to the 10 year-long talks on sanctioning the Pakistani terrorist, Masood Azhar, that ended in 2019 - are the subject of "The Long Game: How the Chinese Negotiate with India", a new book by former Foreign Secretary and Ambassador to China Vijay Gokhale, to be published on July 19. In this interview, Mr. Gokhale says many core strategies in Beijing's approach, even in the present "Wolf Warrior" era under President Xi Jinping, have remained broadly consistent, offering lessons in how to engage with China. Excerpts:

On how China negotiates and on the India-U.S. nuclear deal, you explain how in a multilateral setting, China often looks to use other countries to push its case while concealing its own objectives. There was also a fear of being isolated, which India successfully exploited. Looking 10 years on at India's unsuccessful bid to enter the Nuclear Suppliers Group, is China today less concerned than in the past on standing alone?

■ One theme that runs through all the chapters is the use of grand deception as a legitimate strategy of Chinese diplomacy. What is interesting to me was that they did not see any contradiction, on the one hand in practising grand deception, and on the other hand of talking about mutual trust. This grand deception is there both when they deal with us bilaterally, and as we discovered in the 1990s and in the in the current century, when they deal with us multilaterally. We really saw this on two issues that I talk about relating to the nuclear tests of 1998 and then more clearly during the 123 deal. What has changed now is that China's power has exponentially increased, and their willingness to stand alone, even in isolation, in preserving the national interest is much more pronounced.

Another theme you highlight is the use of delay as a negotiating tactic, sometimes to gauge the other side's bottom line. Is that unique to how China negotiates?

■ I would not want to use the word 'delay', I would prefer to use the word 'timing'. The Chinese have an impeccable sense of timing. What they do essentially by extending the time period is that they buy time either to do homework, or to strengthen their position in some manner, or to gain allies, or for any other purpose. On the contrary, I would say that, certainly, in the early years of our Independence, we put ourselves under time pressure, and this is one of the critical points I make in my book. We are keen to nail down an agreement, to announce it, to proclaim to the world that we have resolved an issue. That, in a sense, puts time pressure on us.

Over the years, of course, we have learnt to handle that, and I think we have demonstrated in very recent interactions with the Chinese side that we, too, can handle time in a diplomatic way so that we don't get trapped against deadlines. I won't be more specific than that, but I think you understand what I am saying. The chapter I write on how we handled the Masood Azhar issue indicates that India has learned its lessons there.

We are keen to nail down an agreement. announce it to the world that, in a sense, puts time pressure on us.

On the Masood Azhar issue, you reveal the Chinese side iustified their blocking of his sanctioning at the UN by improbably saying he had "retired" from terrorism. which was a contrast from what they were saying publicly about standing with the international community on combating terror.

■ It is not unusual for the Chinese to be insensitive. They talk mutual sensitivity. but in fact, what they mean is that the other side must be sensitive to their issues. It indicates a mindset where they really don't try to understand the problems of the other side and simply treat them as routine, whereas they expect the other side to be highly sensitive. I believe it's one of the weak points of China's diplomacy.

You point out the top leadership in China never gets into the nitty-gritty of negotiation. That may be all the more true in the Xi era. What then are the benefits of engaging with the top leadership, as India did with the two informal summits?

■ The reluctance of the Chinese leadership at the very top to get into a negotiation is not new. It is not a phenomenon we are seeing under President Xi Jinping. The less clear you are as a top leader, the easier it is to manoeuvre out of a difficult situation. I can correlate any number of events from Mao to Deng Xiaoping to Xi, where the senior-most leader has been vague in order to avoid making a commitment. That having been said, we all know that in the 21st century, where digital communications have become de rigueur, there is a tendency among leaders to talk directly to each other. Direct diplomacy or leadership diplomacy has become an essential part of this. This may again perhaps be one of the weaknesses of Chinese diplomacy, because Chinese leaders are not comfortable doing that. The main point that I make is that we should not engage in leadership diplomacy with the Chinese with the expectation that we will get an immediate result. So long as we are clear of this, it should be our effort to engage in direct diplomacy.

On the current "Wolf Warrior" phase of Chinese diplomacy, is it a change in only style or is this also a change in substance?

■ I think this is entirely style, and there is no change in substance. This does not reflect a fundamental deviation from China's core negotiating principles. It is simply a style, and, therefore, I think we should not pay too much attention to it.

We are in a strange situation where India views ties as being in a new normal because of the still unresolved 2020 border crisis and has said things can't be business as usual, but China is saying publicly that the basic contours haven't changed. How do you assess China's strategy, and how do you think India should approach this new phase?

■ I don't think I'm in a position to offer any advice. I think there is enough wisdom inside the government to do that. But essentially, I think the manner in which we have handled the situation in Eastern Ladakh is more or less along the correct lines. I think the message that has been delivered by India, that we cannot on the one hand have a disturbed situation on the Line of Actual Control, while on the other hand returning to business as normal in every other aspect of our bilateral relationship, is a message which I think is both clear and can be easily backed up by action. I can only conclude that the learning process in dealing with China continues, but we have sufficiently absorbed the lessons of the past. I am quite confident that we have the wherewithal diplomatically speakbecause this is essentially a book about diplomacy to deal with China. I do want to add that because China's national power or comprehensive power is substantially greater than ours, it is always going to be a challenge to deal with China diplomatically. We have to keep ourselves current and we have to continue to keep the learning process going.

+ 'Resume talks with positive approach'

RAHUL KARMAKAR

A panel of Nagaland's lawmakers on Friday asked the negotiating parties of the "Indo-Naga" political dialogue to resume the peace talks with a positive approach, setting aside the preconditions in the "greater interest of the people's cry for long-term peace".

The armed Naga groups have also been advised to hammer out their differences and come together for "one solution and one agreement". The peace process between New Delhi and two sets of the Naga extremist groups has been hanging fire for more than 23 years. A solution has been elusive because of the stand of the Naga groups, specifically the Isak-Muivah faction of the National Socialist Council of Nagaland on a separate Naga flag and a constitution.

Himalayan yaks to be insured

National Research Centre on Yak terms it a landmark move

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

The high-altitude yak, feeling the climate change heat across the Himalayan belt. will now be insured.

The National Research Centre on Yak (NRCY) at Dirang in West Kameng district, Arunachal Pradesh, has tied up with the National Insurance Company Ltd. for insuring their livestock.

"The countrywide population trend shows that yak population has been decreasing at an alarming rate. Further, climate change and inexplicable changes in the weather pattern have been reported from the yak rearing areas throughout the country," NRCY director Dr. Mihir Sarkar said.

The insurance policy would shield the yak owners against the risks posed by weather calamities, diseases, in-transit mishaps, surgical operations and strikes or

A four-year-old report said the number of vaks across the country declined by almost 24.7% between 2012 and 2019.

The total yak population in India is about 58,000. The Union Territories of Ladakh and Jammu and Kashmir have some 26,000, followed by 24,000 in Arunachal Pradesh, 5,000 in Sikkim, 2,000 in Himachal Pradesh and about 1,000 in West Bengal and Uttarakhand. Dr. Sarkar termed it "a landmark development in providing financial security to yak rearing communities in Arunachal Pradesh, Sikkim, Ladakh and Himachal Pradesh".

According to the policy, the owners would have to get their vaks ear-tagged and provide a proper description in order to get their animals insured.

Relocated IGNCA to open next month

Exhibition on Chandrashekhar Azad, gallery on Raja Deen Dayal in the offing

DAMINI NATH

The new location of the Indira Gandhi National Centre for the Arts (IGNCA) on Janpath, which was inaugurated on July 1, could open its doors to the public next month, depending on the COVID-19 pandemic situation, according to officials.

Relocated to make way for the construction of new secretariat buildings as a part of the Central Vista redevelopment, the IGNCA would stay at what used to be the Janpath Hotel for about twoand-a-half years, while its own permanent campus at Jamnagar House is being built, IGNCA member-secretary Sachidanand Joshi said on Friday. The hotel building was refurbished and an additional media centre, including an auditorium, was constructed by the Central Public Works Department, which is carrying out the Central Vista revamp.

"We are aiming to release a calendar of events for the year on August 1. Depending on the COVID-19 protocols in place, it would be a hybrid calendar, with both physical and virtual events," Mr. Joshi stated.

While the old campus on Janpath had lawns, the temporary home of the IGNCA had rooftops and courtyards that would be used as informal spaces. Events like intimate music concerts, poetry readings and panel discussions could be planned on a smaller scale.

Achal Pandya, head of the IGNCA's conservation unit, said the conservation of paintings and manuscripts was under way at the new labs. Among the projects being carried out by the team were conservation of prints by William Daniell dating back to 1795.

An exhibition on freedom fighter Chandrashekhar Azad and another on "tribal photographs" from Madhya Pradesh were being planned for later this month and August. A permanent exhibition dedicated to 19th century photographer Raja Deen Dayal, including his photos, a camera and furniture, was also in the works, Mr. Pandva stated.

COVID-19 second wave is not over yet, says V.K. Paul

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT NEW DELHI

Pregnant women should take the COVID-19 vaccine as soon as possible as we now know that the virus brings along some serious complications, including pre-term delivery, V.K. Paul, NITI Aayog (Member), Health, said on Friday.

Addressing a Health Ministry press conference, Dr. Paul said it was now established that a COVID-19 infection during pregnancy might result in rapid deterioration of the mother's health and could also affect the foe-

"Pregnant women who develop COVID-19 are more likely to require intensive care than their non-pregnant counterparts. Apart from the mother, there is risk to the child in case she contracts the infection. Pregnant women should get vaccinated. It is very important and now the Ministry has released guidelines for the same,"

said Dr. Paul.

Dr. Paul added that the second wave of the pandemic was not over yet. "The war is not over and as long as the virus is there in some areas of the country, the threat remains. It is also a warning that the situation can explode any time if we aren't careful," he said.

"Until we get down to reporting less than 10,000 cases per day for at least three successive weeks, we are not safe. The current rate of new cases indicates that the virus will take an upper hand soon if we don't follow norms," he said.

Lav Agarwal, Joint Secretary, Health Ministry, said 80% of the new cases were from 90 districts, with maximum cases coming from districts in Maharashtra, Kerala, Tamil Nadu, Odisha, Andhra Pradesh Karnataka.

From two States

"Also, more than half of the new cases are now coming from two States - Maharashtra and Kerala. This is a matter of concern. We cannot lower our guard. A new risk is being seen at tourist spots where COVID-appropriate behaviour is not being followed," he said.

Mr. Agarwal said the Health Ministry had now dispatched a six-member Central team to Kerala where Zika cases had been reported.

WHO likely to decide on Covaxin nod in 4-6 weeks

Pre-qualification a must to supply vaccines to global facilities

ЈАСОВ КОЅНҮ

The World Health Organization (WHO) is likely to take a decision on including Bharat Biotech's Covaxin in its list of vaccines approved for Emergency Use within four to six weeks, Soumya Swaminathan, Chief Scientist, WHO, said at a webinar organised by the Centre for Science and Environment (CSE).

A WHO pre-qualification, or Emergency Use Listing (EUL), is necessary for a vaccine company to supply vaccines to global facilities such as COVAX or international procurement. So far, eight vaccines have got an EUL from the WHO. "It is mandatory to supply a complete dossier listing safety, efficacy and manufacturing conditions of the vaccine to the

WHO. I understand that Bharat Biotech is in this process and I think a decision on their case is likely in the next four to six weeks," said Dr. Swaminathan.

The EUL assesses the quality, safety and efficacy of COVID-19 vaccines as well as risk management plans and programmatic suitability such as cold chain requirements.

In late May, Bharat Biotech said it has submitted "90% of the data" required for the pre-qualification process. Last Saturday, the firm publicised its long-awaited phase-3 trial efficacy data, via an non-peer-reviewed pre-print publication, reporting an overall 77.8% efficacy against symptomatic COVID-19 based on analysis involving 25,800 volunteers.

Dr. Swaminathan said it was "frustrating" that countries were contemplating and testing booster doses for themselves when large parts of the world hadn't yet got vaccinated.

The target was to have at least 10% of the world fully vaccinated by September and 40% by December.

Punjab to lift night curfew from July 12

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

With Punjab's COVID-19 Test Positivity Rate (TPR) sliding to 0.4%, Chief Minister Captain (Retd.) Amarinder Singh on Friday ordered the lifting of the weekend and the night curfew from July 12.

He said gatherings of 100 persons indoors and 200 outdoors would be allowed. Bars, cinema halls, restaurants, spas, swimming pools, gyms, malls, sports complexes, museums and zoos can open, but staff and visitors must have taken at least one dose of the vaccine.

Man dies after being branded with hot iron rod

He was branded in bid to cure him of tuberculosis

SATYASUNDAR BARIK BHUBANESWAR

A man in Keonjhar district, Odisha, died after his family members branded him multiple times on the stomach with a hot iron rod believing that it will cure him of tuberculosis.

Thirty-four-year-old Bikash Dehury of Uppar Kainsari village had dozens of wounds on his stomach. He died on Wednesday. Dehury is survived by his wife, Draupadi Dehury, a daily wager, and his two sons.

Uppar Kainsari village is situated close to the Gandhamardan iron ore mine, which is operated by the State-run Odisha Mining Corporation (OMC). Iron ore mining and its transportation have had an adverse effect on the health of the tribal population. Locals have long been protesting against

"Very few men reach the age of 50 in this village. Most men complain of constant cough and chest pain. Since all the villagers are tribals and do not have robust income sources, they cannot afford medical care," said

Mohan Charan Majhi, local MLA and BJP chief whip in the State Assembly, acknowledged the health crisis prevailing around the iron ore mine. "I had written to the State Health Minister about people being affected by tuberculosis and bronchitis. A team had visited the village. Some of them were admitted to the Keonihar district headquarter hospital. However, they were discharged after two or three days," he said. Mr. Majhi said 15 persons in a few villages near the OMC's mine had died in the last 18 months with similar Bhima Koregaon probe panel likely to resume work in Aug.

Two-member panel may record Sharad Pawar's statement

SHOUMOJIT BANERJEE

After a long hiatus due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the two-member commission appointed by the Maharashtra government to probe the causes of the 2018 Bhima-Koregaon clashes is likely to resume work next month. It may record the statement of Nationalist Congress Party (NCP) chief Sharad Pawar and other senior officials, said sources on Friday.

Commission lawyer Ashish Satpute said the recording of witnesses' statements was likely to commence again from August 2 and that Mr. Pawar's statement would be recorded as well.

In February last year, the Uddhav Thackeray-led Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA) government had granted the commission its fifth extension.

The panel, comprising former Kolkata High Court Chief Justice Justice J.N. Patel and former Chief Secretary Sumit Mullick, was set up by the erstwhile Devendra Fadnavis government in February 2018 to probe the sequence of events leading up to the New Year's Day violence in Bhima Koregaon and the adjoining villages that left one person dead.

The commission was initially given four months to submit a report, but its tenure was extended repeatedly in order to allow it to complete the investigation.

Hearings of senior officers and Mr. Pawar were scheduled between March 30 and April 4, 2020. However, the COVID-19 outbreak compelled the commission to defer all hearings until furth-

Duty of the jiva

The Visishtadvaita philosophy establishes that the entire creation comprising the chetana and the achetana is the sarira of the Paramatma who is the atma, the Sariri. He is Supreme Seshi and there is no end to His glories. Based on this relationship, the acharyas in this tradition have shown that all beings are the sesha, that is, subservient to the Lord, and to serve Him is their only goal, pointed out Asuri Sri Madhavachariar in a discourse. The acharya corrects the jivatma's perception of his role and duty in life. The atma within is distinct from the body and the individual jiva is distinct from the Paramatma. The atma is immortal and of the essence of jnana and ananda. Neither is the jivatma independent nor is he the master of his own life. He exists only to serve Him.

But owing to the endless effect of maya and karma, the feeling of I and Mine has taken firm root in the jivatma who thinks he is endowed with the individual freedom and right to think, act and speak according to the time, place and milieu in which he is placed in every birth. He is forced to continue in samsara thus. So, the acharya directs the jivatma to serve the Paramatma who is the sole ruler and protector of the universe and is of the essence of the exceptional qualities of Saulabhya and Saushilya. Could there be any better purpose to a jivatma's life? One can imbibe the dasa bhava or the spirit of service from Lakshmana whose only aim is to serve Rama, and he does this willingly. It is not only because Rama is his elder brother, but Rama's incomparable qualities have enslaved Lakshmana. He derives total satisfaction in serving such an exalted Being. That is why Valmiki calls Lakshmana 'Lakshmi Sampanna' meaning one endowed with the invaluable wealth of serving Lord at all times.

LAVANYA MOHAN

The Cannes Film Festival opened its 74th edition earlier this week. The first fullyfledged film festival to be held since the pandemic began, it not only rings in the revival of cinema, but also the red carpet – albeit, a smaller, sober and greener carpet. Leading the green charge is Chopard, the luxury jeweller behind some iconic jewellery pieces, as well as the design of the Palme d'Or award.

"The story began in 1997," says Caroline Scheufele, the artistic director and co-president of Chopard, over email. "During a meeting with Pierre Viot [then president of the Cannes Festival], he invited me to redesign it for the 50th anniversary." Given her love for cinema, she accepted the "fantastic challenge" and, as she recently shared with Variety, took the statue to her office in Geneva. The result: the Palme d'Or as it stands today – a piece of haute joaillerie in its own right, featuring the palm leaves motif (that represent the trees that line the famous Boulevard de la Croisette, as well as the Cannes coat-of-arms). The leaves, fashioned out of 118 grams of carat gold, look like they've just been ruffled by a gentle breeze and are cushioned by a rock crystal in the form of an emerald-cut are the same, which means that every trophy is one-of-a-kind. Scheufele adds that each of the pieces is crafted with consciousness. The gold is fair-mined and "five of our Chopard expert artisans devote no less than 40 hours to hand-crafting the festival's most coveted treasure in our Geneva workshop". Chopard's focus on sourcing ethically-mined gold can be traced back to 2012, when Scheufele met Livia Firth, the founder of Eco-Age, at the Oscars. "When Livia asked me where our gold came from, my reply was 'from the bank', but that wasn't the expected

Today, Chopard sources all of its gold and diamonds through traceable routes and is working to put in place a system that can ensure the ethical mining of coloured gemstones. The theme, says Scheufele, is Paradise "where precious stones are picked like berries, and plants and animals offer their songs and spectacular colours". Seventy-four exquisite pieces come together to form this collection inspired by a lush Garden of Eden, including an elephant brooch encrusted with diamonds flanked by a solid emerald dome; ruby earrings that resemble tropical flowers; and an emerald necklace with a pendant featuring a sleeping fawn fashioned from yellow sapphires.

Post pandemic, brands are expected to increase the number of collection releases and createlines focussed on accessible pieces to enable "micro-splurges".

NIDHI ADLAKHA

Not many know that during adolescence one in four girls drop out of sports owing to their period. When the team at sporting major Adidas learned of this fact two years ago, they decided to venture into the period activewear space. With the Stay In Play period leggings launched in June, the brand joins a list of several others who have been working on performance enhancement apparel for women. While period-proof underwear has dominated the market for a few years thanks to homegrown brands like SochGreen and Lavos not much has been spoken about performance activewear. Ahead of the India launch of Adidas' range, we take a look at it and other brands working in the segment.

Tights @ Adidas, Germany

Speaking of their period-proof line of tights and shorts. Senior Product Manager, Kim Buerger, says the multi-layer pad construction is thin and light-weight with no outer seams. The outer layer of the tights is made from Primegreen, a recycled polyester fabric, and they are meant to be worn with a pad, tampon or cup. "The tights provide the user with an additional layer of protection and security. It is more of a mental barrier which we are trying to break as those who menstruate are usually afraid of leakage while playing or working out," she adds. Later, Adidas will be launching bike shorts, and a plus size range. ₹2,999 for the shorts and ₹4,799 for the tights

Running shorts @ Modibodi, Australia

To develop the Australian brand's patented Modifier Technology, founder Kristy Chong's team "conducted close to 1,000 scientific tests to get it right". This technology is now found in the gusset area of their leak-proof underpants and activewear. "Our merino wool [used in absorbent linings] is antibacterial, biodegradable, soft and breathable," says Chong. However, a small percentage of users have shared (on Reddit) that the swimwear's absorbent gusset does get wet after use. Women's range from ₹1,422. us.modibodi.com

The feminist runway

Chiuri's design vocabulary has always reflected her feminist beliefs. Think Dior's 2016 'We Should All Be Feminist' T-shirts inspired by Nigerian writer Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie's political essay. And Eva Jospin is the latest addition to the roster of women artists the Italian designer has worked with.

works of note is Dior's couture show, The Female Divine, in January 2020, which feminist artist Judy Chicago collaborating with the Chanakya School of Craft to handcraft 21 life-size panels. Embroidered with questions such as "What if women ruled the world?" and "Would men and women be equal?", the pennants were hung in a womb-like space that also showcased a goddess Byculla (which provides women from low-income groups with the skills needed to become artisans). Their most recent collab: the Dior Couture Autumn Winter 2021-22 show four days ago.

As guests took their seats in the 40-metre-long gallery in the Musée Rodin's garden in Paris, models showcased a minimal, functional collection that drew inspiration from fairy tales, replete with cinched waists, full skirts, and silk plissé gowns trimmed with feathers. The tactile, textured clothing was offset by French artist Eva Jospin's installation – life-sized, embroidered panels reflecting a rich landscape of forests and waterfalls, on the edge of realism and daydream. But of equal interest was the fact that the 350 square metres of silk-thread work that frescoed the walls was entirely handembroidered by the artisans and students at Chanakya.

Silk walls and daydreams The French luxury house had requested the atelier to look at the work – envisioned as an altar piece, but with the scale of a real forest - much like an art piece in a museum. "We spent a lot of time to understand Eva's visual language and to transform it into a journey of discovery by the juxtaposition and overlay of multiple layers that have been embroidered, painted, appliquéd or fringed,"

How the luxury brand's recent Autumn Winter 2021-22 show in Paris celebrated fairy tales, French couture, and Indian craftsmanship says Shah.

The process began earlier this year, in February, by experimenting with different techniques. Over 320 artisans worked on the project for 60 days, and over 1,80,000 hours of embroidery have gone into it. "We've used only handwoven fabrics and raw materials: a basket weave silk for the base, which we backed with an organic canvas to sustain the weight and magnitude of the panels. Both fabrics were processed using vegetable dyes," says Swali, adding that the installation titled Chambres De Soie (Silk Room) references both the India-inspired embroidery room at the Palazzo Colonna in Rome, and the 1929 Virginia Woolfe manifesto, A Room of One's Own.

"Woolfe's manifesto is a compelling read - one that argues for both a literal and figurative space for women writers within a literary tradition dominated by men. The school, dedicated to women from underserved backgrounds, also embodies these values of inclusion, allowing craft knowledge to become a means of expression, freedom and independence," she shares.

Global nod to Indian craft Indian culture and crafts have time and again inspired global design houses, but it is not often that brands give due credit. So when Chiuri applauded the artistry of Chanakya at the show, it was a couture coup. At the show, she said: "By inviting Eva to experiment with the language of sewing, another collective work began in conversation with the Chanakya School. [The project] has customdved over 400 colours and used up to 150 different types of stitches, while bringing together a community of women."

Swali shares that being felicitated by "Maria and Dior is a true honour for us. By acknowledging, respecting and protecting the social and environmental sustainability of traditional crafts in India, she and the brand are leading the way for a more meaningful tomorrow"

Post pandemic, the designer duo (who also heads Jade, the bridal and couture brand that works with international brands such as Gucci and Alberta Ferretti), sees the school growing as a centre of excellence for multi-dimensional learning. "Together, we can create a more inclusive tomorrow that consciously preserves communities, craft and our environment," concludes Swali.

The panels will be installed at the Musée Rodin and will be available for viewing.

I had my first burger even before I read my first Archie Comic. One of my earlier memories is of a cycleled cart stopping by the place where I - and a lot of other hungry young lads - lived. The compartment at the back of the cycle was filled with flaky patties and vegetable burgers - essen tially a potato patty between two small soft buns. I preferred the burgers to the patties, which were so flaky that they disintegrated when you touched them. The vendor would place one on a paper plate and squeeze some ketchup on the side. Food couldn't ev er get better, I used to think, biting into the bun-and-potato.

Over the years, burgers have gone through a metamorphosis. I think my first classy burgers were at Wenger's restaurant, just above the confectionery, and then, several years later, at Nirula's in Connaught Place. Until some years ago, burgers were simple dishes - two pieces of soft bun holding together a juicy lamb or chicken patty. The buns were often speckled with sesame seeds, the insides were brushed with mayo or sometimes with thousand island sauce. A crisp lettuce leaf and rings of onion added taste and texture.

But that was then. Over the past few years, I have had various kinds of burgers, prepared with imagination and ingredients such as blue cheese, caramelised onions, imported bacon, celery slaw, fried eggs and what have you.

A foodie friend mentioned ordering burgers from a place called Burgerama. I had heard about it, too, but hadn't tried out their fare. It is a delivery chain that serves Delhi-NCR (order at burgerama.in or on Zomato; ₹215 to ₹545). I learnt later that it was the

The quarter pound patty of the tenderloin burger came with caramelised onion, a cheese blend, lettuce, pickle, and a blue cheese dressing. I enjoyed it, but would have liked it more had the patty been softer. But I suppose you can't have the tenderloin rare when you are running a delivery outfit. The chicken and cheese burger got a thumbs up, too, as did the delicious galaxy bombs, which were crisp and sweet.

Burgerama offers an Oink Oink burger, with honey-glazed smoked pulled pork, BBQ sauce, lettuce, jalapenos, and smoked paprika mayo. For vegetarians, there is something called Plane Jane (batterfried cottage cheese patty topped with sun-dried tomatoes, fresh lettuce, pickles, and smoked paprika mayo); and Spicy Leela, which has all these, topped with hot sauces.

Burgers, clearly, are not what they used to be. For burger lovers, there's a whole new world out there. Blue cheese, anyone?

The pandemic and our lifestyle changes have forced people to be waste-cognizant. Fashion and its consumption, in particular, are on everyone's radar. One of the reasons why Instagram is filled with thrift and pre-loved stores, rental services are growing en masse, and Indian designer brands such as Pero, Doodlage and Doh Tak Keh are making upcycling au courant.

The latest venture in this space is Saritoria, envisioned by fashion entrepreneur Pernia Qureshi (who previously ran the e-commerce website, Pernia's Pop Up Shop), and husband-wife duo Omar Soomro (a marketing and business development manager at a London hedge fund) and Shehlina Soomro. A first-of-its-kind global marketplace to buy and sell pre-loved South Asian luxury designer pieces, the website showcases pieces from designers such as Sabyasachi, Anamika Khanna, and Tarun Tahiliani, among others, with sellers logging in from Punjab to Tamil Nadu. The pieces are checked for authenticity and quality by a team of experts (based in Mumbai and London), before being listed for a percentage. There is also a concierge service that offers to take care of everything from cleaning, photoshoots, to listing an account.

Edited excerpts from an interview:

Saritoria's USP beyond the sustainability tag? Qureshi: No matter how well off the shopper is, everyone enjoys a good deal. Saritoria's USP is one-of-a-kind pieces. For instance, designers Abu-Sandeep used a beautiful mint green colour in one of their previous collections, which is not available in stores anymore. However, we have a lehenga from that collection on the site. There are so many events in a year and it doesn't make sense to invest heavily every single time. Biden defends Afghan pullout

'We didn't go to Afghanistan to nation-build'

SRIRAM LAKSHMAN WASHINGTON

With U.S. troops almost completely out of Afghanistan and the Taliban making rapid territorial gains in the country, U.S. President Joe Biden said the U.S. was not in Afghanistan for nationbuilding purposes and that it was for the Afghans to decide their future. Mr. Biden also said the U.S. military mission would conclude by August 31.

The manner and speed with which the U.S. military is pulling out after a 20-year presence in the country has been criticised, with looming concerns about whether the current Afghan government can withstand the Taliban and the consequences for the peace, security, and the future of women and dor to China during the previous government, blames the Rajapaksa administra-

When the country takes pride in its "non-aligned" foreign policy legacy, to see Sri Lankans calling the Port City a "Chinese colony" brings a "very negative connotation" to the project, Mr. Kodituwakku said.

NEWS ANALYSIS

"The Port City is a good investment for Sri Lanka. The former government, too, wanted the project, to develop the country into a regional financial hub. The administration current should have handled it in a mature way and built national consensus on it. They failed to do that," he told The Hindu.

should "They passed laws after discussions with all domestic stakeholders. If you look at Sri Lanka's history, all important international accords and agreements were inked only after ensuring bipartisan consensus," he added.

Special partnership

Former Foreign Secretary Prasad Kariyawasam said given its geographic location, Sri Lanka has maintained friendly relations with maritime nations, including China, since ancient times.

had "a sense of strategic content".

Post-independence Sri Lanka has been circumspect "to avoid a zero-sum approach" in relations with foreign partner nations, thus striving to maintain equally close relations with all countries in both word and deed, he pointed out.

But the traditional friendship between Sri Lanka and China has now become "more nuanced", he noted, with "unique, unprecedented characteristics in the bilateral relationship", dis-"special playing partnership", especially at the level of two governments.

Pointing to a possible perception shift, from China being seen as a "partner and collaborator", to a "competitor" now, Mr. Kariyawasam said: "The fact that the 21st century export-oriented China is not only a development assistance partner, but a competitor with trade, industrial and human resources interests of Sri Lanka and its several other foreign partners, appears to be making the relationship increasingly challenging, especially in the minds of the public, raising their concerns with respect to the fundamental framework of the democratic nature of the Sri Lankan state as well."

The new dynamic could also have political costs domestically, according to Tamil Progressive Alliance (TPA) leader and Opposition MP Mano Ganesan.

Sinhalese people, he said, are feeling "let down" after supporting the Rajapaksas based on their promise that "they will not sell national assets" to other countries.

"The term "selling" could be tricky, but for all practical purposes, we have a Chinese state-run company with substantial control in Such relations have always the Port City for a long time to come, and the government enacted a Bill endorsing that," he said.

Further, reading Chinese engagement in relation to Sri Lanka's plural context, Mr. Ganesan noted that China "appears ignorant" of the ethnic and religious diversity in the island nation.

'Diverse country' "If they [Chinese] wish to win the Tamils' confidence, they have to acknowledge that we are a diverse country with different ethnic and religious groups, not an entirely Sinhala-Buddhist country," Mr. Ganesan said, reiterating his remarks in his statement, following the TPA's recent meeting with the Indian High Commissioner in Colombo. "China's presence in Sri Lanka is not just India's national security concern. Tamils view China with suspicion because we wonder if they accept us as Sri Lankans," the statement issued on Tuesday said.

All the same, Tamils also "greatly appreciate" India's geopolitical concerns. "We are in South Asia, and in that sense, India is immediate family and China is a distant relative. So, when I think of the Chinese having controlling stakes in the southern part of our island, I am reminded of the Cuban missile crisis and its consequences," Mr. Ganesan told The Hindu.

Voicing a similar sentiment in Parliament this week, Jaffna district legislator of the Tamil National Alliance, S. Shritharan, spoke of alleged attempts by China and Pakistan to work on projects in the islands off Jaffna peninsula.

"Do not instigate India in this manner," he told the government. "No matter how many problems we face, Tamils will always stand with India, with whom we have an organic link," he said.

Taliban now control 85% of Afghanistan'

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

The Taliban claimed on Friday to be in control of 85% of Afghanistan after seizing key border crossings with Iran and Turkmenistan following a sweeping offensive launched after the U.S. troops' exit.

Hours after U.S. President Joe Biden issued a staunch defence of the U.S. withdrawal, the Taliban said its fighters had seized two border crossings in western Afghanistan, completing an arc of territory from the Iranian border to the frontier with China. Afghanistan's Interior Ministry said efforts were under way to dislodge the insurgents from their positions.

U.K. to allow vaccinated people in soon

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

The U.K. said on Friday it expected to announce a plan in the next fortnight allowing entry to fully vaccinated foreigners and British expatriates, as it lifts most COVID-19 curbs.

Transport Secretary Grant Shapps also defended the government's decision to allow in 1,000 football fans from Italy for Sunday's European Championship final against England, to join some 60,000 other supporters. The government said from July 19, fully vaccinated U.K. residents and children will not have to quarantine on their return to England.

Tragic incident: Rescue workers at the factory in Rupganj

Bangladesh factory fire leaves at least 52 dead

Many people were trapped inside

A fire engulfed a food and beverage factory outside Bangladesh's capital, killing at least 52 people, many of whom were trapped inside by an illegally locked door, fire officials said on Friday.

The blaze began on Thursday night at the fivestorey Hashem Foods Ltd. factory, in Rupganj, just outside Dhaka, sending huge clouds of black smoke billowing into the sky.

Police initially gave a toll of three dead, but then discovered piles of bodies on Friday afternoon after the fire was extinguished.

So far, 52 bodies have been recovered, but the top two floors of the factory have yet to be searched, said Debasish Bardhan, deputy director of the Fire Service and Civil Defense. He said the main exit of the factory was locked from the inside and many of those who died were trapped.

Many workers jumped from the upper floors of the factory, and at least 26 suffered injuries, the United News of Bangladesh agency reported.

Information about how many people were in the factory and how many were missing was not immediately available.

Factory officials told AP that the company is fully compliant with international standards, but whether the exit of the factory was locked was not certain.

According to Bangladesh's factory laws, a factory cannot lock its exit when workers are inside during production hours.

'Revival bumpy, sentiment to improve'

Finance Ministry says food prices to blame for high inflation, working on measures to rein them in

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

India's economic recovery after the ebbing of the second COVID-19 wave remains uneven, despite an uptick in several economic indicators through June, the Finance Ministry said on Friday. Consumption sentiment, it added, was likely to improve as recent relief measures announced by the government begin to kick in.

Attributing the spike in retail inflation over the last two years to higher food inflation, the Ministry said that prices were expected to cool in the short term from the 6.3% inflation mark reported in May, due to healthy monsoons, gradually rising Kharif crop sowing and unlocking by States. While this would slow food inflation, and thereby headline inflation, the Ministry said input cost pressures and the global spurt in commodity prices remained major risks.

Consumption sentiment is expected to pick up due to recent measures such as enhanced employment support (through Employees' Provident Fund subsidies under the Aatmanirbhar Bharat Rozgar Yojana), and targeted support to the urban poor through the credit guarantee scheme for microfinance institutions and the widening of the BharatNet's digitisation coverage.

Higher highway toll collections, power usage and record UPI transactions suggest 'India is on the move again', the Ministry said in its monthly economic review for June. "However, recovery remains uneven with indicators such as port traffic, air traffic, PMI Manufacturing and Services demonstrating lagged revival from the impact of the second wave. Latest industrial production estimates show sequential moderation in growth of... eight core industries at 16.8% [year-on-year] in May 2021, 8% lower than pre-COVID May 2019 level," it added.

E-way bill generation rose 37.1% in June, compared with May, which augurs well for GST collections in coming months, while resilient tax collections over April and May bodes well for a 'continued economic recovery' driven by capital spending, the Department of Economic Affairs noted. On predictions of a third wave, the Ministry said its emergence could be 'significantly buffered by expanded vaccination and meticulous observance of CO-VID-appropriate behaviour'.

'Food's high weightage' On inflation trends, it said retail inflation that averaged 5.9% in FY15 'fell continuously' till it reached 3.4% in FY19. From 4.8% in FY20, it surged to 6.2% last year.

"Since the weightage of food in CPI is very high, the impact of food prices on overall CPI inflation is high," the Ministry reasoned. The government, it said, is taking a variety of measures to rein in food inflation, including the imposition of stock limits and trade restrictions to regulate domestic availability.

Oil prices firm as U.S. inventories decline

OPEC+ impasse fuels supply uncertainty

REUTERS

Oil prices rose for a second day on Friday as data showed a draw in U.S. inventories but were heading for a weekly loss amid uncertainty over global supplies after an OPEC+ impasse.

Brent crude oil futures were up 36 cents, or 0.5%, at $74.48 a barrel by 1220 GMT. U.S. West Texas Intermediate futures were up 54 cents, or 0.7%, at $73.48.

Prices on both sides of the Atlantic were on track for a more than 2% weekly drop, dragged down by the collapse of output talks between the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and allies including Russia, together known as OPEC+.

U.S. crude and gasoline stocks fell and gasoline demand reached its highest since 2019, the U.S. Energy Information Administration said, signalling increasing strength in the economy.

"A bullish EIA stock report helped the oil market rebound into the black," said Stephen Brennock of oil broker PVM. "Clearly, U.S. oil markets are tight. However, the only way to prevent further losses is for the threat of an OPEC+price war to be contained."

U.S. set to add more Chinese firms to blacklist, say sources

Move aims to hold China accountable for Xinjiang actions

REUTERS

The Biden administration is set as early as Friday to add more than 10 Chinese companies to its economic blacklist over alleged human rights abuses and high-tech surveillance in Xinjiang, two sources told Reuters.

The U.S. Commerce Department action will follow its announcement last month adding five other companies and other Chinese entities to the blacklist over allegations of forced labour in the far western region of China.

The additions to Commerce Department's Entity List are part of the Biden administration's efforts to hold China accountable for human rights violations, the sources said.

China dismisses accusations of genocide and forced labour in Xinjiang and says its policies are necessary to stamp out separatists and religious extremists who plotted attacks and stirred up tension between mostly Muslim Uyghurs and Han, China's largest ethnic group.

'Will take all measures' "The Chinese side will take all necessary measures to safeguard the legitimate rights and interests of Chinese companies and rejects U.S. attempts to interfere in China's internal affairs," said foreign ministry spokesman Wang Wenbin on Friday.

One of the sources said the Commerce Department plans to add 14 Chinese companies to the Entity List over reported abuses in Xinjiang.

The identity of the companies being added was not immediately known.

On Sunday, the 25-yearold will meet five-time champion and top seed Novak Djokovic, who beat Canadian Denis Shapovalov 7-6(3), 7-5, 7-5.

"I have no words. I need a couple of hours to understand what happened," Berrettini told the capacity crowd. "I never dreamed about this because it was too much, even for a dream."

Friday's outcome seemed to turn early against Hurkacz, who was coming off victories over eight-time Wimbledon champion Roger Federer and No. 2 Daniil Medvedev.

A key moment came less than 20 minutes in, when Hurkacz was ahead 3-2 and held a break point. That was erased by Berrettini with a service winner at 130 mph.

Barty and Pliskova in a clash of styles

The Aussie's court craft will be up against Czech's first-strike approach

Barty is attempting to win her first Wimbledon title on the 50th anniversary of fellow indigenous Australian Evonne Goolagong Cawley's maiden crown.

Pliskova, who defeated No. 2 seed Aryna Sabalenka with a power-packed performance, is driven more by proving to her "brutal critics" she was right in sticking to her style of play rather than alter it radically.

Whatever happens on Saturday, a return to the top-10 looks certain for the 29-yearold World No. 13, but she would regard her first Slam title as the catch of the day.

To do so, she must overcome a World No. 1, whose craft and guile felled 2018 champion Angelique Kerber in the semifinals.

The aura of Cawley has been ever-present at the All England Club, with Barty wearing a specially-designed dress in tribute to the iconic scallop one that she wore in 1971. "It's a really special anniversary for Evonne," said Barty. "I couldn't be more proud to be in a position to amazing place of learning. "Probably 2018, 2019 (3rd and 4th round exits respectively) were some of my toughest weeks playing. To come away with losses in those two tournaments, I learned a hell of a lot."

For Pliskova, unlike Barty, the pressure may weigh less heavily as her goal was to make the second week and anything after that was a bonus. Despite being behind on head-to-head meetings, the fact that it is a first Wimbledon final for both women could be a leveller.

England keen to end drought

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

England fans are looking forward to a first major tournament final in 55 years as their team prepares to face Italy in the Euro 2020 final at Wembley on Sunday. Three years on from their defeat to Croatia in the World Cup semifinal, Gareth Southgate's men overcame Denmark 2-1 in extra time on Wednesday to reach their first European Championship final.

Italy was also pushed beyond 90 minutes by Spain, but won on penalties to keep its bid for a first Euro title since 1968 alive.

England stands just one game away from ending its long and painful trophy drought, which dates all the way back to the 1966 World Cup. But Italy is on a 33-match unbeaten run, reviving its reputation on the global stage after failing to even reach the 2018 World Cup in Russia.

India's series against Sri Lanka rescheduled

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

The Indian limited-overs team's six-match series against Sri Lanka was on Friday rescheduled owing to COVID-19 positive cases in the home team camp, with the first ODI now starting on July 17 instead of July 13.

Sri Lanka's batting coach Grant Flower and data analyst G.T. Niroshan have tested positive on return from the United Kingdom, which has forced Sri Lanka Cricket to extend the hard quarantine period from the stipulated three days.

"Yes, the series will now start from July 17 instead of July 13. The decision was taken in consultation with SLC keeping the safety and security of players in mind," a senior BCCI official said, confirming the development.

As per the original schedule, the series was to start with the ODIs on July 13, followed by matches on Iuly 16 and Iuly 19. The T20I games were scheduled for July 22, July 24 and July 27.

While Niroshan's confirmation was given on Friday, Sri Lanka's batting coach Flower tested positive on Thursday, 48 hours after the squad's arrival from England.

All the other players who are quarantining have also been tested. The revised schedule:

ODIs: July 17, 19 and 21. T20Is: Likely to begin on July

Mark Cavendish equalled the all-time tally of Tour de France stage wins when he sped over the finish line at Carcassonne on Friday for a landmark 34th stage victory in the race.

It was Cavendish's fourth win on the 2021 edition and sees the British sprinter equal Eddy Merckx's 35year-old record of Tour de France stage wins.

It is all the more remarkable considering Cavendish's career looked compromised in December, teamless, without a Tour de France stage win in five years, and struggling to put a long bout of the tiring Epstein Barr virus behind him.
