Court overturns President's May 22 decision to dissolve House of Representatives

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA KATHMANDU

Nepal's Supreme Court on Monday reinstated the House of Representatives for the second time in five months, and directed President Bidya Devi Bhandari to appoint Nepali Congress chief Sher Bahadur Deuba as Prime Minister by Tuesday.

A five-member Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court, led by Chief Justice Cholendra Shumsher Rana, issued the verdict stating that President Bhandari's decision to dissolve the Lower House upon a recommendation of Prime Minister K.P. Sharma Oli was an unconstitutional act, delivering a blow to the veteran Communist leader, who was preparing for snap elections.

Mr. Deuba, 74, has served as the Prime Minister on four occasions; first from 1995 to 1997, then from 2001 to 2002, again from 2004 to 2005, and from 2017 to 2018. Currently, he is the Leader of the Opposition in the House.

DJB asks SC to initiate contempt proceedings against Haryana

'It is acting in violation of the 1996 court order on Wazirabad reservoir water level'

LEGAL CORRESPONDENT

The Delhi Jal Board (DJB) has asked the Supreme Court to initiate contempt proceedings against Haryana Chief Secretary Vijai Vardhan and the Additional Chief Secretary, Irrigation and Water Resources Department, Devender Singh, for 'wilfully' disobeying a February 1996 order of the court to maintain the water level at the Wazirabad reservoir at full capacity to serve the drinking water needs of the Capital.

"Due to non-supply of adequate water by Haryana, the water level in the Wazirabad reservoir is only 31% full. This has a possibility of triggering a severe water crisis in Delhi. The petitioner already had to curtail water for several areas in Delhi, including the President's Estate, the Parliament House and other institutional and diplomatic buildings as well as many residential areas," the DJB sub-

Seeking an urgent hearing, it said Haryana was acting in clear violation of the court order in the Delhi Water Supply and Sewage Disposal Undertaking versus State of Haryana case.

"This court had directed that the water level at Wazirabad reservoir has to be kept full to its capacity by Haryana in order to meet the drinking water needs of Delhi," it stated

Discharge of pollutants The DJB had approached the court to "immediately stop" Haryana from discharging pollutants into the Yamuna.

The increased ammonia levels had impaired functioning of water treatment plants, and drinking water and health crises loomed large in Delhi, it noted.

The DJB had also, in that case, accused Harvana of not releasing the full quantity of water entitled to Delhi at Wazirabad. In a petition in that case, it alleged that the actions/inactions constituted a violation of the principle of cooperative federalism. It amounted to an upper riparian State taking undue advantage of a shared river for irrigation and industrial purposes while effectively not allowing a lower riparian State to access water for drinking".

Haryana had denied the charges. An offshoot of the case had been the decision of the court to examine the issue of river pollution, starting with the Yamuna.

'Lutyens' Delhi may face water crisis as Haryana not releasing fair share'

Lowest water level at Wazirabad barrage since 1965: Chadha

STAFF REPORTER NEW DELHI

Delhi Jal Board (DJB) vicechairperson Raghay Chadha on Monday said that areas under the New Delhi Municipal Council (NDMC), which houses the Prime Minister's residence, the Supreme Court, the High Court, and many embassies, will also face water crisis as Haryana was allegedly not releasing the share of water to Delhi.

"This move of the Haryana government is on the verge of causing havoc in Delhi. Even the Central Delhi and NDMC areas of Delhi which house the PM residence, the Supreme Court, the High Court, the international embassies - all will face this crisis. The entire Central Delhi, NDMC, Lu-

tvens areas may see a water crisis soon," Mr. Chadha

He claimed that Haryana has withheld at least 120 MGD (million gallons per day) of water that belongs to Delhi and this has caused a "huge water crisis" in Delhi.

"Today, the Haryana government has impeded the rights of the people of Delhi, it has hindered the rightful water supply of the citizens of Delhi. They are not giving us our rightful share of water. They have stopped the water in such a manner that since 1965, this is the first time that water levels have been so low at the Wazirabad barrage," Mr. Chadha said.

After inspecting the Wazirabad pond, the DJB V-C said, "At the Wazirabad water treatment plant, intake of water is managed by taking water directly from the Yamuna, this water is released by Haryana towards the Wazirabad barrage. The water is then treated and supplied to the homes of the people of Delhi. Normally, this river is completely full. Today we can see the river has dried up, it looks like a

Kejriwal's water connection will be cut if crisis not resolved: BJP

Party workers protest outside DJB Chairman's residence

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT NEW DELHI

Several BJP cadres on Monday staged a protest outside the residence of Delhi Jal Board (DIB) Chairman Satyendar Jain where they announced that Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal's water connection would be cut if the water crisis in the Capital did not end in 48 hours.

Protesting BJP workers accused the Aam Aadmi Party government of earning money by selling water and demanded the resignations of Mr. Kejriwal and Mr. Jain.

The police lathicharged the protesters and tried to disperse them with water cannons in which several BJP workers, including State BJP Yuva Morcha president Vasu Rukhad sustained injuries, the party stated.

"The BJP will cut the water connection of Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal's house if the water system in Delhi is not corrected in the next 48 hours," Delhi BJP president Adesh Gupta said.

Playing blame game "According to the agreement reached with Haryana, it is to provide 500 MGD of water every month, but even though the Haryana government is providing 640 MGD of water per month, Raghav Chadha and [Mr.] Kejriwal are blaming the Haryana government in order to hide their shortcomings," he alleged.

Leader of the Opposition in the Delhi Assembly Ramvir Singh Bidhuri alleged that due to the "wrong and corrupt" policies of the Kejriwal government, the DJB, which was once running in profit of ₹800 crore, had been brought to the brink of pauperisation.

"The Delhi government has given ₹57,000 crore to the board in the last years, but out of this, no account of ₹26,000 crore is available. Not only this, the board is running at a loss of ₹2,000 crore every year," Mr. Bidhu-

A city dependent on its neighbours for water

Delhi is a landlocked city and receives raw water from neighbouring States. The water is treated at various water treatment plants (WTPs) before being supplied to the residents of the Capital.

Delhi receives water from Uttar Pradesh, Punjab, and Haryana. The largest share of water comes from Harvana via the Yamuna through three different channels.

When there is a fall in the amount of raw water Delhi gets from these three States, it affects the water supply in the national capital.

What is the problem?

Since Delhi gets the largest share of water from the Yamuna, it has been a contentious issue for a long time between Delhi and Haryana.

Residents of Sanjay Camp fill water from a tanker. • FILE РНОТО

The Yamuna originates in Yamunotri glacier in the Himalayas and travels through Himachal Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Uttarakhand, Haryana, Rajasthan and Delhi before its confluence with the Ganga. The stretch of the river from its origin to Okhla in Delhi is called the "Upper Yamuna". In 1994, a Memorandum of Understanding

(MoU) was signed by the five basin States of the Yamuna, including Delhi and Haryana, for sharing of water of upper Yamuna.

In 1995, the Centre formed the Upper Yamuna River Board (UYRB) to regulate allocation of Yamuna water which flows through hi complaining that it is getting less water from Haryana and the latter denying it most times.

Current issue

During the past one week, the Delhi Jal Board (DJB), which manages water supply in Delhi, has been complaining that it has been getting about 120 Million Gallons per Day (MGD) less raw water from Haryana for the past many days.

DJB Vice Chairperson Raghav Chadha claimed the water released by Haryana is so less that water levels at Wazirabad Barrage, a point along the flow of the Yamuna in Delhi, is the lowest since

As per the DJB, due to shortage of water, the capacity of Chandrawal WTP has come down to 55 MGD from 90 MGD; Wazirabad WTP to 80 MGD from 135 MGD; and Okhla WTP to 12 MGD from 20 MGD.

What now?

The issue is expected to be settled shortly as Haryana has released about 1800 cusecs of water for 24 hours on Sunday, as per DJB officials.

It takes about two to three days for this water to reach Delhi and it is expected to solve the current water issue. On Sunday, Haryana released more water and the shortfall in Delhi's share has dropped to 65 MGD from 120 MGD, as per DJB officials.

People cannot be allowed to suffer during pandemic: court

STAFF REPORTER NEW DELHI

The Delhi High Court on Monday asked the Centre to clarify whether it would allow the Commonwealth Human Rights Initiative (CHRI) to receive foreign contributions in spite of suspension of its registration and consequent freezing of bank account.

"Get instructions. Otherwise, I'll pass an order," Justice Rekha Palli said while asking the Centre whether it would allow the organisation to utilise its existing funds for payment of salaries and meeting other expenses. Justice Palli remarked that people cannot be allowed to suffer during the time of pandemic. The High Court will hear the case again on July 19. CHRI had moved the court challenging a June 7 order passed by the Home

Ministry, suspending its registration for 180 days.

Senior advocate Arvind Datar, representing CHRI, said the suspension of NGO's registration was disproportionate to the alleged violations of the Foreign Contribution (Regulation) Act of 2010 (FCRA Act).

CHRI has said that the suspension order was "unreasonable, manifestly arbiexcessive disproportionate, on the face of it being based on wholly incorrect facts and for violating basic principles of natural justice". It said the suspension order has "completely paralysed" its functioning, "threatens the livelihood of its employees and casts a stigma on its reputation".

Drastic measure "A 180-day suspension is a drastic measure that threatens the very existence of the petitioner (CHRI), apart from causing great harm to its reputation built painstakingly over three decades. The consequent freezing of petitioner's receipt and utilisation bank accounts have severely restricted planned programme activities," its petition said.

CHRI said it was not in a position to pay salaries to its 40 staff members and consultants, whose livelihoods depend on it, especially in these difficult times precipitated by the pandemic.

The Delhi Congress on Monday said that it would approach the Central Vigilance Commission or the Central Bureau of Investigation if the Central government does not order a thorough probe into the purchase of 1,000 buses by the Delhi Transport Corporation and awarding of the maintenance contract for them.

Delhi Congress chief Ch. Anil Kumar said the party will approach the investigating agencies with relevant papers so that a thorough probe could be conducted. He added that on the basis of the findings of a threemember probe panel constituted by the L-G, FIRs should be filed against those found guilty. "The three-member they headed towards New Delhi Railway Station.

At the station, they were approached by a man who told them that to travel by train, they require a negative COVID report. To this, Mr. Vasi told them that they already had the one provided at the Delhi airport. The accused then told him that the airport report was not valid for train

Losses forced closure of dairy farms, Lakshadweep tells HC

In an affidavit, administration defends reforms proposed in the islands

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

The Lakshadweep administration has told the Kerala High Court that after a detailed analysis, it was felt imprudent to continue the dairy farms, suffering a huge loss of more than ₹90 lakh per year. The decision to shut them had no relation to the proposed Animal Preservation Regulation, the administration informed the court in an affidavit.

The affidavit was filed in response to a public interest litigation petition challenging the decision to shut the dairy farms on the islands.

The new regulations proposed by the Lakshadweep Administrator had evoked from quarters.

A recent protest in front of the Lakshadweep Administration office in Kochi against the reforms. •н. vівни

In the affidavit, the administration said it had decided to increase shipping operations from Mangaluru as the port is closer to several islands of Lakshadweep compared to Beypore in Kerala. The Mangaluru port had better facilities as well.

The affidavit denied the allegation of the petitioner that the ban on liquor had been lifted. In fact, the Lakshadweep Prohibition Regulation provides for granting of licences for consumption and sale of alcohol. Recently, licences were issued to the Tourism Promotion Society under the administration to serve liquor to non-islanders at three of its resorts on three islands. This was done to cater to the needs of tourists.

The affidavit said the decision to disengage excess casual employees from various establishments was to prevent loss to the exchequer.

As for removing non-vegetarian food from the midday meal, the administration said meat was part of the regular menu in almost all families, but consumption of fruits and dry fruits was very less among them. Hence their inclusion was perfectly in tune with the objective of the mid-day meal scheme.

The draft regulations had been forwarded to the Home Ministry with the feedback received, the affidavit added.

Karnataka HC gives go-ahead for SSLC exam

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Taking note of the declining COVID-19 cases in the State, the High Court of Karnataka on Monday refused to interfere with the State government's decision to hold an abridged version of SSLC examination on July 19 and 22 for the academic year 2020-21.

"The conduct of examination is in the interest of students, besides being beneficial for their future, the court said while noting that the State had taken adequate safety measures.

While declining to entertain a petition seeking cancellation of exams, the court however, noted that it would be the "collective decision" of parents and children to attend the exam as the government could not compel them to

Kerala capital reports 1 more Zika case, taking tally to 19

Almost all cases so far are linked to a private hospital

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Zika virus (ZIKV) infection was confirmed in one more person in Thiruvananthapuram, taking the total number of cases reported so far in Kerala to 19. All lab-confirmed cases are from the Thiruvananthapuram Corporation limits, though an alert has been sounded across the State.

The latest case was confirmed in a 73-year-old woman, a resident of Puthenthopu in the capital, who had come to the private hospital from where the first case of ZIKV was confirmed.

Almost all of the lab-confirmed cases of ZIKV so far are epidemiologically linked to this private hospital and a chunk of the cases were reported amongst the hospital staff themselves, health officials said.

Central team visit

Members of the Central team on Monday visited the hospital and premises as part of their investigation. "A lot of construction activity is going on in the area. Water stagnation and heavy breeding of mosquitoes were detected in many spots. Since the hospital caters to a lot of State and country, it is possible that someone with the virus had come to the hospital and the infection was then spread in-house by the Aedes mosquitoes," one official who accompanied the Central team said. People who came to the people from outside the hospital with infants for immunisation and who were in the waiting area are also among those who got infected. "The immediate plan of action suggested is to launch immediate and total vector control measures within a 3km radius of the hospital,"

'Repeal UAPA, free accused in Bhima-Koregaon case'

Progressive outfits stage protest in Pune

SHOUMOJIT BANERJEE

A number of progressive outfits under the umbrella the Bhima-Koregaon Shouryadin Prerna Abhiyan staged a protest near the Pune District Collectorate on Monday against the Narendra Modi-led BJP government over the 'institutional murder' of tribal rights activist Father Stan Swamy.

The protestors demanded that all activists and intellectuals arrested by the National Investigation Agency (NIA) in connection with the Bhima-Koregaon case be released immediately.

The protesters also demanded that the stringent Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) be repealed and the 'real' perpetrators behind the Bhima-Koregaon clashes - Hindutva leaders Milind Ekbote and Sambhaji Bhide 'Guruji' - be prosecuted.

"It is a cruel and bitter irony that Malegaon blast accused Pragya Singh Thakur, who is known for her divisive remarks, had no difficulty in getting bail from the Bombay High Court, while Father Swamy, the 84year-old tribal social worker, who had given his entire life fighting constitutional battles for the upliftment and protection of tribals, was given a hard time by the courts in obtaining a straw as he had difficulty holding his glass owing to his ill health... his death is a shameful blot on the tenure of the BJP government," said Anjum Inamdar, founder,

Ekdara village, while the in-

Murud taluka on Sunday recorded this year's highest single-day rainfall of 348 mm in Raigad district, prompting the evacuation of 550 residents of six villages. The rain also triggered landslides at Rajpuri in Murud and Kelghar in Roha, damaging hutments and roads.

Traffic was diverted on Alibag-Murud route via Supegaon after a motorcyclist was killed and six occupants of a car were injured when the slab of an arch drain collapsed at 8.30 p.m. The deceased was identified as Vijay Chavan (50), a resident of jured were Sagar Bhayde (40), wife Shobha Bhayde (38), their children Shree (9) and Neel (4); and friends Ujita Piple (38) and Pushpa Sakpal (38). They were heading from Murud to Panvel. The occupants broke the rear window with a headrest and escaped. They then alerted the control room.

On Monday, high tide and heavy rainfall led to flooding in Supegaon and diversion of traffic from Agardanad to Tala. "The arch drain was constructed by the PWD. It is small in size and should ideally be under the Zilla Parishad. We have sought details from the PWD of the year of construction and funds used," said District Collector Nidhi Choudhari. She said a proposal has been submitted to the State government to provide compensation to the victim's kin. She said similar single-day rainfall was recorded in 2019 at Matheran and Pen.

"Around 550 villagers from six villages were evacuated in two buses. One of the buses got stranded and we had to shift people. With a red alert being issued for the district, we have sought the help of an NDRF team. Extremely heavy rain is forecast till July 15," she said.

Sulekha is today a blend of the past and the future: its factory in Kolkata that manufactures, among other things, ink for the fountain pen, runs on solar power. But thanks to the growing number of people in India who are discovering the joy of writing the old-fashioned way, it is the past, more than the future, that has put the spotlight back on this pre-Independence company It was in 1934 that, on the suggestion of Mahatma Gandhi, brothers Sankaracharva and Nanigopal Maitra started a small factory in Raishahi (now in Bangladesh) to manufacture swadeshi ink In 1939, they shifted to Calcutta and thereafter there was no looking back for Sulekha – it was making over one crore 60-ml bottles annually in its heyday until it was hit by the trade movement in the 1980s. Sulekha ink, like fountain pens, became a thing of the past, preserved in the memory of its once-users and also in some of Satyajit Ray's stories and films.

"Problems began from the late 1970s due to the socio-economic and political conditions prevailing in Bengal at the time. Militant trade unionism was causing low productivity, resulting in recurring cash loss. We finally closed down in 1988. Many other factories in Jadavpur (where the company is located) -Bengal Lamps, Usha, Krishna Glass, Annapurna Glass and others - also downed their shutters," Kaushik Maitra, managing director of Sulekha Works Ltd., told The Hindu.

The company reopened in 2006, after overcoming the cases piled up against it in various courts during the 18 years of closure, and this time it diversified into homecare and hygiene-care products and also into solar projects, making only a small amount of ink for sentimental reasons.

"We ventured into solar products in 2011-12. Initially, we were making solar lanterns and were soon assigned by Indian Oil to solarise a petrol pump near Siliguri. More and more people showed interest but at the same time many were convince others," Mr. Maitra said. It was not until the Deepavali of 2020, amid the pandemic and also when the growing number of fountain-pen enthusiasts in India had organised themselves into various social-media groups and become an influential voice, that Sulekha (literally, beautiful handwriting) formally relaunched its an instant buzz. "Orders are coming from all over India and enquiries are coming from all over the world, thanks to social media," Mr. Maitra said. The relaunch began with the 'Swadeshi' line of inks a set of Royal Blue, Executive Black, and Scarlet Red sold in a khadi pouch made in Santiniketan. This was followed by the Swadhin range: red, blue, black and green. "The shades have been chosen deliberately to create consciousness about sustainability: black for carbon footprint, red for global warming, blue for clean energy and green for sustainability. It is a journey from darkness to light, from good to bad, from subjugation to being swadhin (free)," Mr. Maitra Then there is the Samarpan series, which includes a blue-black dedicated to Mother Teresa and a moss-green limited edition that's dedicated to 50 years of Bangladesh, where the Sulekha story began.

"We are soon going to launch 10 more colours. Giving expression to your creativity through fountain pens, through different colours of ink – the joy is unmatchable and it is back in fashion. Ball pens, on the other hand, are nothing but plastic waste; each weighs 10-12 gm and lasts for about a week in the hand of a student. So if a student writes for 40 weeks in a year, he uses up 40 pens and therefore generates 400 gm of plastic waste annually. Considering there are tens of millions of students in West Bengal alone, you can imagine the damage," Mr.

once-popular ink, causing Maitra said. This PDF was originally uploaded to Brills Express Official (https://t.me/The_Hindu_Express) before anyone else. Don't forget to join backup channel @Thehindu000

The power of scrutiny

SC has struck a blow for inquisitorial powers of legislatures against social media companies

The Supreme Court of India's verdict last week, upholding the authority of a committee of the Delhi Assembly to summon a senior official of Facebook, is an extremely nuanced recognition of the extent of powers of State Assemblies in matters regulated by an Act of Parliament. The question mark about the powers arose in the first place because Facebook, whose India vice-president Ajit Mohan was repeatedly summoned by Delhi Assembly's Committee on Peace and Harmony on the subject of the Delhi riots of 2020, argued before the Supreme Court that this was a case of overreach; and that Delhi's law and order came under the central government. This was also the position taken by the central government, which argued that the Delhi Assembly had no jurisdiction in this matter. The social media platform also pointed out that it was governed by the IT Act of Parliament, and this is not therefore something that any State government can be concerned with. The Court, in upholding the summons, did not go merely by the legislative powers of a House. It rightly said, "The Assembly does not only perform the function of legislating; there are many other aspects of governance which can form part of the essential functions of the Legislative Assembly and consequently the committee." Its point was that the "inquisitorial" and "recommendatory" powers of a House can be used for better governance. But it also cautioned the committee from "transgressing into any fields reserved for the Union Government".

Significantly, the verdict comes amid a long phase of discordance over legislative turf between the central government and the Delhi government, something that the Bench led by Justice S.K. Kaul did note amid discussions about the spirit of federalism. Not just that. It also comes at a time when social media intermediaries are legally fighting some aspects of the new IT rules that govern them. Their responsibility toward the many legislatures will only become more heightened because of this verdict. The Court refused to buy the argument that social media intermediaries are "merely a platform for exchange of ideas without performing any significant role themselves". It then linked what happens in these platforms to the real world. Misinformation on social media, the Court said, has had "a direct impact on vast areas of subject matter which ultimately affect the governance of States". Given the constraints of the powers of the Delhi Assembly vis-à-vis law and order, the very fact that the Court found that its committee still could summon the Facebook India official without encroaching upon the turf of the Centre now opens the gates for scrutiny of social media platforms by other States, which however have significantly more powers with respect to law and order. The stage is set for more scrutiny.

Tie at the top

Djokovic is in pursuit of history not just tournament titles

sing Roger Federer and Rafael Nadal as measuring sticks to assess one's tennis credentials is a harsh and, ultimately, a futile exercise. That Novak Diokovic comes through this most searing of examinations with flying colours is a testament to his genius. On Sunday, the Serb laid down the most definitive marker yet of his dazzling brilliance by pulling level with the celebrated duo on 20 Grand Slam singles titles. A tense four-set victory over Italy's Matteo Berrettini also gave Djokovic his third straight title at the All England club (sixth overall) and helped complete the French Open-Wimbledon double, one of sport's toughest achievements. Djokovic's record-equalling feat had seemed improbable as recently as the summer of 2018. As a 31-year-old, he entered that year's Wimbledon as the 12th seed after having spent two years on the fringes. Federer and Nadal, gaining second winds, had swept the previous six Slams and were already on 20 and 17 respectively. But Djokovic rediscovered his mojo and has since won eight of 12 Majors, the most dominant streak of his career. He has conquered Federer on grass and Nadal on clay, and snuffed out rebellions from the game's 'Next Gen' of Dominic Thiem, Daniil Medvedev, Stefanos Tsitsipas and Berrettini, beating them for his last four Slam trophies. So much so that he now feels the "most complete" he has ever been as a player.

The accomplishments have inevitably reignited the debate on who the greatest men's player of all time is. While comparisons between eras are often limited and come with caveats – think the great Pancho Gonzales being denied chances to compete in Majors in the 1950s because he had turned professional - Djokovic is without doubt the best of his generation. This week will be his record 329th as World No.1 and he is the only man to have won all four Slams, all nine ATP Masters 1000s and the year-ending ATP Finals, twice. No other statistic better represents his relentless pursuit of excellence, across surfaces, continents and seasons. At the US Open starting next month, he has a shot at sporting immortality, as he can become the first man since Rod Laver in 1969 to win all four Majors in a single year. Ashleigh Barty may be a long way from such monumental successes, but like Djokovic, she has proved adept at mastering the game's natural surfaces by adding the Wimbledon crown to the French title she won in 2019. The 25-year-old Aussie's craft and guile was fully on display as she felled opponents as chalk and cheese as Angelique Kerber (counter-puncher) and Karolina Pliskova (all-out attacker). With modesty in her bones, she oozes an enviably understated elegance, something the tennis world is sure to see more and more of.

Decoding the political battle for Uttar Pradesh

If the underpinnings of the BJP's 2017 mandate were contextual rather than absolute, the party could be dislodged ny analysis of the upcoming Uttar Pradesh Assembly elections, in 2022, needs to begin with a note of humility. In all the last three elections in the State (2017, 2012, 2007), most reporters and analysts were incorrect in predicting a tantalisingly close fight. The results, on the other hand, revealed a clear single-party majority each time, including the biggest wave in almost four decades in the last election.

At the outset, we must account for this repeated failure to foresee emerging trends in Uttar Pradesh politics. A large part of the blame can be laid on the obsessive focus on caste arithmetic, heuristic categories frozen from the 1990s, that often blurs the larger picture. The big lesson from the last 15 years is that the State of Uttar Pradesh has moved from a rigid identity politics of caste and community to a focus on identity plus governance. A large floating voter population has gradually emerged, spanning across demography, which is fiercely calculative, and driven by aspirations for a better life.

State's transition

This has powered the transition of Uttar Pradesh, from the messy fragmentation of the coalition era of the 1990s and early 2000s, to the era of stable, single party majorities. Although caste and community identities remain important, Uttar Pradesh voters, like elsewhere, have little patience for misgovernance they have thrown out every incumbent government since 1989.

But the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) government has reasons to be confident of bucking the trend. The sheer scale of its victory in 2017 provides it with a formidable cushion. It received a vote share of almost 40% in the last election, with an average constituency-level winning margin of an incredible

It is quite conceivable for the party to lose a significant chunk of its vote in the next elections, and still emerge with a majority. In comparison, the Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP) and the Samajwadi Party (SP) received a majority, ₹ with 30% and 29% of the vote share, respectively.

Factors behind the mandates

There are two ways of reading the massive 2017 mandate of the BIP. The first is to read it as a historical break where the BJP's ideological triumph fundamentally re-configured the caste-community voting patterns of the State. The second is to read it in the context of the last 15 years, where a large floating voter population, frustrated with the incumbent, flocked behind the clearest alternative. In this framework, just as the 2007 and 2012 majorities did not reflect a longterm realignment in favour of Bahujan (or 'sarvajan') politics or Lohiaite socialism, the enormous mandate received by the BJP in 2017 was also not exclusively a function of Hindutva.

In all three cases, the success of the social engineering or ideological messaging crafted by the eventual winner was contingent on their party becoming the vehicle for the electorate's accumulated resentments and aspirations, shaped by the specific failures of the incumbent. Under the rubric of Hindu identity, and the leadership of Narendra Modi, the BIP became the vehicle for an electorate angry with the crime, corruption and Yadav favouritism under the Samajwadi Party government. The backdrop of communal riots and the increased presence of Muslims in the local power elite, added to glue of this Hindu consolidation.

However, as the ascension of BIP from 1991-98 in the State, and the subsequent decline for two decades demonstrated, Hindu consolidation in a State like Uttar Pradesh could be an ephemeral

Incumbent and prospects

If the underpinnings of the BJP mandate of 2017 were indeed contextual rather than absolute, the BJP can indeed be dislodged from power in the State, provided there are two conditions: one, the presence of strong anti-incumbency; and two, the emergence of a clear alternative that transforms the election from a multi-polar to a largely bi-polar contest.

Let us come to the first question: is there a high level of anti-incumbency against the Yogi Adityanath government that can hurt its prospects?

In choosing Mr. Adityanath, a relative lightweight outside of his bastion in Gorakhpur, to lead the State government, the Narendra Modi-Amit Shah team made two bets, informed by the party's previous experience in the State.

First, only hardline Hindutva could contain caste contradictions and lead to a durable Hindu coalition. In the wake of the Ram Janmabhoomi movement, the BIP had assembled a powerful coalition of upper castes, upwardly mobile castes such as Jats and Gujjars, and Other Backward Classes (OBC) such as Kurmis and Lodhs. This Hindutva coalition, however, soon came apart from internal strife between the upper caste and the OBC factions, culminating in the expulsion of the OBC Kalyan Singh from the party in 1999.

Second, only an authoritative style of leadership could maintain Hindu unity and also create a governance constituency. The largely collective leadership of the 1990s and early 2000s – in which the BJP installed three different confused and disunited front, and consequently failed to compete with Mayawati and Mulayam Singh

Both of these bets, have, arguably, not paid off for the BJP. One, as a political outsider to Lucknow, the first thing Mr. Adityanath did was build his own political support base on his Thakur identity. Much like previous leaders, Mr. Adityanath filled State institutions, be it zilla parishads, civil servants or station house officers, with his own caste men to wield direct power over the administration. The frequent allegations of 'Thakurvaad' or Thakur domination against his administration suggests that Mr. Adityanath has not so far proved to be a leader with a pan-Hindu appeal in the mould of

Two, the authoritative style of governance has provided indifferent results. While Mr. Adityanath does possess some governance appeal – having a relatively clean and 'tough on crime' image - he has largely been unable to associate himself with either a social welfare constituency or marquee developmental projects. On top of it, the novel coronavirus pandemic has severely diminished his governance credentials; any improvement in the ease of business index pales in comparison to images of bodies floating in the Ganga. The dramatic State failure during the second wave of the pandemic also threatens to become a coalescing point for all the material anxieties persisting under the surface, such as unemployment, sluggish growth and farmer

The aspirations of the floating voters who deserted Ms. Mayawati in 2012, and Akhilesh Yadav in 2017, has, arguably, remained unfulfilled under Mr. Adityanath's re-

Where the Opposition stands This brings us to the second question: is there a clear alternative that transforms the election from a multi-polar to a largely bi-polar ranks indicates that only the SP presently possesses the strength to challenge the BJP.

The BSP under Ms. Mayawati has been in constant decline in the State from 2012. The party has lost touch with its roots in political activism for a long time now, and its organisation has withered away under an insular leadership. The steady desertion of leaders gives further evidence of a party in a death spiral. Similarly, there are little signs of a Congress revival, the latest indications being its disastrous returns in the panchayat elections.

All of this plays well into the SP's strategy of making this electoral contest into a largely bipolar race. A perception of a straight fight between the SP and the BJP might well consolidate local elites, and a disgruntled electorate, behind the party symbol. But there are reasonable grounds to doubt whether the SP can defeat the BIP in a bipolar race. For one, the party has never crossed the 30% vote share mark in State elections.

In order to defeat the BJP, the SP party would need to go well beyond plebeian caste consolidation and minority insecurity, and court floating voters with a broadbased, positive message of development. In this regard, Akhilesh Yadav can borrow from his own template of 2012, where he ran a successful campaign focused on employment, electricity and education.

The choice of Mr. Adityanath was essentially informed more through the lenses of ideologically cementing the Hindu vote rather than the fulfilment of the governance aspirations of the floating voter. If the BJP manages to fritter away its enormous mandate, it would derive from the same source of hubris that felled previous incumbents: overly reading into the mandate its own ingenious social engineering or sweeping ideological triumph rather than the contextual aspirations and resentments that underlay it.

Prioritising school reopening on the road to recovery +

Children have long borne the costs of school closure and evidence-based decisions toward reopening are a necessity

ost schools in India have been closed since the national lockdown started in March 2020. What are the costs of keeping schools closed? How do these costs compare against the risks of school reopening? We delve into these questions, as concerned parents with school-age children, as experienced teachers, and also as practising scientists who have followed data and publications on this topic over the last

Interestingly, various regions around the world which have been worse hit by the novel coronavirus pandemic than India, have kept their schools, especially primary schools, mostly open. This includes various European countries such as Portugal, France, the Netherlands, etc. The State of Florida (United States) opened schools for in-person classes in late September 2020, and they stayed open through their second wave. On the other hand in India, schools have mostly been shut even as other businesses have

Impact of school closure

The costs of school closure are immense. People make considerable investments in their childrens' education, as a way toward a better future and a better living standard. Even prior to the pandemic, there was a huge attainment gap across students, especially in higher grades. The bottom half of children passing Class 10 are about two years behind in terms of skills. Prolonged school closure has already widened this gap. What will push the next generation deeper into poverty? Ironically, the poorest families living in dense urban slums, who bore the brunt of the first wave, and are now largely immune from the virus itself (as shown by serosurveys), are the ones suffering the most from school closures.

(https:// survey bit.ly/3xzZ7mx) across 10 States in India in November 2020 estimated that nearly two-thirds of children in rural India may drop out of school, a staggering statistic which is likely to have worsened with continuing closure. Haryana has reported (https://bit.ly/3r64dV5) a 42% drop in student enrolment in private schools. Prolonged school shutdown has severely set back India's fight against ills such as child labour (https://bit.ly/3e9H7HE) and child marriage (https:// bit.ly/36AevTK). Due to the shutdown of schools, mid-day meal schemes have been disrupted; even as early as June 2020, it was estimated (https://bit.ly/3r2AfkG) that about 800,000 additional children would face underweight and wasting.

Health, well-being concerns

Even in well-off urban India and in developed nations, extended school closure is having a severe impact on children's mental health. In Las Vegas, U.S., a surge of student suicides (https://nyti.ms/2UIjYpb) forced schools to reopen in January 2021. The United Kingdom reported (https:// bit.ly/3r2Ftx3) a 40% rise in the number of children taking antidepressants.

Surely, life is more important than education. But as examples above show, schools are not merely about education. Given the costs of prolonged school shutdown, we must probe deeper into the risks of opening schools in the context of COVID-19.

Assessing the risk factor

First, we must realise, and be grateful that the risk of COVID-19 for children is much lower than for adults, and is also much lower than other (already small) risks children face in daily life anyway. Based on a study of 137 million school-age children in the U.S. and Europe, Prof. Raj S. Bhopal (University of Edinburgh, U.K.) has observed ((https://bit.ly/3wzt3h6) that COVID-19 in this age group is less than half as risky as seasonal influenza, and over 20 times less risky than death by "unintentional

A study (https://bit.ly/2Vq94oa) among the nearly two million children in Sweden (where schools have been open throughout), found that there was not a single child death due to COVID-19. As per Mumbai's dashboard data, the COVID-19 IFR (Infection Fatality Rate) for under-19 is minuscule: about 0.003%. In comparison, the infant mortality rate in India is the resources, whose parents have about 3% (1,000 times greater) and the infant mortality rate in Japan (one of the lowest) is 0.18% school-age children are at a negligwhen compared to other threats which we consider normal.

There has been a concern that a possible third wave involving newer variants could affect children. But a careful look at the data (https://bit.lv/3xEm730) tells that the age-profiles of those affected in the second and first waves are similar. There is no scientific basis for this fear. Further, Public Health England's June 2021 report (https://bit.ly/3B3ALnp) shows that the newer variant Delta is much less dangerous (case fatality rate 0.1%) than the original (case fatality rate 1.9%), which is the expected evolutionary path of a

Teachers as 'essential' staff The next question is: are teachers and parents at higher risk of catching COVID-19 if schools reopen? Over the last year there have been several careful scientific studies (https://bit.ly/3kdibTA) across various regions in Europe/U.S., measuring the role of in-person classes in COVID-19 spread. The overwhelming conclusion is that the risk of COVID-19 spread in schools is minimal compared to other locations. To further reduce the concern among teachers, the Government must treat them on a par with essential workers, and offer them prioritised vaccination. Despite this, it is likely that a "one-size-fits-all" approach may not be suitable, as each individual's risk-benefit analysis could be different. For children who lack to go out to work every day, in-person schooling is paramount. Parents who can afford to work from (60 times greater). In other words, home have sufficient resources for their children and may choose to continue with partially or fully on line classes for a few more months. It is high time to implement such differentiated options.

Vaccines for children

There has recently been talk about tving school reopening to vaccines for children. Any medical intervention, especially for children, must be based on a careful risk-benefit analysis. It is pertinent to note that there are growing concerns (https://cnn.it/3r8MnAH) in the U.S. of a potential link between heart inflammation and the mRNA vaccine, among adolescents. Further, scientists writing in The British Medical Journal (May 2021) note (https://bit.ly/36xCpPP): "the rarity of severe Covid-19 outcomes for children means that trials cannot demonstrate that the balance of the benefits of vaccination against the potential adverse effects are favourable...". It will likely take several years to establish such a balance. We cannot let our children suffer for that long, by further prolonging closures. More than the virus, fear stands between our children and their education and normal life. Policymakers must make evidencebased decisions toward school reopening. This is the least the working class and the children of India deserve.

If the Taliban's claim that they control over 80% of Afghanistan is true, then their final assault on Kabul could come any time soon. Despite its long presence in Afghanistan, the U.S. has not been able to understand the true political dynamics between various tribal factions. With the Taliban's resurgence

Tracing the decline of U.S. power

The U.S. made a major mistake in abandoning realist pragmatism and switching to liberal idealism

KISHORE MAHBUBANI

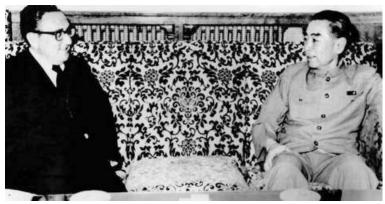

In A New Cold War: Henry Kissinger and the Rise of China, edited by Sanjaya Baru and Rahul Sharma, academic and diplomat Kishore Mahbubani explains America's place in the world in his essay Evil Liberalism versus Moral Pragmatism'. He asserts that by abandoning Kissinger's realist pragmatism, the U.S. has become "severely weakened both domestically and externally". An excerpt:

The year 2021 marks the 50th anniversary of Henry Kissinger's famous visit to China in July 1971. It also marks, more or less, the 30th anniversary of the end of the Cold War. With some risk of being accused of over-simplification, one can say in the 20 years after Kissinger's visit to China, U.S. foreign policy was guided by the philosophy of realist pragmatism. By contrast, in the 30 years after the end of the Cold War, it was guided by the philosophy of liberal idealism. The results are clear. Realist pragmatism delivered the greatest victory of American foreign policy: a victory over the mighty Soviet Union without the U.S. firing a shot at Soviet armed forces. By contrast, the past 30 years have generated a lot of evil.

Collateral damage

Between 2004 and 2019, the U.S. Air Force dropped 175,842 bombs on several countries, according to the U.S. Air Forces Central Command. Bombs dropped from the air are often not accurate. Hence, many innocent people were killed. The Brown University Watsons Institute's Cost of War Project estimates the total casualties from all post-9/11 wars at 770,000 to 801,000 casualties. The results are clear: when ethical dogooders take over the U.S. foreign policy, evil is generated: $5.1 trillion wasted; almost 800,000 lives lost.

Yet, the biggest damage done by the abandonment of Kissingerian realist pragmatism is that the U.S. has become severely weakened both domestically and externally. Internally, the 30-year period of liberalidealist domination of the U.S. foreign policy has coincided with a 30year period of stagnation of working class incomes. Externally, the U.S. literally fell asleep at the wheel while China rose dramatically. In 1980, in purchasing power parity (PPP) terms, China's gross national product (GNP) was 10% of that of the U.S. By 2014, it had become bigger. Now there is no doubt that the biggest foreign policy challenge the U.S. faces in the next three decades is China.

So, how should the U.S. manage China? The main argument of this essay is that the U.S. needs to engage in deep reflection on what went drastically wrong. The U.S. made a major mistake in abandoning realist pragmatism and switching to liberal idealism. A return to Kissingerian realist pragmatism would be the best way to manage a rising China.

Kissinger's celebrated 'secret' visit to Beijing in July 1971 is widely and justifiably regarded as a major move that swung the 'correlation of forces' in America's favour and led to the ultimate victory over the Soviet Union. What was remarkable about the widespread applause that this visit received, including from The New York Times and The Washington Post, is that so few Americans mentioned that the U.S. was embracing a regime in China led by Mao Zedong, which had only recently created havoc in the country, leading to enormous human pain and suffering through the disastrous policies of the Great Leap Forward (1958-61) and the Cultural Revolution (1966-76). In short, human rights were a secondary consideration when realist pragmatism reigned. Indeed, at the International Conference on Kampuchea of July 13-17,1981, the U.S. deleknows what it wants, which is coping successfully with the problems of its internal life and with the responsibilities of a World Power, and which has a spiritual vitality capable of holding its own among the major ideological currents of the time.' He also called for 'greater humility in our national outlook.' According to Mearsheimer, his call for humility was in response to a strong claim made by then Secretary of State Madeleine Albright in February 1998, when she had said, 'If we have to use force, it is because we are America; we are the indispensable nation. We stand tall and we see further than other countries into the future, and we see the danger here to

Kennan lived to the ripe old age of 101 and died in 2005. Hence, he lived through the first 15 years of the post-Cold War era. Significantly, he also disapproved of the many key moves when the U.S. switched from realist pragmatism to liberal idealism. He disapproved of the expansion of NA-TO into the former Soviet bloc. Kennan also disapproved of the invasion by the size of their respective armed the 'spiritual vitality' of their domes-

'Delusions of superiority'

Dick Cheney confidently asserted that U.S. troops would be welcomed in Iraq. He said, 'I really do believe that we will be greeted as liberators.' Mearsheimer observes that in contrast to such beliefs that the U.S. was morally superior, Kennan did not believe that the U.S. was more virtuous in any meaningful way. Indeed, Kennan observed that Americans were suffering from 'delusions of superiority'. Kennan strongly argued against the U.S. taking a 'paternalistic responsibility to anyone, be it even in the form of military occupation'.

Many of the points raised here will be disputed. Yet, there is no doubt that the policies of restraint and pragmatism, advocated by people like Kissinger and Kennan in the Cold War era, contrast significantly with the liberal idealism of the post-Cold War era, as demonstrated by the statement of Democrats like Albright and Republicans like George W. Bush. These contrasting approaches also explain American success of the Cold War era and the failures of the post-Cold War era.

Dialogue over discord

RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat's speech has ushered in a ray of hope for harmony

TARIQ MANSOOR

There have been a lot of deliberations on Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) chief Mohan Bhagwat's speech on July 5 during a book launch function in Ghaziabad. The speech carries many firsts and sends a message to both Hindus and Muslims. Discussions in the media and in social and political groups may be taking place on the content of the speech, but there is no denying that it has ushered in a ray of hope for harmony.

A bold speech

Mr. Bhagwat stressed on two major issues, peaceful coexistence and initiating a dialogue for a composite culture, to be attained by safeguarding and following our own religious practices, cultures, and attire. Nothing is left for a tussle when the two communities share a motherland, culture, and ancestors.

Mr. Bhagwat's speech has to be viewed in its entirety. The time has come for a new beginning. His bold outreach needs to be reciprocated. There may be issues, concerns, and even irritants during this journey but we have to overcome all this. Treading a peaceful path is the need of the hour.

There are many points in Mr. Bhagwat's speech which we have to agree with without discussion. India is the motherland for both the communities. He has shunned the apprehension regarding his remarks - there is no need for confrontation. The fact that such a statement comes from the RSS chief itself denotes that Muslims should not live with any fear psychosis. When Mr. Bhagwat said that the DNA of Hindus and Muslims is the same and they have the same ancestors, it shows that proving one's Muslim identity does not hold much ground.

It is true that incidents of mob lynching of Muslims are a matter of concern as they have endangered the life and security of the community. Mr. Bhagwat categorically condemned all such lynching incidents. He said that those who indulge in lynching are against Hindutva. The law should take its own course against such people without any

Mr. Bhagwat said Muslims should not live in a cycle of fear. This could instill confidence in the community. It is a fact that there is fear and apprehension in the community. There is no space for firebrand sloganeering that Islam is in danger, Muslims will be evicted, etc. Mr. Bhagwat himself candidly admitted that he can become popular with such rhetoric speeches but Hindus will themselves not support him.

The message from Mr. Bhagwat's speech is also for the majority community. The fringe elements need to learn lessons from it. The sensationalisation of statements, such as 'no Muslims will live here', may get space in the media, but the majority community does not approve of such an attitude. The RSS chief has highlighted the fact that there may have been some mistakes and excesses in the past, but we have to move forward. He has also drawn a line for the political situation in the country. Unity emanates from camaraderie, not from politics. It will come from the continuous efforts of enlightened people, not through politics.

Emphasising unity

Not long before Mr. Bhagwat's speech, Prime Minister Narendra Modi delivered an important speech to the Muslim community at the centenary celebrations of the Aligarh Muslim University (AMU) in 2020. His speech was appreciated in India and abroad for emphasising unity while achieving common national goals such as Aatmanirbharta, women's education, preservation of cultural heritage and equality of opportunity, while de-emphasising political and ideological differences.

It is within this framework that the speeches of both Mr. Modi and Mr. Bhagwat have to be appreciated. These are genuine attempts to engage with the community. More importantly, it is crucial that this be reciprocated by the Muslim community through dialogue. AMU can play an important role in facilitating this dialogue. Section 5(2)(b) of the AMU Act confers the university with the mission to promote the study of the religions, culture and civilisation of India. Towards this, the AMU, in its centenary year, established the Dara Shikoh Centre for Interfaith Dialogue. Dara Shikoh, a Mughal prince, was the founder of the academic movement for Hindu-Muslim dialogue.

For centuries, the two communities have lived in unity sharing a motherland, culture, and ancestors. Throughout the course of history, our rulers were different, but the country has remained one. This is what makes our Bharat unique. This is the message from this ancient land to the entire world. Any dialogue must take lessons from the past, live in the present and chart a peaceful path for the future. Let us move ahead with open hearts and minds.

Ethiopia's political tug of war

The conflict between PM Abiy Ahmed's party and the Tigray People's Liberation Front is escalating

Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed believes he is a man of destiny. As a child, his mother had prophesied that her son would become a great ruler one day. The Prosperity Party the former intelligence officer launched, disbanding the multi-party coalition that brought him to power, is said to derive its name from an evangelical faith. Whatever his predilections, the Ethiopian leader has, since being catapulted to premiership in April 2018, stumbled from one crisis to another, imperilling the country's recent economic record.

Use of force

When Mr. Abiy commanded a military offensive in November in retaliation against a Tigray rebel attack on federal army barracks, his reputation as a reformer and peacemaker already lay in ruins. He dismissed opposition to the use of force, insisting that the law-and-order operation would be wound up within weeks. For months, he denied the involvement of neighbouring Eritrean forces in the conflict. In March, Mr. Abiy likened Tigrayan fighters to "flour dispersed by the wind."

But events on the ground tell another story. Thousands of civilians have been killed by Ethiopian and Eritrean forces and Tigrayan militias. Addis Ababa stands accused by the United Nations and Amnesty International of war crimes, ethnic cleansing and the resort to rape and hunger as weapons of war.

The unilateral ceasefire Mr. Abiy declared on June 28, purportedly on humanitarian grounds, carries little credibility, as Tigray continues to remain crippled by a blockade of essential supplies and communication and electricity blackouts. The U.S., Ethiopia's long-standing military ally, has imposed sanctions on several top officials and the European Union has suspended millions of dollars in aid.

Meanwhile, after recapturing the regional capital Mekelle in late June, the rebel Tigray Defense Forces have taken thousands of Ethiopian troops as prisoners of war. They have demanded the withdrawal of all federal forces loyal to Mr. Abiy, besides an independent investigation into Ethiopian and Eritrean atrocities. The Tigray People's Liberation Front (TPLF), the dominant party in the Ethiopian People's Revolutionary Democratic Front (EPRDF)'s autocratic rule until 2018, is resurgent. The organisation, which Mr. Abiy has dubbed a "criminal clique," has stayed outside his Prosperity Party.

Debretsion Gebremichael, the President of TPLF, has raised the spectre of the territory asserting its right to self-determination under the 1995 constitution in view of its deepening distrust with Addis Ababa. Mr. Debretsion has also not ruled out TPLF retaliation against Eritrean atrocities in the ongoing conflict. Eritrea's strongman President Isaias Afwerki, who signed the landmark 2018 peace deal with Mr. Abiy, has now allied with him, possibly to avenge his country's bloody defeat against a TPLF-led Ethiopian government in the 1998-2000 border war.

Growing resentment

The volatile atmosphere is a far cry from the euphoria in 2018 when Mr. Abiy released political prisoners, lifted the ban on opposition parties and welcomed exiles home. An Oromo, the ethnic community that constitutes more than a third of Ethiopia's population, Mr. Abiy 's elevation symbolised the redressal of the country's political imbalance. Tigrayans, who form less than 10% of the populace, had wielded power disproportionate to their strength for 28 years under the EPRDF coalition. In the event, the Oromos' enthusiasm to assert their new-found freedom proved unsustainable and the Tigrayans began to resent the erosion of political influence.

Matters reached a head when Tigray held provincial polls in September 2020, defying Addis Ababa's decision to defer general elections nationally in view of the pandemic. The ballot was eventually held on June 21, but not in at least 100 constituencies. Although Mr. Abiy has predictably won the election, the second most populated nation in Africa

The Defence and External Affairs Ministers to-day [New Delhi, July 12] spoke reassuringly in Parliament about India's preparedness on both the western and eastern fronts to meet any Pakistani threat, while deploring strongly the continued supply of U.S. arms to the military rulers of Pakistan. The Defence Minister, Mr. Jagjivan Ram, assured the Lok Sabha, in the course of his reply to the seven-hour debate on the budget demands for the defence forces, that despite Pakistan's frantic efforts to augment its military strength, India still retained a decisive edge in almost every sphere. In his reply to the calling attention motion of the supply of American arms to Pakistan, the External Affairs Minister, Mr. Swaran Singh, disclosed that in addition to numerous verbal representations made at the highest level, India had also protested in writing on June 27 to the U.S. Government against the dangerous implications of this action. He told the Lok Sabha that the Government of India felt that the "the supply of arms to Pakistan by any country in the present context amounts to condonation of the genocide in Bangla Desh and encouragement to the continuation of the atrocities by the Military rulers of Pakis-

Fire in cinema

Lahore, July 12:- Shortly after 9 last night while the Empire Cinema, situated on Macload Road, was about to finish the first performance, the sudden fusing of electric wires, it is said, set fire inside the operator's room. Alarm was immediately given and the whole audience was safely brought out. Unfortunately one of the films caught fire and though attempts were made by means of fire extinguishers to control flames, the scarcity of water prevented anything substantial being done. Just then a big dust-storm came along and within a very short time the whole building was completely gutted. Mr. Madan and his staff saved all films stored in the premises, all pianos and as much of the furniture as could be brought out. They were assisted by the military and police on duty and members of the general public. But for this voluntary assistance, nothing could have been saved, so sudden was the conflagration. The municipal fire engines arrived on the spot twenty minutes after the fire and were unable to do anything until water was obtained after another 20 minutes. The fire was brought under control about midnight.

Inflation remains above 6% for second month

Growth impulses remained fragile with the second CO-VID-19 wave hurting the recovery momentum, according to quick estimates of industrial output for May, with output levels 8% lower than April.

Manufacturing output tanked 9.5% month-onmonth, electricity production fell nearly 7%, although mining moved up marginally by 0.6% in May.

Headline factory output increased 29.3% over an incomparable May 2020, when industrial production had collapsed over 33% in the midst of a national lockdown.

However, this was 13.9% below the pre-pandemic levels of May 2019.

"Consumer durables and capital goods stood out as the worst affected sectors in May, trailing the pre-COVID levels by 41.2% and 36.9%, respectively," noted Aditi Nayar, chief economist at rating agency ICRA.

DBS Group Research economist Radhika Rao said Monetary Policy Committee members may retain a growth focus but are likely to express discomfort on the recent bout of sticky inflation, in the absence of corrective fiscal steps like excise duty cuts on fuel. "If the CPI inflation remains entrenched above the 6% upper threshold in the next two prints (July-August 2021), a preponement of rate normalisation can't be ruled out," warned Ms. Nayar, who expects the tightrope walk between supporting a 'nascent, incomplete' growth revival and preserving the need to anchor inflationary expectations, to continue.

"Beyond the monthly swings, inflation continues to stay above the mid-point (4%) of the inflation target since late 2019... Pipeline risks are in focus, from service inflation as the second wave ebbs, pass-through from higher input prices as well as risks of a sub-normal southwest monsoon," Ms Rao pointed out.

While the pace of price rise slowed marginally in rural India from 6.5% in May to 6.2% in June, inflation experienced by urban consumers quickened further to 6.4% from 5.9% in

'Rise in such incidents is partly due to cascading effects of global warming'

With the monsoon making a slow revival over several parts of India, except the northwest region, there is a lightning-linked deaths.

Nearly 68 were reportedly struck dead by lightning on a single day in Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh, according to reports from the States on Sunday. Prime Minister Narendra Modi announced an ex gratia of ₹2 lakh each for the next of kin of those killed in the lightning strikes in all the three States and ₹50,000 for the injured.

Over the years, the Home Ministry's statistics consistently cited lightning as the biggest natural disasterlinked killer in India.

In 2019, an analysis by private weather company Skymet reported that five States accounted for half the lightning strikes that year, led by Odisha with 9,37,462 strikes or about 16% of the cloud-to-ground strikes. There were 20 million lightning strikes in that period with over 72% of them

For well over a week now, the monsoon – that was to have reached Delhi on June 27-29 - has been on the threshold of the region with its northernmost limit over a stretch that spans Barmer, Aligarh, Meerut, Ambala and Amritstar.

"Conditions are ripe for the monsoon in Delhi and it is only a matter of time," M. Mohapatra, Director-General, IMD, told The Hindu on Monday.

The latest forecasts, as of Monday morning, indicate no significant rain over the region for the next 24 hours and only chances of a "light drizzle" for the early part of the week.

It is needless to mention that the IMD has predicted well with high accuracy about the advance of monsoon over Delhi in the recent past years and also the advance of monsoon over different parts of the country during the monsoon-2021 accurately about four to five days ahead. The IMD is monitoring the situation continuously and will provide the regular updates on advance of monsoon into remaining parts of northwest India including Delhi."

After the monsoon made its onset over Kerala on June 3, its southwest branch made a rapid journey upwards, prompting the IMD to forecast that it could arrive by June 15.

"We made a mistake with that. However after July 1. the IMD's position has been that the monsoon would set in around July 10. We are seeing the setting in of the characteristic monsoon winds as well as low humidity and the clouds are there too. The rain is soon inevitable," said Mr. Mohapatra.

The overall monsoon rainfall from a surplus has turned to an 8% deficit.

IT Rules: SC gives petitioner a week's time

He can check whether it addresses the issue of communally sensitive content on social media

LEGAL CORRESPONDENT

The Supreme Court on Monday gave a week's time for a petitioner to study the Information Technology (Intermediary Guidelines and Digital Media Ethics Code) Rules of 2021 to verify whether it addresses the issue of communally sensitive content posted on social media platforms.

A Bench led by Chief Justice of India (CJI) N.V. Ramana even suggested that the petitioner, advocate Khaja Aijazuddin, could approach the government.

Mr. Aijazuddin said he had moved the apex court on the suggestion of the Telangana High Court. He sought directions to the government to restrain social media platforms from carrying Islamophobic content on their timelines and to direct a CBI or NIA probe against Twitter and its users involved in putting out "inflammatory posts". The petition referred to how "massive publicity was given by the media that many of the positive cases of symptoms of coronavirus were found from Tablighi Jamaat at Nizamuddin in Delhi".

The petition contended "there was a massive trending of tweets on Twitter attaching the Muslim religion to the cause of spread of coronavirus"

He said he was "aggrieved with trending on Twitter under the name and styled #Islamiccoronavirusjihad, etc". It amounted to promoting hatred against a particular religion, which is a criminal offence both under the Indian Penal Code and the Information Technology Act of 2000.

The petition, filed in May, asked the court to direct the government to frame specific guidelines under the Information Technology Act of 2000 about "hate messages against any religious community including Islamophobic posts on various social media platforms'

The Bench, including Justice A.S. Bopanna, addressed Mr. Aijazuddin. "Have you not examined the recent IT Rules... it takes care of this... The petitioner, however, argued that the Rules did not

"consider religion but only defamatory content". The CJI said, "Have you read the latest Rules? Please do your homework and come... list after a week".

The new Rules was notified on February 25 under the Information Technology Act of 2000. It regulates social intermediaries, content on digital media and addresses cyber-crime. It comes in place of the Information Technology (Intermediate Guidelines) Rules of

Already, the different aspects of the new Rules are under judicial scanner. The government has recently moved the apex court to transfer the cases pending against it from various High Courts to it. On July 9, a Bench of Justices A.M. Khanwilkar and Sanjiv Khanna tagged the government's transfer plea to a pending special leave petition titled 'Justice for Rights Foundation versus Union of India'. The Justice Khanwilkar Bench had said the case would be listed before an appropriate Bench on July 16.

The government's transfer petition is likely to come up before a Bench led by Justice D.Y. Chandrachud on July 16. The 'Justice for Rights Foundation' case is pending before this Bench and primarily concerns the regulation of content shown on over-thetop (OTT) platforms. This Bench has been examining the issue in the backdrop of the new IT Rules.

Afghan situation to dominate Jaishankar's central Asian visit

External Affairs Minister to meet Pak., Chinese counterparts

External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar travels to Central Asia on Tuesday for two back-to-back meetings fo-Afghanistan, which will see him face-toface with the Foreign Ministers of both Pakistan and China as well as attending a conference with Pakistan Prime Minister Imran Khan, Afghanistan President Ashraf Ghani and U.S. Special Envoy Zalmay Khalilzad.

Mr. Jaishankar will first attend the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation (SCO) ministerial in Dushanbe on July 13 and 14 after which he will travel to Tashkent for a regional connectivity conference on July 15 and 16.

Though Mr. Jaishankar has been at the same venue as the Pakistan Foreign Minister Shah Mehmood Qureshi at least twice in the past few months, the SCO meeting marks the first time he will be in the room with Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi, since the two met in Moscow last September, when they agreed to de-escalate tensions at the Line of Actual Control.

However, the agreement has yet to be fully implemented on the ground. The External Affairs Ministry declined to comment on whether Mr. Jaishankar and Mr. Wang will have a separate meeting at either of the two venues that both will travel to.

The focus of both meetings is expected to be the deteriorating security situation in Afghanistan and regional solutions for the country in the wake of the U.S. and NA-TO troops pull-out, said organisers.

Dushanbe will host a spe-SCO-contact group meeting of eight member states (Russia, India, China, Pakistan and Central Asian states) with Afghanistan Foreign Minister Hanif Atmar on July 14. Significantly, the contact group, which normally meets at the level of Deputy Foreign Ministers, is being upgraded this time, and all Foreign Ministers are expected to give a joint statement on Afghanistan.

The statement will be of particular importance as the Taliban has stepped up violence in the country, and Taliban militants claim they are taking over more towns and cities from the Afghan forces, which led to India pulling all its staff out of the Kandahar Consulate on Saturday. Afghanistan was high on the agenda of Mr. Iaishankar's meetings in Tehran and Moscow last week as well.

In Tashkent, Uzbekistan President Shavkat Mirziyoyev will make a greater push for trade connectivity between South and Central Asia, including discussing the importance of the Chabahar project with India and signing a transit trade agreement (TTA) with PM Khan that will give Uzbekistan access to Pakistani ports, benefiting trade with Afghanistan as well.

"Afghanistan is not just a neighbour, but a part of our region. Presently it is seen by some as a source of problems and threats, but it is also a source of possibilities, and the President feels that the foremost purpose of this conference is to strengthen connectivity, including through Afghanistan," Uzbekistan Ambassador to India Dilshod Akhotov told The Hindu in an interview. He added that Afghanistan would be included in the Uzbekistan-India-Iran trilateral in the future, and plans for a Preferential Trade Agreement (PTA) with India were also under consideration.

'Imbalance between communities due to different response to family planning'

NEW DELHI

The Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP) has objected to incentivising public servants and others to follow the "onechild norm" mentioned in certain sections of the proposed Uttar Pradesh Population (Control, Stabilisation and Welfare) Bill, 2021.

The objection pertains to not just the fact that China has had to reverse its onechild policy because of its negative impact of the availability of a working population, but because of what the VHP termed an "imbalance between different communities because they are known to respond differently to family planning and contraception", flagging different Total Fertility Rates (TFR) between Hindu and Muslim communities in States such as Kerala and Assam.

Oxygen plants inaugurated in Gujarat

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

The Cabinet recently approved a ₹23,000 crore package for COVID-19 emergency response, Union Health Minister Mansukh Mandaviya pointed out on Monday,

Virtually inaugurating two oxygen PSA (Pressure Swing Adsorption) plants at Sir Takhtasinhji Hospital at Bhavnagar in Gujarat, he said the government had made adequate provisions for paediatric care in all hospitals to provide the most effective healthcare for children, he said.

"We are also developing a system of buffer [oxygen] stock at the State and Central levels that can be used in case of any health crisis. Thus, a comprehensive plan and capacity-building in the next six months is being taken up through this COVID-19 package," he stated. Associated facilities such as a fire-fighting system and an automatic oxygen source changeover system were also inaugurated.

The Indian Medical Association (IMA) on Monday warned that a third wave of the pandemic was inevitable and imminent, and appealed to the Central and State governments not to let their guard down against CO-VID-19. It said mass gatherings in tourist and religious places along with flouting of safety norms spelt danger.

The treatment of COVID-19 patients with mild to moderate symptoms with an antibodies' cocktail of Casirivimab and Imdevimab has reduced the treatment period from between 13 and 14 days to five and six, and only one out of around 200 patients required oxygen sup-Brihanmumbai ply, the Municipal (BMC) said on Monday.

The civic body treated 200 patients with the cocktail at the SevenHills hospital in Andheri, and according to officials, the results were encouraging. The BMC said that only one (0.5%) patient required oxygen supply after this line of treatment and the death rate came down by 70%.

Monitoring cases

A total of 212 patients were given the cocktail and the progress of 199 was studied. Out of these, 101 were from the 18 to 45 age group, 45 from the 45 to 59 age group and 53 above 60 years. A total of 74 patients had at least one comorbidity.

Before the start of the treatment, 179 had fever, while 158 had cough and fever. Also, four patients had to be put on oxygen supply. The average HRCT (high-resolution computed tomography) score was seven to eight, while the highest was subsided within 48 hours upon receiving the treatment and only one patient needed oxygen supply. "More importantly, none of the patients showed side-effects," said an official, adding that this treatment avoided the use of Remdesivir and other steroids.

"This will also reduce the cost of the treatment and since hospital time is curtailed, it will ease the pressure on the medical system," the official noted.

According to the BMC, this treatment could be carried out on those above 12 years and with a weight of over 40 kg and with mild to moderate symptoms. Those who were not on oxygen but faced the possibility of health deterioration could get the treatment. It could also be done on patients with comorbidities, the

'No need for negative RT-PCR report if fully vaccinated'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

The Bombay High Court at Goa on Monday permitted fully vaccinated residents and those who work in Goa to enter the State without a COVID-19 negative report till August 5.

A Division Bench of Justices M.S. Sonak and M.S. Jawalkar allowed the workforce that includes people related to labour, construction and industries in Goa; those who run businesses in the State and all Goa residents required to travel outside of the State for work or medical reasons.

People would have to produce verified certificates of receiving both shots of the COVID-19 vaccine before entering the State.

The Bench granted this relief till August 5 and will hear the matter again to decide if tourists who are fully vaccinated can also enter without negative Goa reports. The court passed the interim relief after its order on May 6 directed the authorities of Goa to not allow residents without a negative RT-PCR report done 72 hours before arrival.

The hearing was part of a bunch of public interest litigation pleas filed by the South Goa Advocates

Fulfilling His promise

In Srimad Bhagavatam, sage Suka gives a wonderful description of the newborn Krishna, said V.S. Karunakarachariar in a discourse. Krishna had lotus-like eyes, and four hands, which held His weapons. He had on His chest the characteristic mole known as Srivatsa. Lakshmi was seen on His chest. He was adorned with the Kaustubha gem. His diamond and gem studded crown and earrings dazzled. The child had a beautiful black hue, like rain-bearing clouds. He had thick hair. He was further adorned with a waist belt, bracelets and armbands. No child had ever looked like this. He was an adbhutam balakam – a most unusual and unique child. And Vasudeva saw his amazing son, says Suka.

Devaki was alarmed, for Kamsa was sure to kill such a child. Why did Krishna take this form? Devaki was responsible for this. When Brahma created many couples, asking them to procreate, one couple was more inclined towards attaining moksha. They were Prisni and her husband Sutapas. They, therefore, did penance, and Lord Narayana appeared before them. Considering their desire for moksha, that is what they should have asked for. But the Lord's plans for them were different. So, when they saw the Lord, Prisni said she wanted a child like Him, and she said this three times. The Lord agreed to grant her what she wanted. But how could He find someone like Him? There is none equal to or superior to Him.

The only option was for Him to be born as her child. And since her prayer had been made three times, He had to do this thrice. The first time, He was born to her as Prisnigarbha, the second time as Vamana. Now as Krishna, He had come revealing His form as Narayana, thus fulfilling His promise to Prisni, for it was Prisni who was born as Devaki.

Six dead in riots over Zuma's arrest

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Six people have been killed and 219 arrested amid escalating violence during rioting that broke out following the imprisonment of South Africa's former President Jacob Zuma, police said Monday.

Army soldiers will be deployed to help police quell the violence, the South African National Defence Force said. Police said shops and businesses have been looted and vandalised. Traffic has been disrupted by rioters barricading major roads with burning tires, and cars have been attacked.

The violence was triggered last week when Zuma began serving a 15month sentence for contempt of court. He had defied a court order to testify before a state-backed inquiry probing allegations of corruption during his term as president from 2009 to 2018.

Constitutional Court will hear Zuma's appeal against the sentence on Monday. The rioting started in Zuma's home region of KwaZulu-Natal province last week and over the weekend it spread to Gauteng province, which includes Johannesburg, South Africa's largest city.

Top U.S. General in Afghanistan Scott Miller relinquishes post

He says relentless violence is making political settlement increasingly difficult

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The top U.S. commander in Afghanistan relinquished his position at a ceremony in the capital Kabul on Monday, taking the U.S. a step closer to ending its 20-year war. The move came as Taliban insurgents continue to gain territory across the country.

Another four-star general will assume authority from his U.S.-based post to conduct possible airstrikes in defence of Afghan government forces, at least until the U.S. withdrawal concludes by August 31.

Gen. Scott Miller has served as America's top commander in Afghanistan since 2018. He handed over command of what has become known as America's "forever war" in its waning days to Marine Gen. Frank McKenzie, the head of U.S. Central Command. McKenzie will operate from Central Command headquarters in Tampa, Florida.

The handover took place in the heavily fortified Resolute Support headquarters in the heart of Kabul at a time of rapid territorial gains by Taliban insurgents across Afghanistan.

ny, Gen. Miller remembered the U.S. and NATO troops killed in the nearly 20-year war as well as the thousands of Afghans who lost their lives. He warned that relentless violence across Afghanistan is making a political settlement increasingly difficult. The outgoing commander said he has told Taliban insurgents "it's important that the military sides set the conditions for a peaceful and political settlement in Afghanistan... But we know that with that violence, it would be very difficult to achieve political remony, Mr. Mohib said the greatest impact of the withdrawal is a lack of aircraft to resupply troops. Currently, the government is regrouping to retake strategic areas and defend its cities against Taliban advances.

The Taliban control more than one-third of Afghanistan's 421 districts and district centers. A Taliban claim that they control 85% of the districts is widely seen as exaggerated.

After Gen. Miller's departure, a two-star admiral based at the U.S. Embassy in Kabul will oversee the U.S. military's role in securing the American diplomatic presence in Kabul, including defending the Kabul airport.

Gen. Miller's departure does not reduce the scope of the U.S. military mission in Afghanistan, since Gen. McKenzie will assume the authorities now held by Gen. Miller to conduct airstrikes in defence of Afghan government forces under certain circumstances. The conditions under which such strikes might be used are not clear, nor is it known for how long Gen. McKenzie will keep the strike authority.

Nepali Congress hails Supreme Court verdict

'People given clear political alternative'

KALLOL BHATTACHERJEE

The verdict of the Supreme Court of Nepal to remove Prime Minister K.P. Sharma Oli has revitalised the Nepali Congress and the constitutional democracy of Nepal, vice-president of the party Bimlendra Nidhi told The Hindu on Monday.

Following the Supreme Court's verdict, Nepali Congress president Sher Bahadur Deuba will be sworn in as the new Prime Minister by Tuesday evening, Mr. Nidhi said

"We welcome the verdict of the Honourable Supreme Court as it has given a clear political alternative before the people of Nepal ending the rule of PM Oli. It also shows that President Bidhya Devi Bhandari had erred by denying the opportunity of a floor test to the claim of Shri Deuba to form the government earlier after the reinstatement of the lower house of Parliament," Mr.

Nidhi said, speaking over phone

'New direction'

Nepali politics, said Mr. Nidhi, had been stuck with the rule of Mr. Oli but now the clear verdict of the Supreme Court has given a new direction to the country. Following the verdict, Mr. Deuba will have to be sworn in as the Prime Minister of Nepal within a day. "Within 30 days, Mr. Deuba will have to prove the majority of his government in Parliament," Mr. Nidhi said.

The verdict was particularly critical of PM Oli and President Bhandari and held both of them guilty of violating constitutional norms while dealing with the political crisis that began last December 20 when President Bhandari dissolved the lower house of the Nepalese Parliament after being advised by PM Oliled Cabinet.

Haitian man held in Moïse's assassination

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The head of Haiti's national police announced on Sunday that officers arrested a Haitian man accused of flying into the country on a private jet and working with the masterminds and alleged assassins behind the killing of President Jovenel Moïse.

Police Chief Léon Charles identified the suspect as Christian Emmanuel Sanon, without giving any personal information about him, though it appears he has been living in Florida. The chief also gave no intormation on the pur ported masterminds.

Mr. Charles said the alleged killers were protecting Mr. Sanon as the supposed president of Haiti, adding that officers found several items at his house, including a hat emblazoned with the logo of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, 20 boxes of bullets and gun parts.

Two former Jordan officials handed 15-year jail terms

They're convicted of conspiring to topple King Abdullah

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

A Jordanian court on Monday sentenced two former officials to 15 years in jail after finding them guilty of a coup plot that sparked a rare crisis in a kingdom seen as a pillar of stability in the region.

Former royal court chief Bassem Awadallah and an ex-envoy to Saudi Arabia, Sharif Hassan bin Zaid, had been convicted of conspiring to topple King Abdullah II in favour of his half-brother Prince Hamzah.

The former Crown Prince himself was not charged in the trial, but the chargesheet said he was "determined to fulfil his personal ambition to rule, in violation of the Hashemite constitution and customs".

The trial took place behind closed doors at the State Security Court, a military tribunal that also in-

Judge Muwaffaq al-Masaid noted the men had been friends for 20 years and were close to Prince Hamzah. He said they had tried to put into action "ideas that are hostile to the existing political system in the kingdom and his majesty King

The men had tried "to divisions within Jordanian society and spread hateful discourse towards the political system, threatening the safety and security" of the kingdom, he said.

Awadallah and Bin Zaid, who both have close ties to Saudi Arabia, were found guilty of "incitement against the ruling system" and "acts that could threaten society and create sedition".

China's military said it "drove away" a U.S. warship that illegally entered Chinese waters near the Paracel Islands on Monday, the anniversary of an international court ruling that held Beijing had no claim over the South China Sea.

The USS Benfold entered the waters without China's approval, seriously violating its sovereignty and undermining the stability of the South China Sea, the southern theatre command of the People's Liberation Army

"We urge the United States to immediately stop such provocative actions," it said in a statement.

On July 12, 2016, the Permanent Court of Arbitration in the Hague ruled that China had no historic title over the South China Sea, a ruling that Beijing said it would ignore.

The Benfold asserted navigational rights and freedoms in the vicinity of the Paracel Islands consistent with international law, the U.S. Navy said in a statement on Monday.

The islands are claimed by China, Taiwan and Vietnam, which require either permission or advance notification before a military vessel passes through.

"Under international law, the ships of all states enjoy the right of innocent passage through the territorial sea," the U.S. Navy added. "By engaging in innocent passage without giving prior notification, the U.S. chal lenged these unlawful restrictions imposed by China, Taiwan and Vietnam."

Hundreds of other islands, reefs and atolls in there source-rich waterway are contested by Brunei, China, Malaysia and the Philippines, with China claiming rights to resources within its so-called nine-dash line, or most of the region.

U.K.'s PM to confirm lifting of COVID-19 curbs next week

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

Prime Minister Boris Johnson is set Monday to confirm "Freedom Day" next week with the lifting of most pandemic curbs in England, but will urge caution with experts worried the government is moving too fast.

Mr. Johnson was due to hold an afternoon news conference confirming that the government's tests have been met to allow a full reopening of the economy on July 19, doing away with the final measures of a monthsold lockdown.

But with Britain now averaging more than 30,000 daily cases of the fastspreading Delta coronavirus variant, scientists are fretting that the ending of measures such as mandatory mask-wearing spells trouble. And the government's decision to allow more than 60,000 football fans to attend Sunday's European Championship final has added to fears, after near-total flouting of distancing rules.

Mr. Johnson, however, insists the time is right to move from legally enforced rules to personal responsibility, and use the summer months to prepare for a potentially more damaging wave of CO-VID-19 in the winter. "We are tantalisingly close to the final milestone in our roadmap out of lockdown, but the plan to restore our freedoms must come with a warning," he said.

'Liquidity buffer at NBFCs cushions fall in Q1 collections'

Last year, moratorium spurred fears on asset quality, liquidity, Crisil points out

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Higher liquidity cover at NBFCs enabled them to service debt in the near term, and cushioned the impact of lower collections during the second wave of COVID-19, Crisil Ratings said in a study of entities rated by the

"That is a change from last year, when asset quality and liquidity fears multiplied after a moratorium on repayments and stringent lockdowns affected collections. This time around, the buildup in liquidity has been a crucial offset," the ratings agency said, adding that collections had again been affected in the current fiscal by the second wave. In the wake of the second wave, Crisil conducted the study considering two stress-case scenarios. In the first scenario, in view of the collection challenges in the first quarter of FY22, it assumed collections over the next quarter at 70% of the levels in the past couple of quarters. In the second scenario, collections were assumed to halve.

In scenario 1, 96% of NBFCs were found to have liquidity cover for three months' worth of debt repayments. In Scenario 2, the number was only marginally lower at 95%. Based on scenario 1, only 4% of NBFCs had low cover (less than one time), compared with 8% in June 2020, and 23% in April 2020.

"We find three factors have supported liquidity: fund-raising through special government schemes, improving collections in the second half of fiscal 2021, and limited disbursements," the agency said.

It pointed out that a number of NBFCs had increased provisioning levels in the past two fiscal years, and had thus enhanced buffers for asset-side risks.

NMDC slashes iron ore prices by ₹200 per tonne

First time prices have been cut in FY22

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Mining major NMDC has reduced iron ore prices by ₹200 per tonne with effect from July 10.

Following the revision, the price of Lump ore is ₹7,450 per tonne, while that for the same quantity of Fines ₹6,360, the company said in a filing on Monday. India's largest iron ore producer, NMDC has, with this, changed the prices four times in the fiscal, including twice in April. The latest revision is the first instance of the prices being reduced this fiscal. Changes in the ore prices are a pointer of the demand for steel.

From ₹5,850 for Lump ore and ₹4,560 for Fines on April 3, the prices moved up to ₹7,650 and ₹6,560 respectively, following two more revisions, including the last on May 12. In June, the firm had maintained the prices.

NMDC is keen on ramping up production to 44 million tonnes (MT) this fiscal. A senior official had recently said prices were 'looking good' and that there was good demand in the country. In FY21, NDMC had produced 34.15 MT and had sold 33.25 MT.

The BSNL employees' union has urged the newly-appointed Communications Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw to ensure that the Department of Telecom clears its due of ₹30,000 crore to the telco in order to provide some aid to the stressed public sector unit (PSU).

"The DoT on its part has been casting a Nelson's eye towards BSNL," the Bharatiya Telecom Employees Union (BSNL), an affiliate of the Bharatiya Mazdoor Sangh, said in a letter. "The DoT owes the BSNL around ₹30,000 crore...we shall be highly obliged... if you could see that this amount is refunded to the BSNL at the earliest to enable the company to perform with more vigour and also take care of its employees' needs," it added.

As per the letter dated July 10, the dues include about ₹13,789 crore in viability gap funding for rural telephony, a total of about ₹8,300 for surrendered Wimax and CDMA spectrum, and ₹1,051 crore for the government's BharatNet project. The union also said that poor marketing methods not in line with contemporary techniques plague BSNL, resulting in loss of revenue and market share.

To help revive two lossmaking telecom PSUs -BSNL and MTNL - the Cabinet had in 2019 given an approval for their merger, with a revival package worth almost ₹70,000 crore. As part of the package, the two PSUs were to be merged and also allotted 4G spectrum, which is yet to be done.

Talking tactics: breaking the final down

The script was all too familiar for England from its 2018 World Cup semifinal defeat to Croatia - take the early lead, sit back, invite pressure, cede control in midfield and get punished.

Gareth Southgate set England up in a 3-4-3 formation, while Roberto Mancini's Italy lined up in a 4-3-3, with contrasting styles on display in a hard-fought contest.

England was a goal up through Luke Shaw after 116 seconds of play, capitalising on Italy's shape being pulled apart after an unsuccessful corner.

of the first 30 minutes with high-intensity pressing all around the pitch, making it difficult for Italy to settle.

But as the game wore on, Italy's three-man midfield of Marco Verratti, Jorginho and Nicolo Barella shaded the battle in the centre of the pitch against England's Kalvin Phillips and Declan Rice. The second period started in the same vein, with England pinned in its half by Italian pressure, both on and off the ball. While England conceded a sloppy set-piece oal, the opportunity arose because of Italy's sustained dominance.

Mancini brought on Dominico Berardi early in the second half and his off-theball movement, along with Lorenzo Insigne and Federico Chiesa, troubled England's defenders. The fullbacks and central midfielders created repetitive overloads on both flanks.

In between the 65th and 66th minute, Italy strung together a sequence of 24 successive passes, before Chiesa's cross was headed behind for the corner that led to the equaliser.

Losing verve

Chiesa's injury and subsequent exit in the 86th minute effectively blunted Italy's attack, and the final lost its Southgate's late introduction of Jack Grealish, Marcus Rashford and Jadon Sancho in extra-time didn't seem to alter the contest, which went to penalties.

Although England took the lead again in the shootout, Gianluigi Donnarumma stood tall in goal and Italy emerged triumphant.

Losing the 2019 cricket ODI World Cup due to the boundary-countback rule still hurts New Zealand cricketers and this was again on show as Scott Styris and James Neesham took an indirect dig at the Three Lions after they lost the Euro 2020 final against Italy on penalties.

"When the focus is on winning a medal at the Olympics, everything else gets blurred. Once you enter a major event, the focus has to be on doing well backed by the right preparations," he told The Hindu.

He is happy with his fitness level going into the Olympics. "I am the kind of player who can play my natural game straight away if I feel I am fit," he said.

He has prepared for Tokyo the same as he would for any big event. The emphasis was on all-round improvement, he said. Video analyses of his recent matches and those of

Also coaches Agus Dwi Santoso and P. Gopi Chand had been providing "invaluable" inputs, he said.

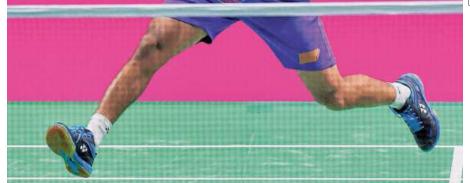

On lack of tournaments before the Games, Sai Praneeth felt it would be the same for everyone and the preparations were planned accordingly. The pandemic restrictions were a bigger torture, he said. "You can easily sort out anything related to your game on the court. But, these restrictions and tests can be a real challenge,' he said.

On this being his first Olympics, the 28-year-old shuttler said it did play on his mind but that he was trying to avoid any pressure.

On training at the Gachibowli Indoor Stadium for the last one month, Sai Praneeth said it was a good move.

"The conditions should be similar in Tokyo and hence it was really good to train there," he said.

Chasing a dream: B. Sai Praneeth is in the right frame of mind as the Olympics approaches.
